B-29 Tanker, B-50 Bomber Crash In Ariz.

10 Crew Members Survive Collision

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 16 (AP) — Thirteen airmen were killed and 10 survived a collision of two Air Force planes over the desert 50 miles west of here today.

Lt. Elwin Piwetz, public information officer at Davis-Monthan Air Force base here, said it has not been determined whether the survivors are injured.

He said the two four-motor planes, a B-29 tanker and a B-50 bomber, plunged to the ground five miles north of the Papago Indian village of Silnakya on the Sells reservation.

The rugged country is extremely difficult to reach on foot.

Piwetz could give no detailed description of what happened but it is believed the two planes came together during a refueling operation.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration tower at Tucson municipal airport made the first report of a crash at 12:08 p. m. (MST). It said a column of smoke was seen west of the city.

Indian Is Eyewitness

Search planes were sent out from Davis-Monthan and the wreckage spotted. Ground rescue teams were dispatched to the scene, but have not reported back. They have radio equipment.

The planes apparently crashed within a hundred feet of each other in a horseshoe valley in the Black Mountains.

One of the few eyewitnesses was Steven Ramon, a Papago Indian living in Silnakya.

"It was around noon," he said. "I thought there was one airplane in the sky. There was a flash. The plane started to come down toward the ground. Then I saw that there were two planes. They were both on fire. I did not see any parachutes They landed very close together about 10 miles away from me."

Wreckage Scattered

Robert Moore, reporter for the Arizona Daily Star and a captain with the Air Force during the war, flew to the crash scene today.

Moore said:

"The planes were spread over an area of a mile in radius. I counted five engines, but three apparently had been consumed by the heat.

"In the center of the circle were two holes in the ground, one about eight feet deep and one five feet deep. They were about 100 feet apart.

Cumberlander Missing In Crash

They are Capt. Arthur M. Neal and Tech. Sgt. Virgil L. Young.

Truman Will Continue Pressing "Fair Deal"

Radar Screen Helps Bulwark Western Berlin

West To Train, Equip German Police Force

BERLIN, Nov. 16 (AP) — The Western Allies erected new safeguards today against surprise aggression from the East and disclosed that a hitherto secret American radar screen, backed by jet fighter patrols, has passed its first tests.

The bulwarking of West Berlin was illustrated in three actions:

1—The Americans, British and French decided to equip and train the 13,800-man West Berlin police force with machine guns and automatic rifles of French make so the force could join Western troops in resisting any invader from street to street and house to house.

British Tanks Arrive

2—The British moved eight 33-ton Comet tanks to West Berlin to replace light armored cars. The tanks pack 77-millimeter guns.

3—The United States started building a new regiment here with the arrival of 200 troops comprising a headquarters company.

Allied forces now numbering about 10,000 will be increased to about 12,000 by the end of the year. The result will be a combined Allied-German force equal to more than two divisions. American officers calculate that, with the new weapons and coordinated planning, such a force would be able to pin down an enemy three or four times its size.

Military units of the East German Communist people's police, trained with tanks and artillery, number about 50,000. The Soviet army in East Germany, however, is five or six times that size.

Picked Up Thorez Plane

The disclosure of the radar network, which charts the approach of any aircraft, came from Frankfurt. The first test came when a Soviet hospital plane carrying the ailing French Communist leader, Maurice Thorez, from Paris to Moscow for medical treatment flew over West Germany Saturday. Radar picked up the plane and a jet fighter was sent to investigate.

This led to a protest last night by Gen. Vassily Chuikov, chief of the Soviet High Commission in East Germany. He charged that the Russian plane was "attacked."

Proud Boy Chases 100% School Paper Into Path Of Death

BOSTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Seven-year-old Johnny Corrado, who was so proud of his 100 per cent school paper that he chased it right into the path of a freight train, died today in City hospital.

"I got a hundred. I got a hundred," little Johnny yelled happily to schoolmates as he hurried home Tuesday.

A gust of wind whipped the prized paper from his clenched hand and Johnny ran to the railroad tracks to retrieve it. The freight train hurled him to the side of the right-of-way.

As his pals knelt beside him Johnny gasped his last words:

"Get my paper. I want to show it to mother."

Gold Received Rubber Formula From Brothman

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — Soviet Atom Spy Harry Gold testified today that Abraham Brothman became panicky when the FBI got on his trail and "wanted to make up any story to conceal how we met."

"He suggested that I say we had been writing a book together," said Gold, who has testified that he and Brothman worked together for a Russian spy ring.

Earlier, Gold testified that the 36-year-old Brothman turned over to him complete plans for the production of buna-S synthetic rubber—plans a Russian official considered worth two or three brigades of troops.

Gold Passed Data To Boss

Gold said the top-secret data came to him from Brothman in 1942 in "25 or 30" blueprints plus weighty typewritten instructions.

Gold said he passed the information to his boss in the spy ring

The heart of the case is Brothman's story to a grand jury of how he met Gold, a confessed spy for the Soviet.

The government charges Brothman lied about their relations.

Suggested Cooking Up Story

Gold testified he went to Brothman's office in May, 1947, and Brothman told him:

"Look, Harry, the FBI just left here. They know all about us—that you are a (spy ring) courier."

Then, Gold said, Brothman suggested they cook up some sort of a story to explain their relationship.

This testimony came after Gold told of introducing his Russian superior, Semen M. Semenov, to Brothman in a suite in New York City's Lincoln hotel in December, 1942.

President Says Election Gains Of GOP Normal

No Early Congress Call; Acheson Stays

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—President Truman declared today, with chin outthrust, that he's going to keep right on pressing for adoption of his whole "Fair Deal" program as long as he is president.

He brushed off the Republican election gains as normal in a non-presidential year and said they don't make him blue, even though they're not what he expected.

The President said he'll present his full program to the 82nd Congress when it convenes in January—this in the face of GOP claims that the "Fair Deal" was killed by the Nov. 7 election.

But he told his first news conference since the election that he has decided against calling Congress back in advance of the Nov. 27 date it set for itself. There won't be time, Mr. Truman said, to get a Korean war funds bill ready for presentation before Nov. 27.

Acheson To Keep Job

Before turning to domestic affairs Mr. Truman read a statement pledging this country to take "every honorable step" to keep the Korean war from spreading to China or elsewhere. But he warned at the same time:

"If the Chinese Communists share the desire of the United Nations for peace and security in the Far East, they will not take upon themselves the responsibility for obstructing the objectives of the United Nations in Korea."

Sharply, Mr. Truman told a questioner that Secretary of State Acheson is going to keep his job—period. Acheson has been a prime target of Republican critics of the administration foreign policy, and many have demanded his resignation.

No Comment On 1952 Plans

The President said he's not ready to make any comment on whether he'll seek reelection in 1952. Most leading Democrats predict he will.

In answer to other questions, the President said:

1—Gen. Douglas MacArthur tells him American troops in Korea have plenty of clothing and that's good enough for him. (Dispatches from Korea have reported some men are fighting in summer uniforms despite freezing weather.)

2—Surveys still are going on to determine whether price and wage controls are necessary. They'll be imposed as soon as there is need for them, the President said, but he doesn't think the time has come yet.

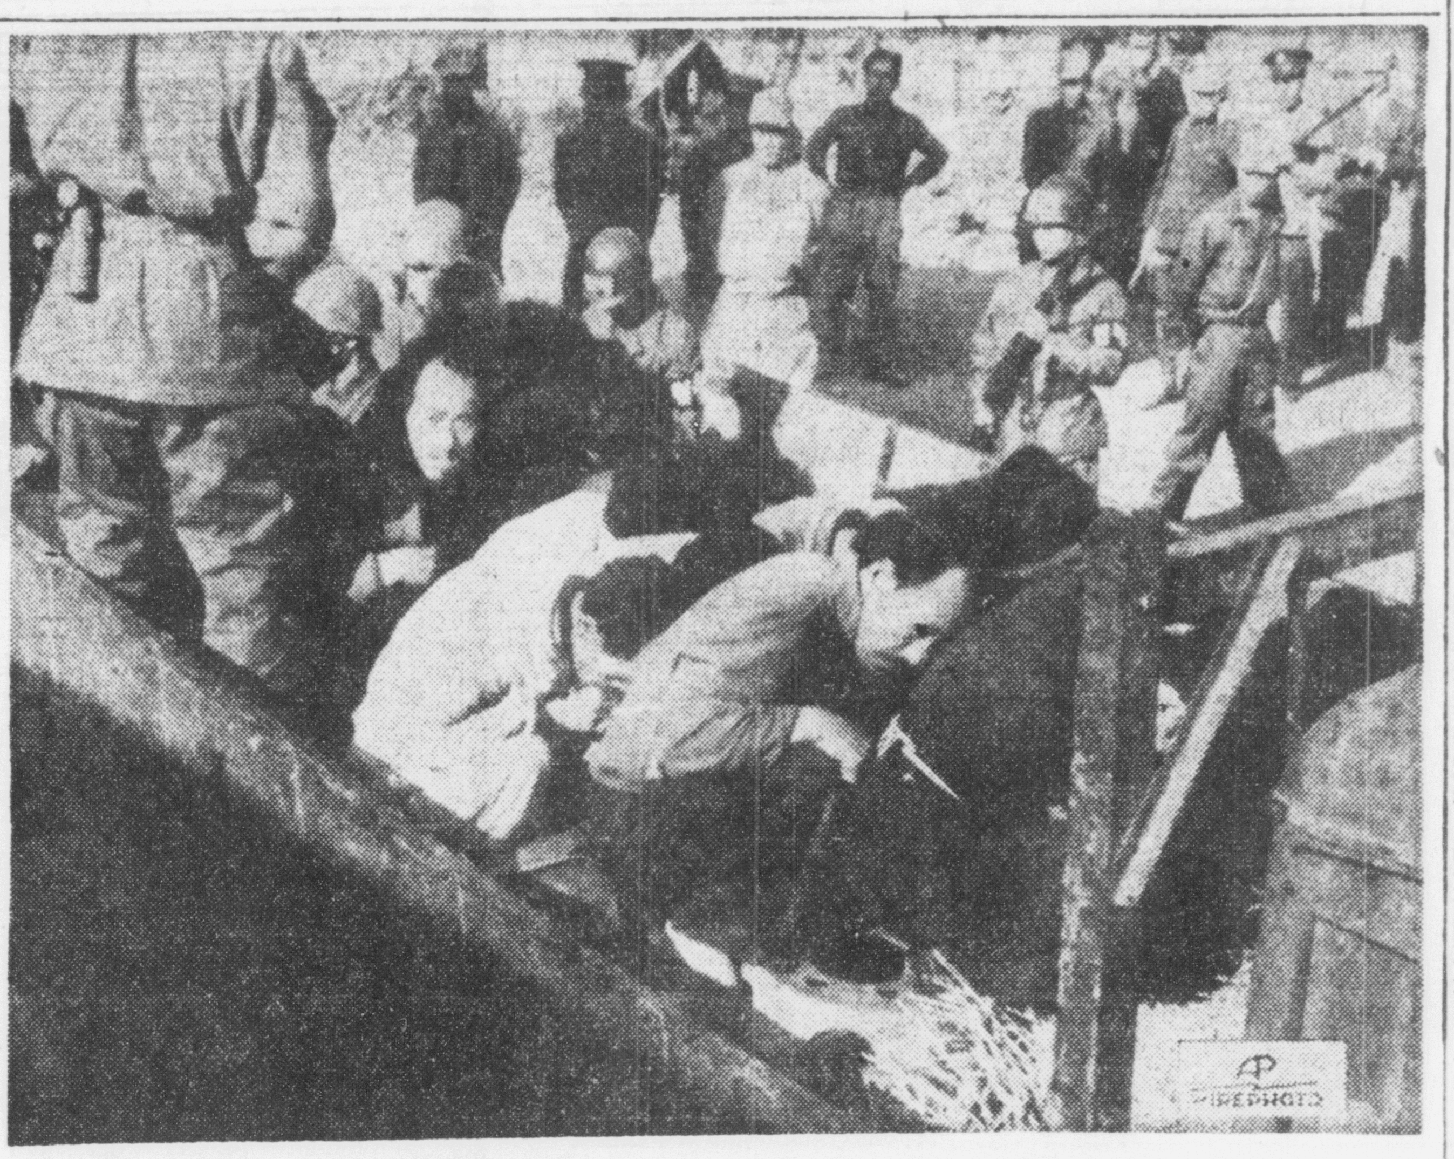
3—He could be convinced that this country should send an ambassador to Franco Spain, but he hasn't been convinced so far.

Train And River Barge Collide

KEOKUK, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A Burlington Route passenger train and a Mississippi river barge collided today.

The Mark Twain Zephyr had just left the station here en route to St. Louis when it hit the prow of the barge, which protruded over the railroad tracks. The engine and a baggage car were derailed but no one was hurt.

Officials still are trying to figure out how the barge reached the railroad tracks. The barge lines use a concrete pier at which they tie up while awaiting their turn to go through the locks at the big dam here.



En Route To South Korean Execution

R. Lorwin. The collaborators faced a firing squad eight miles outside Seoul.

Egypt Says It May Upset British Pact

Threatens Action If Troops Remain

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 16 (AP)—Egypt's Wafdist government today challenged the validity of the Egyptian-British defense treaty of 1936 and pledged cancellation if Britain does not remove her troops from the Suez Canal zone.

The threat was made in a formal speech from the throne, read by Premier Nahas Pasha for King Farouk I at the opening of parliament.

It marked the first time an Egyptian government has officially pledged before parliament to renounce the treaty unilaterally if Britain does not agree to Egypt's longtime demands for withdrawal of the troops and transfer of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to Egyptian rule.

Britain Rejects Views

King Farouk's speech declared the treaty is no longer regarded as legal and "there is no other alternative than to decide its cancellation."

The Suez base, which serviced Allied armies throughout the Middle East in World War II, covers about 2,000,000 acres. It is now staffed by 40,000 army and civilian personnel. The value of the buildings and facilities has been estimated at $500,000,000.

(With unusual speed, Britain rejected the Egyptian views. A Foreign Office spokesman told a London news conference Britain does not recognize Egypt's right to upset the treaty, which binds the two countries together for 20 years. The spokesman said Britain's attitude on the Sudan—that the Sudanese should have the right to decide their own future — remains unchanged.)

Appeasement Speech?

The 1936 treaty authorized the maintenance of British troops in the canal zone until 1956. They have been occupying Egyptian soil for 68 years.

Western observers here believed the King's speech was drafted in vague terms to permit a two-day interpretation and to appease Egyptian popular feeling, which strongly favors withdrawal of the British.

Killed By Lamp

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP) — Officials decided today that Harold Earle, 56, Hammond, was killed when struck on the head last night by a lamp blown from a pole by a high wind. He was working as a plant guard at the time. No one saw the accident.

Malik Says He'll Veto Demand Red China Pull Out Of Korea

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik served notice today he will veto a six-power demand that Communist China pull its troops out of the Korean war immediately. Confronted with that impasse, the United States read to the Security Council President Truman's statement that the U. S. never had any intention of sending troops into China.

Malik attacked the U. S. role in Korea and the Far East once more, said the resolution was based on illegal council decisions and he would vote against it. There were reports tonight that the backers of the resolution, including the U. S., might not press for a vote immediately in view of a certain Soviet veto.

The council adjourned until 3 p. m. EST tomorrow to continue argument over the Korean question.

Malik insisted that the council hear a three-page statement from Peiping denouncing the U. S. on charges of aggression against China and Korea. When Malik had spoken and the statement of the Peiping regime was read, Ernest A. Gross, United States, read into the record President Truman's pledge that the U. S. "never at any time entertained any intention to carry hostilities into China."

Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang opened the verbal firing today with a charge that the Chinese masses are being driven into "un-Chinese" adventures in Korea, Tibet, and Indochina in the interests of the Soviet Union and Prime Minister Joseph Stalin.

Malik's announcement that he will vote against the resolution had been expected from the start of this case in the council. The backers are expected after the veto to urge the General Assembly to act. Some delegates, including India, are reported anxious to have the newly-created peace observation commission of the U. N. go to Korea and check the situation on the spot. Russia is a member of that commission.

Bob Hope Sues Life And Columnist For $2,010,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16 (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope today filed a $2,010,000 damage suit against Life magazine and Radio Columnist John Crosby, charging they libeled him by asserting he stole Comedian Fred Allen's jokes.

Hope alleged that the Nov. 6 issue of Life, under the title "Seven Deadly Sins of the Air," implied he was guilty of plagiarism, a practice which he said the entertainment industry regards as unethical.

U. S. Acts To Hike Aluminum Yield

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — The government tonight offered substantial financial incentives to increase production of a metal vitally needed in the defense program.

At the same time the General Services Administration announced that two large aluminum plants of the Aluminum Company of America will be reopened. These are expected to produce 55,000 tons of metal next year and 79,000 tons a year thereafter. National production is at the rate of 750,000 tons.

An announcement by Administrator Jess Larson of GSA said the government will make aluminum producers this offer:

If they build a new plant or construct an addition to a present plant they may subtract one-fifth of the cost of it each year from their income taxes.

But they must apply this amount to the cost of building the plant, until the building is paid for or the rebates equal the cost.

Boy Triplets Born

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The mother of a nine-month-old daughter gave birth yesterday and today to healthy boy triplets.

The first of the triplets was born to 26-year-old Mrs. Claire Yerves, at 2:15 a. m.

Court Rules Mistress Is Dependent In Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Is a mistress a dependent? She is in Maryland, says the state's highest court.

The Court of Appeals, by a 5 to 1 decision, upheld Mrs. Ida R. Kendall's contention that she was a dependent of the late John Daniels and therefore eligible for benefits under the workmen's compensation law.

Push Forward Up To 5 Miles Despite Sleet

Air Attack Slowed; Resistance Spotty

SEOUL, Friday, Nov. 17 (AP) — Allied troops scratched out gains up to five miles against spotty Red resistance in a general advance along the sleet-struck fighting front in North Korea Thursday.

The sleet made the going rough for the foot soldiers, and cut down the around-the-clock bombing of Red bases and supply centers. Temperatures rose from previous near-zero levels, however.

Chinese and Korean Communists pulled back a little more in the northwest and north-central sectors. The steam went out of a North Korean Red counterattack in the far northeast.

The U. S. First Corps advanced on a 30-mile front in the northwest against practically no opposition.

Reds Reportedly Pull Back

The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade rolled through Pakchon and pushed about three miles north. British patrols ventured another mile and one-half ahead and found no trace of Reds.

Chinese and North Korean Red divisions, once reported digging in on high ground west of Pakchon, now were reported to have pulled back ten miles.

Northeast of Pakchon, the U. S 24th Division advanced up to a mile and one-half and sent patrols as far as Yongsong. The U. S. First Cavalry Division moved almost a mile north of the old walled city of Youngbyon. The two divisions were in an arc along a front 15 miles northeast of Pakchon.

These advances swelled the Allied Chongchon river bridgehead northward and westward.

On the bridgehead's east side, the Korean republic's Second Corps struggled back to Tokchon, 25 miles east of Youngbyon, and thereby regained most of the four miles lost to counterattacking Reds earlier in the week.

Marines Gain Three Miles

In snow-covered mountains east of the bridgehead, U. S. Seventh Regiment Marines skirmished with outposts of a Red force of unestimated size after a three-mile Marine advance west of the Changjin reservoir.

A prisoner said Chinese troops were assembling in large numbers in mountains west of the reservoir. The entire Chinese 42nd Army, about equal in numbers to two American divisions, may be massing in the area.

To the northeast, the U. S. Seventh Infantry Division sent one spearhead up the east banks of the Pujon reservoir and another — the U. S. 17th Regiment — five miles north to the 41st parallel against Red tanks, artillery and infantry. The advance, Thursday's biggest, put the 17th only 20 miles south of the Manchurian border on the road to Kapsan.

American Casualties In Korea Now 28,881

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. (AP) — American forces have suffered a total of 28,881 announced casualties in the Korean fighting, a Defense Department summary showed today.

The figures covered casualties where the next of kin had been notified through Nov. 10. The new total was 646 larger than that announced a week before.

The latest list showed 4,798 dead, including 4,049 from the Army, 627 Marine Corps, 49 Navy and 73 Air Force.

Lee, Cleared Of Disloyalty Charge, Quits And Is Fired

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Michael E. Lee, Commerce Department official, was cleared of disloyalty charges by his boss today, and within minutes resigned and was fired from his $10,750-a-year job.

Informed of the discharge order issued by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Lee's attorney commented: "How dirty can you get?"

The sequence of resignation and ouster came almost simultaneously in mid-afternoon and climaxed a bitter controversy involving charges of disloyalty against Lee.

Lee, 42, Manchurian-born son of Russian parents, was chief of the Commerce Department's Far Eastern (Asiatic) trade branch.

Confusion over Lee's ouster-resignation was compounded by Sawyer's announcement that he had cleared Lee of disloyalty charges but had ordered his dismissal "on the ground of security and the best interests of the United States."

The resignation and ouster broke almost at the same time, apparently by coincidence, with neither Sawyer nor Lee aware of the other's action.

Lee's attorney, Leonard A. Nikoloric of the law firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter, expressed astonishment when told that Lee had been discharged. He insisted that Lee had not been notified.

"How dirty can you get—letting a man resign and then firing him?" Nikoloric asked newsmen.

U. S. Air Defense Command Will Be Shifted To Colorado

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Headquarters for the nation's defense against air attacks will be shifted from New York to Colorado Springs, Colo., early in 1951, the Air Force announced today.

The move will thus take the key headquarters to the western half of the United States—some 1,650 miles from the Atlantic coast—with control over both the east and west air defense forces.

The swing to the west once again lent emphasis to the strategic concept that if present tension with Russia should erupt into World War III, the gravest danger of aerial blows against the United States would focus on the northwest "gateway."

Pentagon officials were reluctant to discuss reasons for the shift, but one obvious motive would be to provide greater protection for the important air defense "nerve center" by locating it far inland. It was pointed out that guided missiles, conceivably with atomic warheads, could be fired from submarines lying a few miles off the present headquarters at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y.

The Air Force said 800 military and civilian personnel will be assigned to the new headquarters at Colorado Springs, 71 miles south of Denver on the eastern fringes of the Rocky Mountains.

Lt. Gen. Ennis C Whitehead will take over command of the new headquarters. He is now chief of the Continental Air Command based at Mitchel Field.

The Air Force said the Air Defense Command will establish its permanent headquarters early next year at Ent Air Force base, Colorado Springs, which served as headquarters of the Second Air Force during World War II. The base was named in honor of Maj. Gen. Uzal G. Ent, who was killed in a bomber crash in October, 1944.

Gen. Whitehead's command will direct the existing eastern air defense force, headquartered at Newburgh, N. Y., and the western force at San Rafael, Calif.

3 Cousins, All Dead, Named Heirs To Garrett Fortune

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)—Three cousins—all of them dead—were named heirs to the $17,000,000 Garrett estate today, 20 years to the day after the death of Mrs. Henrietta Garrett opened up a multi-million dollar international grab bag.

Two survivors of the cousins, a Greenville (Miss) banker and an elderly Chicago recluse, will get an estimated $2,000,000 each under a finding prepared for recommendation to Orphans Court. The U. S. government and the State of Pennsylvania will split up the remaining $13,000,000, most of it as taxes.

The two who get the money are:

Wilson Primm Kretschmar, 71, Greenville banker and a nephew and heir of Herman A. Kretschmar, St. Louis, who died in 1941.

Mrs. Constance Kretschmar Mock, Chicago, daughter and heir of Howard Sigismund Kretschmar, Chicago, who died in 1933.

The heirs of the third cousin, Johann Peter Schafer, Bad Nauheim, Germany, who died in 1945, probably will get nothing. The government has claimed that share under an act which bars enemy aliens from inheriting U. S. property. The U. S. still is technically at war with Germany.

Today's action was the first step toward settlement of the violence-tinged fortune hunt. More than 26,000 claimants from all over the world got into the scrap.

Weather Forecast
Generally fair and colder today; tomorrow mostly fair and slightly milder.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—President Truman declared today, with chin outthrust, that he's going to keep right on pressing for adoption of his whole "Fair Deal" program as long as he is president.

He brushed off the Republican election gains as normal in a non-presidential year and said they don't make him blue, even though they're not what he expected.

The President said he'll present his full program to the 82nd Congress when it convenes in January—this in the face of GOP claims that the "Fair Deal" was killed by the Nov. 7 election.

But he told his first news conference since the election that he has decided against calling Congress back in advance of the Nov. 27 date it set for itself. There won't be time, Mr. Truman said, to get a Korean war funds bill ready for presentation before Nov. 27.

Acheson To Keep Job

Before turning to domestic affairs Mr. Truman read a statement pledging this country to take "every honorable step" to keep the Korean war from spreading to China or elsewhere. But he warned at the same time:

"If the Chinese Communists share the desire of the United Nations for peace and security in the Far East, they will not take upon themselves the responsibility for obstructing the objectives of the United Nations in Korea."

Sharply, Mr. Truman told a questioner that Secretary of State Acheson is going to keep his job—period. Acheson has been a prime target of Republican critics of the administration foreign policy, and many have demanded his resignation.

No Comment On 1952 Plans

The President said he's not ready to make any comment on whether he'll seek reelection in 1952. Most leading Democrats predict he will.

In answer to other questions, the President said:

1—Gen. Douglas MacArthur tells him American troops in Korea have plenty of clothing and that's good enough for him. (Dispatches from Korea have reported some men are fighting in summer uniforms despite freezing weather.)

2—Surveys still are going on to determine whether price and wage controls are necessary. They'll be imposed as soon as there is need for them, the President said, but he doesn't think the time has come yet.

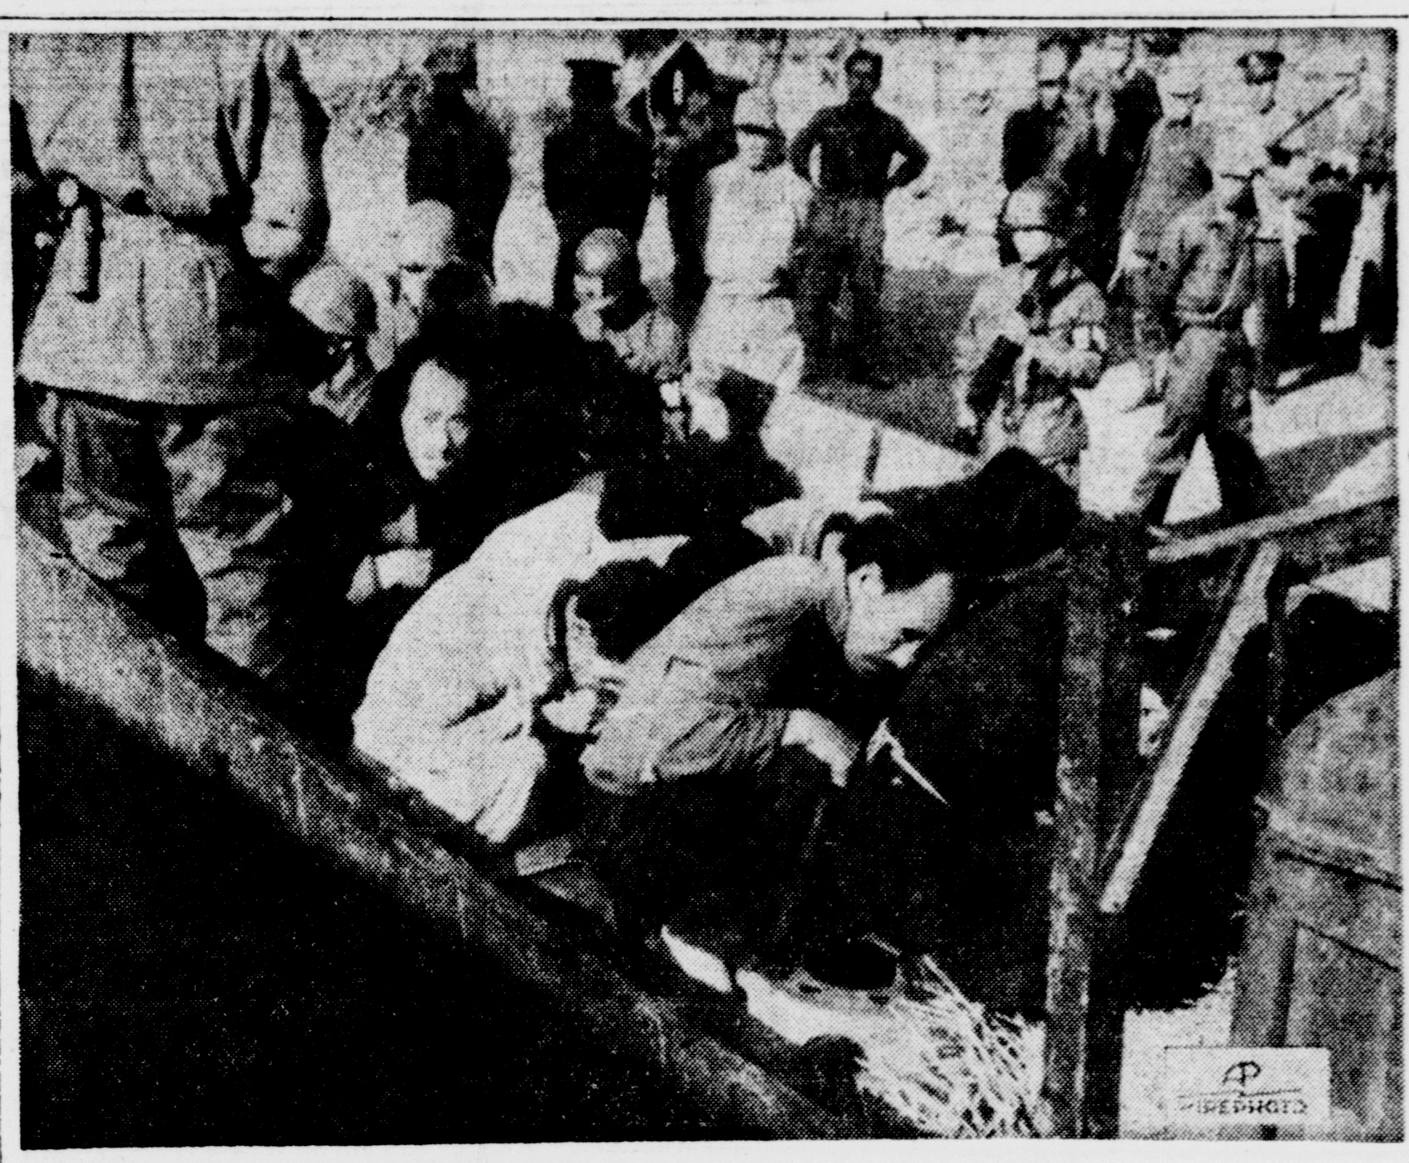
3—He could be convinced that this country should send an ambassador to Franco Spain, but he hasn't been convinced so far.

Train And River Barge Collide

KEOKUK, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A Burlington Route passenger train and a Mississippi river barge collided today.

The Mark Twain Zephyr had just left the station here en route to St. Louis when it hit the prow of the barge, which protruded over the railroad tracks. The engine and a baggage car were derailed but no one was hurt.

Officials still are trying to figure out how the barge reached the railroad tracks. The barge lines use a concrete pier at which they tie up while awaiting their turn to go through the locks at the big dam here.



En Route To South Korean Execution

This picture shows South Korean Communist collaborators crouching in a truck as they were conveyed to the scene of their execution, according to Pix, Inc., New York picture agency which distributed the picture made by its Seoul photographer, I. R. Lorwin. The collaborators faced a firing squad eight miles outside Seoul.

Egypt Says It May Upset British Pact

Threatens Action If Troops Remain

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 16 (AP)—Egypt's Wafdist government today challenged the validity of the Egyptian-British defense treaty of 1936 and pledged cancellation if Britain does not remove her troops from the Suez Canal zone.

The threat was made in a formal speech from the throne, read by Premier Nahas Pasha for King Farouk I at the opening of parliament.

It marked the first time an Egyptian government has officially pledged before parliament to renounce the treaty unilaterally if Britain does not agree to Egypt's longtime demands for withdrawal of the troops and transfer of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to Egyptian rule.

Britain Rejects Views

King Farouk's speech declared the treaty is no longer regarded as legal and "there is no other alternative than to decide its cancellation."

The Suez base, which serviced Allied armies throughout the Middle East in World War II, covers about 2,000,000 acres. It is now staffed by 40,000 army and civilian personnel. The value of the buildings and facilities has been estimated at $500,000,000.

(With unusual speed, Britain rejected the Egyptian views. A Foreign Office spokesman told a London news conference Britain does not recognize Egypt's right to upset the treaty, which binds the two countries together for 20 years. The spokesman said Britain's attitude on the Sudan—that the Sudanese should have the right to decide their own future — remains unchanged.)

Appeasement Speech?

The 1936 treaty authorized the maintenance of British troops in the canal zone until 1956. They have been occupying Egyptian soil for 68 years.

Western observers here believed the King's speech was drafted in vague terms to permit a two-day interpretation and to appease Egyptian popular feeling, which strongly favors withdrawal of the British.

Killed By Lamp

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP) — Officials decided today that Harold Earle, 56, Hammond, was killed when struck on the head last night by a lamp blown from a pole by a high wind. He was working as a plant guard at the time. No one saw the accident.

Malik Says He'll Veto Demand Red China Pull Out Of Korea

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik served notice today he will veto a six-power demand that Communist China pull its troops out of the Korean war immediately. Confronted with that impasse, the United States read to the Security Council President Truman's statement that the U. S. never had any intention of sending troops into China.

Malik attacked the U. S. role in Korea and the Far East once more, said the resolution was based on illegal council decisions and he would vote against it. There were reports tonight that the backers of the resolution, including the U. S., might not press for a vote immediately in view of a certain Soviet veto.

The council adjourned until 3 p. m. EST tomorrow to continue argument over the Korean question.

Malik insisted that the council hear a three-page statement from Peiging denouncing the U. S. on charges of aggression against China and Korea. When Malik had spoken and the statement of the Peiping regime was read, Ernest A. Gross, United States, read into the record President Truman's pledge that the U. S. "never at any time entertained any intention to carry hostilities into China."

Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang opened the verbal firing today with a charge that the Chinese masses are being driven into "un-Chinese" adventures in Korea, Tibet, and Indochina in the interests of the Soviet Union and Prime Minister Joseph Stalin.

Malik's announcement that he will vote against the resolution had been expected from the start of this case in the council. The backers are expected after the veto to urge the General Assembly to act. Some delegates, including India, are reported anxious to have the newly-created peace observation commission of the U. N. go to Korea and check the situation on the spot. Russia is a member of that commission.

Bob Hope Sues Life And Columnist For $2,010,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16 (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope today filed a $2,010,000 damage suit against Life magazine and Radio Columnist John Crosby, charging they libeled him by asserting he stole Comedian Fred Allen's jokes.

Hope alleged that the Nov. 6 issue of Life, under the title "Seven Deadly Sins of the Air," implied he was guilty of plagiarism, a practice which he said the entertainment industry regards as unethical.

U. S. Acts To Hike Aluminum Yield

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — The government tonight offered substantial financial incentives to increase production of a metal vitally needed in the defense program.

At the same time the General Services Administration announced that two large aluminum plants of the Aluminum Company of America will be reopened. These are expected to produce 55,000 tons of metal next year and 79,000 tons a year thereafter. National production is at the rate of 750,000 tons.

An announcement by Administrator Jess Larson of GSA said the government will make aluminum producers this offer:

If they build a new plant or construct an addition to a present plant they may subtract one-fifth of the cost of it each year from their income taxes.

But they must apply this amount to the cost of building the plant, until the building is paid for or the rebates equal the cost.

Boy Triplets Born

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The mother of a nine-month-old daughter gave birth yesterday and today to healthy boy triplets.

The first of the triplets was born to 26-year-old Mrs. Claire Yerves, at 2:15 a. m.

Court Rules Mistress Is Dependent In Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Is a mistress a dependent? She is in Maryland, says the state's highest court.

The Court of Appeals, by a 5 to 1 decision, upheld Mrs. Ida R. Kendall's contention that she was a dependent of the late John Daniels and therefore eligible for benefits under the workmen's compensation law.

Push Forward Up To 5 Miles Despite Sleet

Air Attack Slowed; Resistance Spotty

SEOUL, Friday, Nov. 17 (AP) — Allied troops scratched out gains up to five miles against spotty Red resistance in a general advance along the sleet-struck fighting front in North Korea Thursday.

The sleet made the going rough for the foot soldiers, and cut down the around-the-clock bombing of Red bases and supply centers. Temperatures rose from previous near-zero levels, however.

Chinese and Korean Communists pulled back a little more in the northwest and north-central sectors. The steam went out of a North Korean Red counterattack in the far northeast.

Reds Reportedly Pull Back

The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade rolled through Pakchon and pushed about three miles north. British patrols ventured another mile and one-half ahead and found no trace of Reds.

Chinese and North Korean Red divisions, once reported digging in on high ground west of Pakchon, now were reported to have pulled back ten miles.

Northeast of Pakchon, the U. S 24th Division advanced up to a mile and one-half and sent patrols as far as Yongsong. The U. S. First Cavalry Division moved almost a mile north of the old walled city of Youngbyon. The two divisions were in an arc along a front 15 miles northeast of Pakchon.

On the bridgehead's east side, the Korean republic's Second Corps struggled back to Tokchon, 25 miles east of Youngbyon, and thereby regained most of the four miles lost to counterattacking Reds earlier in the week.

Marines Gain Three Miles

In snow-covered mountains east of the bridgehead, U. S. Seventh Regiment Marines skirmished with outposts of a Red force of unestimated size after a three-mile Marine advance west of the Changjin reservoir.

A prisoner said Chinese troops were assembling in large numbers in mountains west of the reservoir. The entire Chinese 42nd Army, about equal in numbers to two American divisions, may be massing in the area.

To the northeast, the U. S. Seventh Infantry Division sent one spearhead up the east banks of the Pujon reservoir and another — the U. S. 17th Regiment — five miles north to the 41st parallel against Red tanks, artillery and infantry. The advance, Thursday's biggest, put the 17th only 20 miles south of the Manchurian border on the road to Kapsan.

American Casualties In Korea Now 28,881

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — American forces have suffered a total of 28,881 announced casualties in the Korean fighting, a Defense Department summary showed today.

The figures covered casualties where the next of kin had been notified through Nov. 10. The new total was 646 larger than that announced a week before.

The latest list showed 4,798 dead, including 4,049 from the Army, 627 Marine Corps, 49 Navy and 73 Air Force.

Lee, Cleared Of Disloyalty Charge, Quits And Is Fired

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Michael E. Lee, Commerce Department official, was cleared of disloyalty charges by his boss today, and within minutes resigned and was fired from his $10,750-a-year job.

Informed of the discharge order issued by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Lee's attorney commented:

"How dirty can you get?"

The sequence of resignation and ouster came almost simultaneously in mid-afternoon and climaxed a bitter controversy involving charges of disloyalty against Lee.

Lee, 42, Manchurian-born son of Russian parents, was chief of the Commerce Department's Far Eastern (Asiatic) trade branch.

Confusion over Lee's ouster-resignation was compounded by Sawyer's announcement that he had cleared Lee of disloyalty charges but had ordered his dismissal "on the ground of security and the best interests of the United States."

The resignation and ouster broke almost at the same time, apparently by coincidence, with neither Sawyer nor Lee aware of the other's action.

Lee's attorney, Leonard A. Nikoloric of the law firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter, expressed astonishment when told that Lee had been discharged. He insisted that Lee had not been notified.

"How dirty can you get—letting a man resign and then firing him?" Nikoloric asked newsmen.

U. S. Air Defense Command Will Be Shifted To Colorado

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Headquarters for the nation's defense against air attacks will be shifted from New York to Colorado Springs, Colo., early in 1951, the Air Force announced today.

The move will thus take the key headquarters to the western half of the United States—some 1,650 miles from the Atlantic coast—with control over both the east and west air defense forces.

The swing to the west once again lent emphasis to the strategic concept that if present tension with Russia should erupt into World War III, the gravest danger of aerial blows against the United States would focus on the northwest "gateway."

Pentagon officials were reluctant to discuss reasons for the shift, but one obvious motive would be to provide greater protection for the important air defense "nerve center" by locating it far inland. It was pointed out that guided missiles, conceivably with atomic warheads, could be fired from submarines lying a few miles off the present headquarters at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y.

The Air Force said 800 military and civilian personnel will be assigned to the new headquarters at Colorado Springs, 71 miles south of Denver on the eastern fringes of the Rocky Mountains.

Lt. Gen. Ennis C Whitehead will take over command of the new headquarters. He is now chief of the Continental Air Command based at Mitchel Field.

The Air Force said the Air Defense Command will establish its permanent headquarters early next year at Ent Air Force base, Colorado Springs, which served as headquarters of the Second Air Force during World War II. The base was named in honor of Maj. Gen. Uzal G. Ent, who was killed in a bomber crash in October, 1944.

Gen. Whitehead's command will direct the existing eastern air defense force, headquartered at Newburgh, N .Y., and the western force at San Rafael, Calif.

3 Cousins, All Dead, Named Heirs To Garrett Fortune

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)—Three cousins—all of them dead—were named heirs to the $17,000,000 Garrett estate today, 20 years to the day after the death of Mrs. Henrietta Garrett opened up a multimillion dollar international grab bag.

Two survivors of the cousins, a Greenville (Miss) banker and an elderly Chicago recluse, will get an estimated $2,000,000 each under a finding prepared for recommendation to Orphans Court. The U. S. government and the State of Pennsylvania will split up the remaining $13,000,000, most of it as taxes.

The two who get the money are:

Wilson Primm Kretschmar, 71, Greenville banker and a nephew and heir of Herman A. Kretschmar, St. Louis, who died in 1941.

Mrs. Constance Kretschmar Mock, Chicago, daughter and heir of Howard Sigismund Kretschmar, Chicago, who died in 1933.

The heirs of the third cousin, Johann Peter Schafer, Bad Nauheim, Germany, who died in 1945, probably will get nothing. The government has claimed that share under an act which bars enemy aliens from inheriting U. S. property. The U. S. still is technically at war with Germany.

Today's action was the first step toward settlement of the violence-tinged fortune hunt. More than 26,000 claimants from all over the world got into the scrap.

Raccoon Getting Too Big A Break

WASHINGTON—(AP) — New fur styles and the excise tax may be giving the raccoon too much of a break.

A Wildlife Service official who didn't want to be named said the raccoon population is 'way up, especially in the south.

'Coons are reported spilling out of their old forest-land haunts into swamps and open country where they become crop pests and destroy birds' eggs.

This official told a reporter the increase in the 'coon population is due largely to:

1. A current fashion demand for short fur—the kind that grows on seal, marten, muskrat and beaver, not on raccoons.

2. The excise tax, which discourages use of 'coon fur for trim. The tax applies to the whole garment, even if raccoon fur is used only as trimming.

The Wildlife Service is now studying other possible uses for the raccoon pelt, the official said, and the results "may change the whole picture in the future." He wouldn't say how.

His immediate solution?

"It would be a big help," he said "if college boys would return to the wearing of 'coonskin coats."

The returns make Bob Taft, Warren and Dewey strong Republican repeaters for the GOP presidential nomination. This time let's pick out the one we like and drown the other two. Otherwise in 1956 we will add another bottle cap to the charm bracelet.

Vito Genovese Is Regarded By Some Sources As Real Boss Of Crime And Rackets

NEW YORK—(INS)—Who is Vito Genovese?

His name crops up repeatedly in testimony before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee and is mentioned by underworld witnesses with awe and respect.

Although not so well known to the public as Frank Costello, Joe Adonis, Meyer Lansky and some others, Vito Genovese is regarded by some underworld sources as the real No. 1 boss of crime and rackets.

In the opinion of these sources, Genovese even outranks Costello, who often has been described as "the prime minister of the underworld."

Judge Samuel Leibowitz, who once tried Genovese for murder and who now is in charge of the Brooklyn grand jury investigating police graft and gambling, says:

"I have heard that Genovese is probably the most powerful single figure in the crime picture in America today."

District Attorney Miles McDonald of Brooklyn, who prosecuted Genovese on the murder charge, says that he has heard the same thing, but adds that of course he has no way of proving it.

The man with this fearsome reputation at present is living in quiet "retirement" in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., as a gentleman chicken farmer. His "estate" reportedly cost Genovese $40,000.

In other years, when he was presumably more active, Genovese maintained a luxurious apartment in sedate Washington Square, New York City.

If Genovese's professional reputation is all that they say it is, he has led a remarkably charmed life.

His record from 1920 to 1944, according to Department of Justice files, shows 11 arrests on such assorted charges as assault, murder, burglary, disorderly conduct and unlawful flight. But he escaped them all with "no disposition" or only light fines.

It is not known now how much evidence the Senate Crime Investigating Committee has on Genovese, but underworld witnesses from all sections of the country, testifying on interstate crime operations, have said that they either knew Genovese or knew his reputation.

In 1944 Genovese was indicted in Brooklyn for a murder committed in 1934. The victim was Ferdinand Boccia, known as The Shadow, a comparatively minor gambler and swindler.

When the indictment was returned Genovese had fled to his native Italy where, during the war, he turned up on the staff of the Allied military government, serving under Col. Charles Poletti, former lieutenant-governor and interim governor of New York, then regional commissioner of the Allied military government in Rome.

Brought back to New York to face trial for first degree murder, Genovese won a directed verdict of acquittal, the key witnesses against him having died or disappeared. One died under mysterious circumstances in prison.

The principal prosecution witness, whose testimony could not be corroborated, was Ernest Rupolo, alias The Hawk, an admitted professional killer.

The Hawk testified that he and others were engaged to kill Boccia and another designated victim, William Gallo.

The Hawk undertook the Gallo job, but bungled it, he said. At the first attempt his gun failed to go off. On the next he shot Gallo in the head. The Hawk said, and left him for dead.

But Gallo lived to testify against The Hawk, who was sentenced to a long term for attempted murder.

Describing the scene at an obscure Manhattan restaurant where the alleged murder plot was hatched, The Hawk testified that he met Genovese there.

Kenovese was introduced to him, the witness said, as "Don Vitone," meaning, he explained "The Great One."

Genovese, "The Great One," reportedly was one of the guests at the now famous charity dinner given by Costello in January, 1949, at the Copacabana night club in New York.

Genovese reportedly received a royal welcome that night—one befitting his reputed station in the underworld. The other guests at the dinner included New York judges and sundry other public officials and politicians.

Vito Genovese Is Regarded By Some Sources As Real Boss Of Crime And Rackets

NEW YORK—(INS)—Who is Vito Genovese?

His name crops up repeatedly in testimony before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee and is mentioned by underworld witnesses with awe and respect.

Although not so well known to the public as Frank Costello, Joe Adonis, Meyer Lansky and some others, Vito Genovese is regarded by some underworld sources as the real No. 1 boss of crime and rackets.

In the opinion of these sources, Genovese even outranks Costello, who often has been described as "the prime minister of the underworld."

Judge Samuel Leibowitz, who once tried Genovese for murder and who now is in charge of the Brooklyn grand jury investigating police graft and gambling, says:

"I have heard that Genovese is probably the most powerful single figure in the crime picture in America today."

District Attorney Miles McDonald of Brooklyn, who prosecuted Genovese on the murder charge, says that he has heard the same thing, but adds that of course he has no way of proving it.

The man with this fearsome reputation at present is living in quiet "retirement" in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., as a gentleman chicken farmer. His "estate" reportedly cost Genovese $40,000.

In other years, when he was presumably more active, Genovese maintained a luxurious apartment in sedate Washington Square, New York City.

If Genovese's professional reputation is all that they say it is, he has led a remarkably charmed life.

His record from 1920 to 1944, according to Department of Justice files, shows 11 arrests on such assorted charges as assault, murder, burglary, disorderly conduct and unlawful flight. But he escaped them all with "no disposition" or only light fines.

It is not known now how much evidence the Senate Crime Investigating Committee has on Genovese, but underworld witnesses from all sections of the country, testifying on interstate crime operations, have said that they either knew Genovese or knew his reputation.

In 1944 Genovese was indicted in Brooklyn for a murder committed in 1934. The victim was Ferdinand Boccia, known as The Shadow, a comparatively minor gambler and swindler.

When the indictment was returned Genovese had fled to his native Italy where, during the war, he turned up on the staff of the Allied military government, serving under Col. Charles Poletti, former lieutenant-governor and interim governor of New York, then regional commissioner of the Allied military government in Rome.

Brought back to New York to face trial for first degree murder, Genovese won a directed verdict of acquittal, the key witnesses against him having died or disappeared. One died under mysterious circumstances in prison.

The principal prosecution witness, whose testimony could not be corroborated, was Ernest Rupolo, alias The Hawk, an admitted professional killer.

The Hawk testified that he and others were engaged to kill Boccia and another designated victim, William Gallo.

The Hawk undertook the Gallo job, but bungled it, he said. At the first attempt his gun failed to go off. On the next he shot Gallo in the head. The Hawk said, and left him for dead.

But Gallo lived to testify against The Hawk, who was sentenced to a long term for attempted murder.

Describing the scene at an obscure Manhattan restaurant where the alleged murder plot was hatched, The Hawk testified that he met Genovese there.

Kenovese was introduced to him, the witness said, as "Don Vitone," meaning, he explained "The Great One."

Genovese, "The Great One," reportedly was one of the guests at the now famous charity dinner given by Costello in January, 1949, at the Copacabana night club in New York.

Genovese reportedly received a royal welcome that night—one befitting his reputed station in the underworld. The other guests at the dinner included New York judges and sundry other public officials and politicians.

Success On Imports

The problem of increasing imports to make them balance with exports has disappeared, for the time at least. It is reported that imports are beginning to exceed exports. There are both temporary and long-range reasons for this. There has been a steady campaign, since the inception of the Marshall Plan, to build up the permanent import trade. The war in Korea has increased the interest of American concerns in buying both materials and manufactured goods from foreign sources. War conditions also have caused some curtailment in the offerings of American goods for export, since there has been more demand for them on the domestic market.

The last-named factor has already become serious enough to cause some concern for businesses which rely on foreign markets for disposal of a regular proportion of their output. They foresee possible permanent loss of some of this export market, just at the time when foreign trade is regaining its health, if foreign orders must be turned down for lack of goods. They also fear damage to the export trade if advantage is taken of the sellers market to tighten credit, raise prices or get rid of inferior merchandise. These fears are reasonable.

The same fears also need to be applied to the domestic market. Americans will be no less unhappy than foreign buyers if sellers take advantage of them in the war market. Many businesses plan to allot available goods to the domestic and foreign markets on a quota system, in order to hold as much of both markets as possible. To save future uproars when it is discovered that goods scarce here are being shipped abroad, business should carefully and fully explain how and why this is being done, for the long-range health of American business.

The market basket may bring home meat, butter, eggs, beans, spinach and potatoes, but never, in the youngster's opinion, anything to eat.

Life On Mars

Is there life on Mars? This question has been asked at least since the last century when Giovanni Schiaparelli, an Italian astronomer, announced that he had found "canali" on Mars. The word really means "channels," which would indicate nothing as to their nature, but was generally rendered "canals," which would imply the existence of intelligent builders. Ever since then, astronomers have battled over the habitability of Mars, the leading proponents being American. Notable among them was the late Precival Lowell, whose observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, benefited from an atmosphere of marvelous visibility.

Now a new summary of the world's knowledge on the subject has been published, "The Planet Mars," by Gerard de Vaucouleurs, a French astronomer. He emphasizes the difficulties in the way of observation. He assumes that we shall never be able to see Mars through a good telescope as well as we can see the moon through good binoculars or even with the naked eye. There do appear, however, to be growing and receding ice caps at the poles, deserts, and some signs of vegetation. Vaucouleurs leaves the question opens as to whether there are canals, or whether these markings are merely hallucinations. He does list, however, the belief that the Martian atmosphere lacks oxygen. If intelligent beings do live there, as H. G. Wells and Orson Welles helped many to believe, they must be quite different from human beings.

In 1956 Mars will be nearer the earth than it has been for many years. Perhaps the astronomers can then get some information.

The way some brag of the accomplishments of their ancestors, it might be thought they had chosen them personally.

New Blitzkrieg Idea

The German campaigns of 1940 gave the English language a new word, "blitzkrieg." When the German armies conquered the Netherlands in four days and Denmark in one, and knocked over France as if it had been a rotten tree, they amazed the world with their achievements. The lack of effective resistance on the part of the Allies was attributed to overwhelming enemy numerical superiority in guns and armor.

This idea is now debated. Writing in a professional military magazine, the Armored Cavalry Journal, Garrett Underhill makes the startling statement that the Germans had less than 2,800 tanks. The French alone had 3,600, and the British and the Belgians added to this number. Moreover, he says the Allied tanks were more powerful in guns and armor. What gave the Germans their speedy victory was not the overwhelming mass of their tanks, but superiority in the three T's, training, tactics and technique, to which spirit might be added, according to Underhill.

Later, American Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., showed that the blitzkrieg was no exclusive German property. He rolled over the Germans as they had done earlier in the war over the French and Belgians. The Russian advances in the last year of the war showed that they too had profited by the German lesson.

The Nazi panzers were no secret weapon. They had been discussed for years in professional military journals. So too in the next war, if there is one, the chief weapon is likely to be something that all well informed strategists know about. Success will be due to superior training for the average soldier, and superior employment of the weapons at hand.

A lost-and-found report says ten times as many women as men lose umbrellas. But then which usually has an umbrella when it rains?

Pentagon Abundance

There may be scarcities of materials and of manpower, the military services may not be as big as some might wish and the weapons not as potent as could be desired, but there is one element of defense in which the nation now surpasses the peak period of World War II. There are more defense employes in the fabulous Pentagon Building in Washington—27,500 of them—than there ever were during the war. There are so many, in fact, that 1,600 new automobile parking spaces are needed to serve the building.

There is parking space for 6,700 cars, and this was enough during the war. Then, the number of cars driven to the Pentagon as well as elsewhere was reduced by scarcity of gasoline. Apparently one shortage Americans need never fear is shortage of government employes.

Taking The Temperature

THE CLINICAL thermometer is an instrument important to the physician because it designates whether or not fever exists. The gadget is easy to use and comes in a convenient holder, smaller than the average pen or pencil. This is in sharp contrast to the large thermometers of years ago which Sir Lauder Brunton humorously compared to a gun carried under the arm by physicians.

The history of the thermometer dates back to Sanctorius, who invented the device late in the 16th century. It was used mainly by physicists until after 1867 when Clifford Allbutt designed a short and practical instrument. The thermometer had been recommended in illness long before that time but it was of little value because of the size, the length of time it took to register, and the fact that only armpit readings were possible.

The modern instrument is a small glass tube, enlarged at one end. It contains mercury which expands on contact with heat and rises in a graduated column to a height corresponding to the degrees of heat. On the outside of the tube, manufacturers have etched a graduated scale beginning with 92 degrees and ending at 108 degrees F. Variations are common, depending upon the brand. As a rule there is an arrow or special mark to designate 98.6 degrees F. This is an arbitrary dividing line because in most cases figures above this level indicate fever.

The temperature usually is taken by mouth; the instrument is inserted just below the tongue and the lips are closed gently over the glass tube. The rectal temperature which is one degree higher than the oral reading, gives more accurate readings and is preferred with infants, the unconscious and delirious, and anyone who is coughing or having difficulty in breathing. If malingering is suspected, rectal temperatures are taken. Every physician has had experience with this situation; the patient has a high temperature but the cause is not apparent. He looks well and feels cool, and all the tests are normal. But when the thermometer is used by a nurse standing by the bedside, the level generally is normal. The malingerer ultimately confesses and admits rubbing the end of the thermometer briskly against the sheets to create friction or placing the device against a hot water bottle or in warm water. Many malingerers are young girls who thrive on the attention they are receiving from their family and friends; other malingerers are adults who enjoy being hospitalized.

Thermometers are fragile and easily broken. They should be kept in a hard case and protected by cotton. They are readily cleansed with soap and cool water; hot water breaks them.

Elevations in temperature are not always caused by disease. Readings above 98.6 degrees are not unusual after exercise, eating, or emotional excitement. False "fevers" are obtained after drinking warm water or eating hot food. In the absence of a thermometer the hand is an excellent substitute; experts can tell a difference of one-half a degree and almost all of us have no difficulty in detecting fever by feeling the forehead.

LEG CRAMPS

G. W. writes: I suffer from leg cramps which wake me up at night. Is this serious?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The condition is common and often occurs in the absence of circulatory changes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cramping of the extremities.

BABY IS O. K.

Mrs. E. writes: If a pregnant woman suffers from toxemia will the child be sickly?

REPLY

No, as toxemia in the mother has no effect on the baby if it survives. The condition may lead to miscarriage, however.

REMAINS OF DISEASE

J. F. writes: What is a residual of a disease?

REPLY

What is left after the malady has run its course. Examples are a heart defect following rheumatic fever and paralyzed limbs after polio.

SPINAL COLUMN DEFECT

A. F. R. writes: Will you explain a spina bifida back?

REPLY

This is a spinal defect due to failure of the outward portion of the vertebrae to meet in the midline. As a result, a part of the spinal cord is not covered with bone. In many instances no harm is done but in others the canal bulges and is in serious danger of being injured.

MENDED HEART

B. Y. writes: Can a heart wound be repaired with stitches?

REPLY

Yes. This procedure is now relatively safe because certain improvements have been made in technic and the administration of an anesthetic for this purpose.

Hormonized Chickens Can Produce Sterile Humans; Americans Consume Dangerous Chemicals Daily; Industrialists Request Price Controls

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When you eat a chicken neck from a capon which has been fed on a certain kind of fattening hormone, you run the risk of becoming sterile. This is one of the findings of the House committee to investigate the use of chemicals in food products, which has been quitely probing the effect of all sorts of chemicals now artificially injected into our food.

In the case of chicken necks, it was revealed that some poultry farmers use a hormone called stilbesterol to fatten chickens in a hurry. When injected in the neck, this hormone makes an old rooster not only fat but tender.

The effect on the human being, if he eats the neck, however, can induce sterility. Congressman Arthur Miller of Nebraska, himself a doctor, told the committee that the mink growers of Illinois had fed chicken and turkey heads from poultry so treated to their mink, only to have them become sterile.

As a result, Canada prohibits the use of stilbesterol pellets in feeding poultry, Dr. Franklin Church Bing, chairman of the Chemical Committee of the American Public Health Association told the congressmen.

Gives Dogs Fits

The committee, headed by able James J. Delaney, New York Democrat, has heard testimony from some of the nation's top chemists, all of whom urge the plugging of present loopholes in the Pure Food and Drug Act to prevent the use of harmful chemicals.

Their testimony revealed that while some chemicals are harmless, others are so poisonous that they produce ulcers, and even disintegrate the human teeth.

One example of a dangerous food ingredient is agene, or nitrogen trichloride, a chemical used to age flour. Although used for more than 30 years, it was not until three years ago that an English scientist proved the agene-treated bread produced epileptic fits in dogs. In recent months, the use of this chemical has been discontinued but not until after millions of people had eaten it.

The committee has developed a long list of dangerous chemicals—many of them consumed daily. The list includes:

1. Mineral Oil — Used in salad dressings and on popcorn as a substitute for nutritious fats was found to interfere with the absorption of oil-soluble vitamins and generally upset the human digestive system.
2. Monochloracetic acid—Used as a preservative for wines and a number of food products. Its use in an orange soft drink recently caused numerous illnesses.
3. Dulcin—An artificial sweetener, used as a sugar substitute by diabetics and recently discovered to be toxic.

Under our present pure food and drug laws, the government is not permitted to take action against the use of chemicals until after the food has been on the market; then only after protracted investigation and hearings. As a result, according to the scientists testifying before Congress, the American public has become a nation of experimental guinea pigs.

Congressman Delaney now proposes to have these chemicals tested before their use, not afterward.

Capital News Capsules

Industry Requests Controls—Charles Wilson of General Electric and Henry Ford II read the riot act to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and Stuart Symington on high prices of raw materials at the recent mobilization meeting at Sea Island, Ga. They wanted to know when the government was going to do something about high prices. It was shortly after this that Secretary Sawyer came out emphatically against voluntary controls.

His Son Tortured—U. S. Ambassador David Bruce in Paris has complained vigorously to the French government about French Defense Minister Jules Moch. Bruce told French Premier Rene Pleven at a secret conference that the U.S.A. believes Moch's anti-German attitude is threatening to wreck all plans for defending Europe against communism; that Moch is being unnecessarily tough about Germany because his son was tortured to death by the Nazi Gestapo during the war. Premier Pleven promised to get Moch to soften his opposition. (Many Americans think Moch is right.)

Diplomatic Pouch

Mitsuo Fuchida, the Japanese naval pilot who led the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, has been converted to christianity. He was converted, he says, by a desire to prevent another Pearl Harbor . . . . Real reason for the sudden $35,000,000 loan to the Philippines was because the Philippine government didn't have enough money to pay its soldiers. Without the loan there would have been revolution. (Philippine teachers haven't been paid in four months—but teachers don't have guns) . . . . General MacArthur now estimates the Chinese Reds are holding a total of 300,000 men in reserve—not one million—as frequently reported . . . Prime Minister Nehru's attempt to make peace with the Chinese Reds is partly based on fear of the commies inside India. Practically every major union in India is loaded with them. . . . . U. S. Ambassador Dunn has chided the Italian government for trying to establish diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communists at a time when they are threatening world peace. Dunn told Foreign Minister Sforza that the Italian government's announcement shocked the United States.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

SECRETARY of Defense George Marshall and Under-Secretary Robert Lovett are now engaged in the Herculean task of trying to save a full $15 billion a year in defense expenditures. The Marshall-Lovett goal is to reduce the level of defense spending from the colossal $55 billion a year currently projected to $40 billion and perhaps less.

This is economy, and with a vengeance. But it is economy of a very different sort from the "economy" of the unlamented Louis Johnson. The difference is really very simple. The Johnson program was based on the delusion that any substantial increase in military expenditures would almost instantly cause the American economic structure to come apart like the one-hoss-shay. Thus the whole emphasis in the Defense Department was on holding spending to the arbitrary Johnson limit, rather than on providing the combat potential needed for survival.

Lovett and Marshall, by contrast, have now put the horse in front of the cart. They have asked first what combat power the United States must have. They have accepted the answer—a twenty-division Army, an Air Force expanded as rapidly as possible toward 90 groups, a Navy in a state of war readiness, with a much more powerful air arm and marine force. Only when this was established did the Marshall-Lovett team take a good, hard look at the price in men and money. And as a result of this good hard look, they have demanded that the same combat power be delivered with substantially fewer men and $15 billion less in money.

Induced A Neurosis

The fact is that the Johnson program, because it was based on a delusion, induced a sort of neurosis in the military. Every responsible military planner was perfectly aware, long before Korea, that the combat power of the United States was totally inadequate in view of the world situation. But the idea that the economic survival of the United States was at stake had been do drilled into them, that even after Korea, the first estimate of requirements was held to $18 billion.

It was not until about the beginning of August that the military chiefs suddenly woke up to the fact that money was no longer the first consideration. Then the neurosis began, as it were, to work in reverse. It was then that what has since become known as "Operation Paperclip" began. Every conceivable pet project, which had hitherto been no more than a gleam in some frustrated general officer's eye, was hastily unearthed, dusted off, and approved. Cost estimates mounted as if jet-propelled, to the $55 billion-a-year level, to support a military establishment of over 3,000,000 men.

Now Marshall and Lovett have demanded an end to "Operation Paperclip" and a completely new start. The nature of the problem which confronts them is illustrated by the row now smouldering between the Air Force and the Army. As the Army is now organized, a twenty-division ground force would mean an army of about a million and a half men, or half the contemplated total force. And because the Army, which has been living on its World War II fat, must be re-equipped almost from scratch, this in turn would mean that the Army would take upwards of half the Marshall-Lovett $40 billion budget.

Kremlin Has Big Potential

With the navy taking its share of the remainder, this would leave neither enough money nor enough men for a rapid build-up towards an Air Force of at least 90 groups, which all authorities agree is now essential to American security. Moreover, Air Force men angrily assert, during the period of mounting danger which confronts the Western alliance, the Kremlin, with a mobilization potential of 300 divisions, is not going to be deterred from adventures by a twenty-division American army. The Kremlin will be deterred, if at all, by crushing American strategic air superiority.

The answer is suggested by a single set of figures. The Red Army's "divisional slice"—the number of men in uniform required to maintain a single Russian division in the field—is 22,000 men at war strength. The comparable American figure is well over 70,000 men. The same contrast applies equally, if not more, in the case of the Air Force and the Navy.

Obviously the answer is that all three services must deliver much more actual fighting power per man committed and per dollar spent. This is precisely the answer which Marshall and Lovett are now sternly demanding. And because they have considered first, the job which must be done, and only second, the men and dollars required to do the job, the answer they are demanding represents true, rather than false, economy.

Yet one thing more needs to be said. With Communist China now apparently wholly committed in Korea, any fool can see that a third world war is at least possible. And any fool can also see that the American armed forces must have at all costs the wherewithal to fight, and eventually to win such a war. Everything else, even true economy, must be subordinated to this.

More Sweeping Controls Are Likely In U. S. Soon

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — The mood of Washington often shifts with the winds of international affairs. Just now there is apprehension and genuine fear that the Chinese Communists, with Soviet connivance, may be trying to start a large-scale war in the Far East.

A short time ago, when it looked as if the North Korean opposition was being mopped up by the U. N. military forces, there was some concern here lest the armament program become bogged down through complacency.

The government as yet has not succeeded in impressing upon the country that a long-range rearmament program is in process which must necessarily cut back goods for civilian use and take more and more raw materials for military purposes.

Decisions Postponed

The political campaign which ended last week caused the postponement of many decisions that are involved in the conversion of the peacetime economy to a new pattern.

There is one difference, however, between 1940 and the present period. In this instance, more time is being given for adjustment—more time for individual producers to arrange for the allocation of their supplies.

But this very effort to do the job in a more orderly way than before is bringing its complications. It is obvious that the idea of letting each seller of a product in short supply determine how much he will give to particular customers will inevitably raise a howl from those who are not getting the amounts they want. Those businesses which are engaging in war work for the first time will be complaining if they find themselves up against a discriminatory situation because they happen not to have established relations with suppliers.

Predictions are being made that the wartime method of allocation, such as the "controlled materials plan," will have to be applied by the middle of next year, if not sooner.

What is happening, of course, is that the basis for a peacetime system of control has not been laid by the international situation. The fluctations in the headlines make the problem more and more difficult daily. Plainly the President will have to call in the Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress soon and, after an agreement is reached as to the size of the military program, the essential facts will have to be given to the country.

Already there are industrial layoffs due to shortages of materials. While the statisticians and the economists can explain all this away by the statement that defense orders will be coming soon to take up the slack, the interim period will not be made any less painful.

The truth is the United States doesn't have an economy that can be managed either by the government or by private industry in such a way as to avoid these gaps. Some deflationary influences will set in even as more inflationary influences are at work.

Affect Employment Picture

It is significant that the cost-of-living index is receding slightly, and this may apply a restraint on the demands for wage increases which in themselves have been adding to the inflationary spiral.

But it is growing more and more apparent every day that the shortages of materials and the tightening of credit are directly and indirectly affecting the employment picture. While much of the idle manpower will be absorbed, there is always the geographical factor—new businesses with defense orders do not arise in the very localities where the layoffs occur. Home-owners do not move to other areas instantaneously.

Unquestionably in a few weeks the members of Congress will be hearing from their constituents about the manner in which controls are applied, and the problem will then be to find some more equitable system of allocation than the method now being used, where the producers make the decisions. So long as the complaint are few in number, the present system will drift on but those who are familiar with wartime experience say it is only a question of months when a more drastic and sweeping pattern of controls will have to be imposed.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The New York Pattern

A NUMBER of correspondents have asked me to explain the curiosities of the New York election where a Republican is elected governor, a Democrat to the United States Senate, and an independent mayor of the city. It apparently forms no pattern to those who live elsewhere.

First of all, New York City is as large in population as some European nations. Among its 8,000,000 inhabitants are 350,000 Puerto Ricans; 600,000 Negroes; more Jews than in Israel; nearly as many Italians as in Rome.

These folks are at various stages of assimilation. In my youth, the Germans were a group apart, but they seem to have disappeared as such. There is no such thing as a German vote. That is fast becoming true of the Irish, who are no longer separatist in their attitude. The Italians, on the other hand, are in a mood to fight for recognition.

While Fiorello LaGuardia was generally regarded as the first Italian to rise in New York politics and to overcome the lead of the Irish, he was actually a man of so mixed an origin and so varied a personality that he stands out an exception. His father was an Italian bandmaster with the American Army in Arizona; his mother was a Venetian Jewess; his wife was of German origin. The "Little Flower" seems to have spoken all languages and to have been a part of all cultures. He was first sent to Congress from an Italian district that was soon infiltrated by Negroes and is now Puerto Rican. He could speak Yiddish like a Warsaw Jew and Serbian like a Yugoslav. Not a Catholic, he was really outside Italian culture; a Protestant, he was outside Jewish culture. Yet, he belonged to all these peoples and many others. Maybe that is why he was so confused that he was a Republican socialist.

In the recent election, three Italians ran for mayor. All of them had been born in Italy. Each of them had achieved important public offices. Two were Tammany Democrats; one a liberal Republican.

In New York City, it is difficult to hold political parties together. The city is really a congeries of small neighborhoods which vary greatly. For instance, the district in which I live used to be Republican and in it lived quite well-to-do people like Charles M. Schwab, whose palace has just been turned into a tenement. Now this district is largely Jewish—in fact, one of the most Jewish districts on the island of Manhattan with a large body of recent refugees. Also Spanish-Americans of the middle class have moved into it. Our representative in Congress is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who does not live in the district and pays no attention to it.

Such a district is really without political complexion. It is neither Republican nor Democrat; neither for private enterprise nor for socialism. It votes for individuals. No matter what the issues, Herbert Lehman and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., can always carry it. Opposition is futile.

It is such district as this which form the curious complex of New York politics. No party boss can possibly tell in advance what can happen in them.

It is in this congeries of peoples, races, religions, European and South American associations and affiliations, a candidate has to find a common denominator which will make his election possible. From a very practical political standpoint the situation so difficult that most men dread to step into it.

Into all this move two tough groups: 1. The racketeers; 2. The professional labor leaders.

The racketeer in New York is not a tough. He is usually a rich, soft-spoken, conservatively dressed big business operator. His associations are with so-called respectable citizens whom the racketeer lets into his businesses. Sometimes these racketeers spend huge sums on charities and are given testimonial dinners, attended by top citizens. Candidates short of funds can always get a sizable contribution from these men with no strings attached. Why atach strings when there are ways of exercising power quietly, even in a genteel manner?

The professional labor leader in New York operates politically and openly. He announces his support and candidates vie for it. He also attaches no strings, but by constant activity, by widespread public relations, and the free expenditures of money, he brings a terrifying pressure upon ambitious public officials. It is a curious place.

Success On Imports

The problem of increasing imports to make them balance with exports has disappeared, for the time at least. It is reported that imports are beginning to exceed exports. There are both temporary and long-range reasons for this. There has been a steady campaign, since the inception of the Marshall Plan, to build up the permanent import trade. The war in Korea has increased the interest of American concerns in buying both materials and manufactured goods from foreign sources. War conditions also have caused some curtailment in the offerings of American goods for export, since there has been more demand for them on the domestic market.

The last-named factor has already become serious enough to cause some concern for businesses which rely on foreign markets for disposal of a regular proportion of their output. They foresee possible permanent loss of some of this export market, just at the time when foreign trade is regaining its health, if foreign orders must be turned down for lack of goods. They also fear damage to the export trade if advantage is taken of the sellers market to tighten credit, raise prices or get rid of inferior merchandise. These fears are reasonable.

The same fears also need to be applied to the domestic market. Americans will be no less unhappy than foreign buyers if sellers take advantage of them in the war market. Many businesses plan to allot available goods to the domestic and foreign markets on a quota system, in order to hold as much of both markets as possible. To save future uproars when it is discovered that goods scarce here are being shipped abroad, business should carefully and fully explain how and why this is being done, for the long-range health of American business.

The market basket may bring home meat, butter, eggs, beans, spinach and potatoes, but never, in the youngster's opinion, anything to eat.

Life On Mars

Is there life on Mars? This question has been asked at least since the last century when Giovanni Schiaparelli, an Italian astronomer, announced that he had found "canali" on Mars. The word really means "channels," which would indicate nothing as to their nature, but was generally rendered "canals," which would imply the existence of intelligent builders. Ever since then, astronomers have battled over the habitability of Mars, the leading proponents being American. Notable among them was the late Precival Lowell, whose observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, benefited from an atmosphere of marvelous visibility.

Now a new summary of the world's knowledge on the subject has been published, "The Planet Mars," by Gerard de Vaucouleurs, a French astronomer. He emphasizes the difficulties in the way of observation. He assumes that we shall never be able to see Mars through a good telescope as well as we can see the moon through good binoculars or even with the naked eye. There do appear, however, to be growing and receding ice caps at the poles, deserts, and some signs of vegetation. Vaucouleurs leaves the question opens as to whether there are canals, or whether these markings are merely hallucinations. He does list, however, the belief that the Martian atmosphere lacks oxygen. If intelligent beings do live there, as H. G. Wells and Orson Welles helped many to believe, they must be quite different from human beings.

In 1956 Mars will be nearer the earth than it has been for many years. Perhaps the astronomers can then get some information.

The way some brag of the accomplishments of their ancestors, it might be thought they had chosen them personally.

New Blitzkrieg Idea

The German campaigns of 1940 gave the English language a new word, "blitzkrieg." When the German armies conquered the Netherlands in four days and Denmark in one, and knocked over France as if it had been a rotten tree, they amazed the world with their achievements. The lack of effective resistance on the part of the Allies was attributed to overwhelming enemy numerical superiority in guns and armor.

This idea is now debated. Writing in a professional military magazine, the Armored Cavalry Journal, Garrett Underhill makes the startling statement that the Germans had less than 2,800 tanks. The French alone had 3,600, and the British and the Belgians added to this number. Moreover, he says the Allied tanks were more powerful in guns and armor. What gave the Germans their speedy victory was not the overwhelming mass of their tanks, but superiority in the three T's, training, tactics and technique, to which spirit might be added, according to Underhill.

Later, American Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., showed that the blitzkrieg was no exclusive German property. He rolled over the Germans as they had done earlier in the war over the French and Belgians. The Russian advances in the last year of the war showed that they too had profited by the German lesson.

The Nazi panzers were no secret weapon. They had been discussed for years in professional military journals. So too in the next war, if there is one, the chief weapon is likely to be something that all well informed strategists know about. Success will be due to superior training for the average soldier, and superior employment of the weapons at hand.

A lost-and-found report says ten times as many women as men lose umbrellas. But then which usually has an umbrella when it rains?

Pentagon Abundance

There may be scarcities of materials and of manpower, the military services may not be as big as some might wish and the weapons not as potent as could be desired, but there is one element of defense in which the nation now surpasses the peak period of World War II. There are more defense employes in the fabulous Pentagon Building in Washington—27,500 of them—than there ever were during the war. There are so many, in fact, that 1,600 new automobile parking spaces are needed to serve the building.

There is parking space for 6,700 cars, and this was enough during the war. Then, the number of cars driven to the Pentagon as well as elsewhere was reduced by scarcity of gasoline. Apparently one shortage Americans need never fear is shortage of government employes.

Taking The Temperature

THE CLINICAL thermometer is an instrument important to the physician because it designates whether or not fever exists. The gadget is easy to use and comes in a convenient holder, smaller than the average pen or pencil. This is in sharp contrast to the large thermometers of years ago which Sir Lauder Brunton humorously compared to a gun carried under the arm by physicians.

The history of the thermometer dates back to Sanctorius, who invented the device late in the 16th century. It was used mainly by physicists until after 1867 when Clifford Allbutt designed a short and practical instrument. The thermometer had been recommended in illness long before that time but it was of little value because of the size, the length of time it took to register, and the fact that only armpit readings were possible.

The modern instrument is a small glass tube, enlarged at one end. It contains mercury which expands on contact with heat and rises in a graduated column to a height corresponding to the degrees of heat. On the outside of the tube, manufacturers have etched a graduated scale beginning with 92 degrees and ending at 108 degrees F. Variations are common. depending upon the brand. As a rule there is an arrow or special mark to designate 98.6 degrees F. This is an arbitrary dividing line because in most cases figures above this level indicate fever.

The temperature usually is taken by mouth; the instrument is inserted just below the tongue and the lips are closed gently over the glass tube. The rectal temperature which is one degree higher than the oral reading, gives more accurate readings and is preferred with infants, the unconscious and delirious, and anyone who is coughing or having difficulty in breathing. If malingering is suspected, rectal temperatures are taken. Every physician has had experience with this situation; the patient has a high temperature but the cause is not apparent. He looks well and feels cool, and all the tests are normal. But when the thermometer is used by a nurse standing by the bedside, the level generally is normal. The malingerer ultimately confesses and admits rubbing the end of the thermometer briskly against the sheets to create friction or placing the device against a hot water bottle or in warm water. Many malingerers are young girls who thrive on the attention they are receiving from their family and friends; other malingerers are adults who enjoy being hospitalized.

Thermometers are fragile and easily broken. They should be kept in a hard case and protected by cotton. They are readily cleansed with soap and cool water; hot water breaks them.

Elevations in temperature are not always caused by disease. Readings above 98.6 degrees are not unusual after exercise, eating, or emotional excitement. False "fevers" are obtained after drinking warm water or eating hot food. In the absence of a thermometer the hand is an excellent substitute; experts can tell a difference of one-half a degree and almost all of us have no difficulty in detecting fever by feeling the forehead.

LEG CRAMPS

G. W. writes: I suffer from leg cramps which wake me up at night. Is this serious?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The condition is common and often occurs in the absence of circulatory changes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cramping of the extremities.

BABY IS O. K.

Mrs. E. writes: If a pregnant woman suffers from toxemia will the child be sickly?

REPLY

No, as toxemia in the mother has no effect on the baby if it survives. The condition may lead to miscarriage, however.

REMAINS OF DISEASE

J. F. writes: What is a residual of a disease?

REPLY

What is left after the malady has run its course. Examples are a heart defect following rheumatic fever and paralyzed limbs after polio.

SPINAL COLUMN DEFECT

A. F. R. writes: Will you explain a spina bifida back?

REPLY

This is a spinal defect due to failure of the outward portion of the vertebrae to meet in the midline. As a result, a part of the spinal cord is not covered with bone. In many instances no harm is done but in others the canal bulges and is in serious danger of being injured.

MENDED HEART

B. Y. writes: Can a heart wound be repaired with stitches?

REPLY

Yes. This procedure is now relatively safe because certain improvements have been made in technic and the administration of an anesthetic for this purpose.

Hormonized Chickens Can Produce Sterile Humans; Americans Consume Dangerous Chemicals Daily; Industrialists Request Price Controls

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When you eat a chicken neck from a capon which has been fed on a certain kind of fattening hormone, you run the risk of becoming sterile. This is one of the findings of the House committee to investigate the use of chemicals in food products, which has been quitely probing the effect of all sorts of chemicals now artificially injected into our food.

In the case of chicken necks, it was revealed that some poultry farmers use a hormone called stilbesterol to fatten chickens in a hurry. When injected in the neck, this hormone makes an old rooster not only fat but tender.

The effect on the human being, if he eats the neck, however, can induce sterility. Congressman Arthur Miller of Nebraska, himself a doctor, told the committee that the mink growers of Illinois had fed chicken and turkey heads from poultry so treated to their mink, only to have them become sterile.

As a result, Canada prohibits the use of stilbesterol pellets in feeding poultry, Dr. Franklin Church Bing, chairman of the Chemical Committee of the American Public Health Association told the congressmen.

Gives Dogs Fits

The committee, headed by able James J. Delaney, New York Democrat, has heard testimony from some of the nation's top chemists, all of whom urge the plugging of present loopholes in the Pure Food and Drug Act to prevent the use of harmful chemicals.

Their testimony revealed that while some chemicals are harmless, others are so poisonous that they produce ulcers, and even disintegrate the human teeth.

One example of a dangerous food ingredient is agene, or nitrogen trichloride, a chemical used to age flour. Although used for more than 30 years, it was not until three years ago that an English scientist proved the agene-treated bread produced epileptic fits in dogs. In recent months, the use of this chemical has been discontinued but not until after millions of people had eaten it.

The committee has developed a long list of dangerous chemicals—many of them consumed daily. The list includes:

1. Mineral Oil — Used in salad dressings and on popcorn as a substitute for nutritious fats was found to interfere with the absorption of oil-soluble vitamins and generally upset the human digestive system.
2. Monochloracetic acid—Used as a preservative for wines and a number of food products. Its use in an orange soft drink recently caused numerous illnesses.
3. Dulcin—An artificial sweetener, used as a sugar substitute by diabetics and recently discovered to be toxic.

Under our present pure food and drug laws, the government is not permitted to take action against the use of chemicals until after the food has been on the market; then only after protracted investigation and hearings. As a result, according to the scientists testifying before Congress, the American public has become a nation of experimental guinea pigs.

Congressman Delaney now proposes to have these chemicals tested before their use, not afterward.

Industry Requests Controls—Charles Wilson of General Electric and Henry Ford II read the riot act to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and Stuart Symington on high prices of raw materials at the recent mobilization meeting at Sea Island, Ga. They wanted to know when the government was going to do something about high prices. It was shortly after this that Secretary Sawyer came out emphatically against voluntary controls.

His Son Tortured—U. S. Ambassador David Bruce in Paris has complained vigorously to the French government about French Defense Minister Jules Moch. Bruce told French Premier Rene Pleven at a secret conference that the U.S.A. believes Moch's anti-German attitude is threatening to wreck all plans for defending Europe against communism; that Moch is being unnecessarily tough about Germany because his son was tortured to death by the Nazi Gestapo during the war. Premier Pleven promised to get Moch to soften his opposition. (Many Americans think Moch is right.)

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

SECRETARY of Defense George Marshall and Under-Secretary Robert Lovett are now engaged in the Herculean task of trying to save a full $15 billion a year in defense expenditures. The Marshall-Lovett goal is to reduce the level of defense spending from the colossal $55 billion a year currently projected to $40 billion and perhaps less.

This is economy, and with a vengeance. But it is economy of a very different sort from the "economy" of the unlamented Louis Johnson. The difference is really very simple. The Johnson program was based on the delusion that any substantial increase in military expenditures would almost instantly cause the American economic structure to come apart like the one-hoss-shay. Thus the whole emphasis in the Defense Department was on holding spending to the arbitrary Johnson limit, rather than on providing the combat potential needed for survival.

Lovett and Marshall, by contrast, have now put the horse in front of the cart. They have asked first what combat power the United States must have. They have accepted the answer—a twenty-division Army, an Air Force expanded as rapidly as possible toward 90 groups, a Navy in a state of war readiness, with a much more powerful air arm and marine force. Only when this was established did the Marshall-Lovett team take a good, hard look at the price in men and money. And as a result of this good hard look, they have demanded that the same combat power be delivered with substantially fewer men and $15 billion less in money.

Induced A Neurosis

The fact is that the Johnson program, because it was based on a delusion, induced a sort of neurosis in the military. Every responsible military planner was perfectly aware, long before Korea, that the combat power of the United States was totally inadequate in view of the world situation. But the idea that the economic survival of the United States was at stake had been do drilled into them, that even after Korea, the first estimate of requirements was held to $18 billion.

It was not until about the beginning of August that the military chiefs suddenly woke up to the fact that money was no longer the first consideration. Then the neurosis began, as it were, to work in reverse. It was then that what has since become known as "Operation Paperclip" began. Every conceivable pet project, which had hitherto been no more than a gleam in some frustrated general officer's eye, was hastily unearthed, dusted off, and approved. Cost estimates mounted as if jet-propelled, to the $55 billion-a-year level, to support a military establishment of over 3,000,000 men.

Now Marshall and Lovett have demanded an end to "Operation Paperclip" and a completely new start. The nature of the problem which confronts them is illustrated by the row now smouldering between the Air Force and the Army. As the Army is now organized, a twenty-division ground force would mean an army of about a million and a half men, or half the contemplated total force. And because the Army, which has been living on its World War II fat, must be reequipped almost from scratch, this in turn would mean that the Army would take upwards of half the Marshall-Lovett $40 billion budget.

Kremlin Has Big Potential

With the navy taking its share of the remainder, this would leave neither enough money nor enough men for a rapid build-up towards an Air Force of at least 90 groups, which all authorities agree is now essential to American security. Moreover, Air Force men angrily assert, during the period of mounting danger which confronts the Western alliance, the Kremlin, with a mobilization potential of 300 divisions, is not going to be deterred from adventures by a twenty-division American army. The Kremlin will be deterred, if at all, by crushing American strategic air superiority.

The answer is suggested by a single set of figures. The Red Army's "divisional slice"—the number of men in uniform required to maintain a single Russian division in the field—is 22,000 men at war strength. The comparable American figure is well over 70,000 men. The same contrast applies equally, if not more, in the case of the Air Force and the Navy.

Obviously the answer is that all three services must deliver much more actual fighting power per man committed and per dollar spent. This is precisely the answer which Marshall and Lovett are now sternly demanding. And because they have considered first, the job which must be done, and only second, the men and dollars required to do the job, the answer they are demanding represents true, rather than false, economy.

Yet one thing more needs to be said. With Communist China now apparently wholly committed in Korea, any fool can see that a third world war is at least possible. And any fool can also see that the American armed forces must have at all costs the wherewithal to fight, and eventually to win such a war. Everything else, even true economy, must be subordinated to this.

More Sweeping Controls Are Likely In U. S. Soon

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — The mood of Washington often shifts with the winds of international affairs. Just now there is apprehension and genuine fear that the Chinese Communists, with Soviet connivance, may be trying to start a large-scale war in the Far East.

A short time ago, when it looked as if the North Korean opposition was being mopped up by the U. N. military forces, there was some concern here lest the armament program become bogged down through complacency.

The government as yet has not succeeded in impressing upon the country that a long-range rearmament program is in process which must necessarily cut back goods for civilian use and take more and more raw materials for military purposes.

Decisions Postponed

The political campaign which ended last week caused the postponement of many decisions that are involved in the conversion of the peacetime economy to a new pattern.

There is one difference, however, between 1940 and the present period. In this instance, more time is being given for adjustment—more time for individual producers to arrange for the allocation of their supplies.

But this very effort to do the job in a more orderly way than before is bringing its complications. It is obvious that the idea of letting each seller of a product in short supply determine how much he will give to particular customers will inevitably raise a howl from those who are not getting the amounts they want. Those businesses which are engaging in war work for the first time will be complaining if they find themselves up against a discriminatory situation because they happen not to have established relations with suppliers.

Predictions are being made that the wartime method of allocation, such as the "controlled materials plan," will have to be applied by the middle of next year, if not sooner.

What is happening, of course, is that the basis for a peacetime system of control has not been laid by the international situation. The fluctuations in the headlines make the problem more and more difficult daily. Plainly the President will have to call in the Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress soon and, after an agreement is reached as to the size of the military program, the essential facts will have to be given to the country.

Already there are industrial layoffs due to shortages of materials. While the statisticians and the economists can explain all this away by the statement that defense orders will be coming soon to take up the slack, the interim period will not be made any less painful.

The truth is the United States doesn't have an economy that can be managed either by the government or by private industry in such a way as to avoid these gaps. Some deflationary influences will set in even as more inflationary influences are at work.

Affect Employment Picture

It is significant that the cost-of-living index is receding slightly, and this may apply a restraint on the demands for wage increases which in themselves have been adding to the inflationary spiral.

But it is growing more and more apparent every day that the shortages of materials and the tightening of credit are directly and indirectly affecting the employment picture. While much of the idle manpower will be absorbed, there is always the geographical factor—new businesses with defense orders do not arise in the very localities where the layoffs occur. Home-owners do not move to other areas instantaneously.

Unquestionably in a few weeks the members of Congress will be hearing from their constituents about the manner in which controls are applied, and the problem will then be to find some more equitable system of allocation than the method now being used, where the producers make the decisions. So long as the complaint are few in number, the present system will drift on but those who are familiar with wartime experience say it is only a question of months when a more drastic and sweeping pattern of controls will have to be imposed.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The New York Pattern

A NUMBER of correspondents have asked me to explain the curiosities of the New York election where a Republican is elected governor, a Democrat to the United States Senate, and an independent mayor of the city. It apparently forms no pattern to those who live elsewhere.

First of all, New York City is as large in population as some European nations. Among its 8,000,000 inhabitants are 350,000 Puerto Ricans; 600,000 Negroes; more Jews than in Israel; nearly as many Italians as in Rome.

These folks are at various stages of assimilation. In my youth, the Germans were a group apart, but they seem to have disappeared as such. There is no such thing as a German vote. That is fast becoming true of the Irish, who are no longer separatist in their attitude. The Italians, on the other hand, are in a mood to fight for recognition.

While Fiorello LaGuardia was generally regarded as the first Italian to rise in New York politics and to overcome the lead of the Irish, he was actually a man of so mixed an origin and so varied a personality that he stands out an exception. His father was an Italian bandmaster with the American Army in Arizona; his mother was a Venetian Jewess; his wife was of German origin. The "Little Flower" seems to have spoken all languages and to have been a part of all cultures. He was first sent to Congress from an Italian district that was soon infiltrated by Negroes and is now Puerto Rican. He could speak Yiddish like a Warsaw Jew and Serbian like a Yugoslav. Not a Catholic, he was really outside Italian culture; a Protestant, he was outside Jewish culture. Yet, he belonged to all these peoples and many others. Maybe that is why he was so confused that he was a Republican socialist.

In the recent election, three Italians ran for mayor. All of them had been born in Italy. Each of them had achieved important public offices. Two were Tammany Democrats; one a liberal Republican.

In New York City, it is difficult to hold political parties together. The city is really a congeries of small neighborhoods which vary greatly. For instance, the district in which I live used to be Republican and in it lived quite well-to-do people like Charles M. Schwab, whose palace has just been turned into a tenement. Now this district is largely Jewish—in fact, one of the most Jewish districts on the island of Manhattan with a large body of recent refugees. Also Spanish-Americans of the middle class have moved into it. Our representative in Congress is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who does not live in the district and pays no attention to it.

Such a district is really without political complexion. It is neither Republican nor Democrat; neither for private enterprise nor for socialism. It votes for individuals. No matter what the issues, Herbert Lehman and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., can always carry it. Opposition is futile.

It is such district as this which form the curious complex of New York politics. No party boss can possibly tell in advance what can happen in them.

It is in this congeries of peoples, races, religions, European and South American associations and affiliations, a candidate has to find a common denominator which will make his election possible. From a very practical political standpoint the situation so difficult that most men dread to step into it.

Into all this move two tough groups: 1. The racketeers; 2. The professional labor leaders.

The racketeer in New York is not a tough. He is usually a rich, soft-spoken, conservatively dressed big business operator. His associations are with so-called respectable citizens whom the racketeer lets into his businesses. Sometimes these racketeers spend huge sums on charities and are given testimonial dinners, attended by top citizens. Candidates short of funds can always get a sizable contribution from these men with no strings attached. Why atach strings when there are ways of exercising power quietly, even in a genteel manner?

The professional labor leader in New York operates politically and openly. He announces his support and candidates vie for it. He also attaches no strings, but by constant activity, by widespread public relations, and the free expenditures of money, he brings a terrifying pressure upon ambitious public officials. It is a curious place.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—Sideglances at celebrities:

One of the more astonishing comebacks in theatrical history is being scored these days by 59-year-old Eddie Cantor, who, like Al Jolson before him, was pushed out of the spotlight by young men for a long time—and sprang back.

At an age when many men grope for the rocking chair and slippers, the saucer-eyed minstrel man is as full of beans as a two-year-old. His television show is a solid sock, and he made some kind of history during the 33-city one-man concert tour he is just completing.

In Toronto's Massey Hall, which seats 3,200, he sold out, then came back three days later and did even better—what with standees.

In Chicago he drew 4,000 to Medinah Temple at $10 a head, in Birmingham, with only a $4 top, he grossed $8,900. And he made two appearances at Carnegie Hall within a space of six months, which few of the very top long-haired stars would attempt, and played each time to turnaway crowds.

Eddie has turned out to be a one-man "South Pacific." Matter of fact, he has consistently outgrossed the all-time money-winner while on the road. His exhausing act, which somehow does not exhaust him, is a playback through his 40 years of show business—with songs, patter and anecdotes about the greats whose path he has crossed since his days on the lower east side of New York, when he was Izzy Iskowitz.

Cantor always leaves his audience with a little more than they brought into the theater. On the occasions when he gets around to talking about his trip to Israel, he is, to my mind, the best reporter on that land of any I've ever heard.

Speaking of Israel, if you want the drama, pathos and glory of the struggling rebirth of that land, you'd better pick up "Israel Revisited" by Ralph McGill, famed editor of the Atlanta Constitution.

"Israel Revisited" (Tupper and Love, Inc., Atlanta, $2) has an introduction by Billy Rose. McGill's keen eyes and ears have seen and heard why a land can presevere, surrounded by a hostile Arab world, though a third of its people have been there less than two years, and its population ranges from unlettered nomads from Yemen to brilliant American scholars.

A new international record for flared nostrils and elegant "howdjadoos" should be set next Tuesday in New York when all the existing "men of distinction" who have not joined the wax museum, or succumbed from alcoholism, hold their first annual party.

The story of how a New York Journal American reporter, Elizabeth Beecher, battled in behalf of a bedraggled young murderer in whom she believed, will be featured on NBC's interesting television program "The Big Story" Nov. 24.

The hungry, desperate kid killed the proprietor of a delicatessen store when the man battled him for a turkey. He was headed for a qiuck trial and the electric chair when Elizabeth Beecher thought she saw something in his eyes that did not betoken the hardened murderer.

She reconstructed his life in a series of articles—not warped with sentimentality but filled with the reasons and steps and setbacks beyond his control which brought him to his cell.

His crime, she pointed out, was more than a crime against society. Society was an accomplice, and the taking of his life—without the installation of reforms which would guard against other crimes by other underprivileged Americans—would serve no purpose.

The D. A. reduced the charge to manslaughter. He served his time, is now happily married and a hard-working and respected member of his community . . . all because a reporter saw something essentially good in a picture of a man about to burn.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—Sideglances at celebrities:

One of the more astonishing comebacks in theatrical history is being scored these days by 59-year-old Eddie Cantor, who, like Al Jolson before him, was pushed out of the spotlight by young men for a long time—and sprang back.

At an age when many men grope for the rocking chair and slippers, the saucer-eyed minstrel man is as full of beans as a two-year-old. His television show is a solid sock, and he made some kind of history during the 33-city one-man concert tour he is just completing.

In Toronto's Massey Hall, which seats 3,200, he sold out, then came back three days later and did even better—what with standees.

In Chicago he drew 4,000 to Medinah Temple at $10 a head, in Birmingham, with only a $4 top, he grossed $8,900. And he made two appearances at Carnegie Hall within a space of six months, which few of the very top long-haired stars would attempt, and played each time to turnaway crowds.

Eddie has turned out to be a one-man "South Pacific." Matter of fact, he has consistently outgrossed the all-time money-winner while on the road. His exhausing act, which somehow does not exhaust him, is a playback through his 40 years of show business—with songs, patter and anecdotes about the greats whose path he has crossed since his days on the lower east side of New York, when he was Izzy Iskowitz.

Cantor always leaves his audience with a little more than they brought into the theater. On the occasions when he gets around to talking about his trip to Israel, he is, to my mind, the best reporter on that land of any I've ever heard.

AAUW Marks Founder's Day With Program

A Founders' Day dinner and program was held by the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, under the sponsorship of the International Relations Group Wednesday evening at the Cumberland Country Club. Dr. Phoebe Morrison, from the National Headquarters of the International Relations Association, Washington, was the speaker.

In a brief business session Dr. Hazel G. Ramsey announced that a speaker from India, who was associated with Ghandi, will address the group December 13. The place of the meeting is to be announced later. It also was decided to have the International Relations groups of the AAUW and Business and Professional Women meet together.

The place and influence of the American Association of University Women not only in the United States but throughout the world was stressed by Dr. Morrison, who also told of her trip to the International Council in London in 1948 at which time she also visited the various branches in England and Holland. She said that now there are 33 branches in foreign countries. The latest are China, Philippines and Siam

Discussing "Fellowships," the main project of the university women, Dr. Morrison declared that they are for college graduates, without regard to color or creed, who are brought to this country for study and upon return to their country are good will ambassadors. American students are also awarded Fellowships to foreign countries.

Mrs. Joseph H. Krusen presided and Dr. Ramsey introduced the speaker. Mrs. William H. Blake is co-chairman of the group. Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, is general program chairman and Mrs. John Hafer, chairman of the dinner committee.

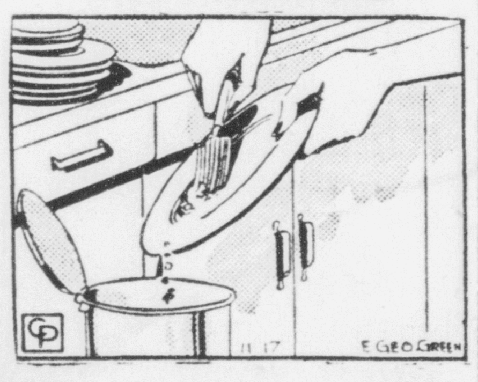
The autumn theme was carried out in the decorations with a harvest basket and bouquets of fall flowers adorning the tables. Covers were laid for more than 100, including 18 from the Keyser W. Va., club.

4-H Club Elects

Nancy McGill was elected president of the Winchester Road 4-H Girls Club at the meeting recently at the home of Edna Mae Strawser. Deanese Borror was named vice president; Patricia McGill, secretary; Dora Jean Shaffer, assistant; Nancy Lewis, treasurer; Virginia Jeffries, assistant; and Marjorie Lewis, publicity.

Installation of officers and a Christmas party will be held December 1 at 7:30 at the home of Deanese Borror. Jingle gifts are to be exchanged. Roll call was answered with naming favorite books. Miss Thelma Allin talked on projects and assisted the girls in selecting theirs. Edna Mae Strawser demonstrated folding napkins.

WIFE PRESERVERS



Always scrape and rinse dishes before washing them in the dishpan or mechanical dishwasher. Scrape burned or clinging particles of food from pots and pans first soaking in clear water, if necessary. The cleaner the dishwater, the better the job of washing.

flames, go to the cellar and lie close to the outside wall; if you don't have time, get away from windows and under any large piece of furniture. If the first warning is a blinding flash, fall flat and stay there for at least 10 seconds.

Important dos and don'ts, she said, are to keep at least one flashlight in the house in workable condition, preferably in the cellar, and not to use matches as gas mains may be broken and other fumes present in the atmosphere; keep the home free from unnecessary junk, especially in the attic; don't use the telephone to call for help, don't start rumors, or rush out to see what is going on; be careful of the food and water you consume (food in cans and ice box are not likely to be contaminated); turn on the radio for instructions; save first aid materials and bandages, as they are usable even though exposed to some radiation, and as soon as possible change our clothes and take a bath, paying particular attention to washing your hair.

Mrs. Bishop discussed the shelter angle of civil defense, urging a survey of the city to provide public shelters for those caught outside, with one per block. They should be chosen with regard to protection against flooding from ruptured water pipes, contain no inflammable material, have roofs or ceilings well supported by interior columns, have ample protection against broken, flying glass, have no objects which can be detached by shock, have doors designed to minimize danger of jamming, suitable lighting and auxiliary lighting, ventilation of equipment for two hours, sanitary provisions, drinking water available, and well marked for access and capacity. The shelter also should contain picks, shovels and crowbars for digging out.

Miss Delano reported the Red Cross, will begin classes in First Aid, Nurses Aide, Canteen, Shelter and all other groups as soon as enough persons for a class is enrolled.

Rats have up to 12 litters a year, averaging about 10 little ones each time.

AAUW Marks Founder's Day With Program

A Founders' Day dinner and program was held by the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, under the sponsorship of the International Relations Group Wednesday evening at the Cumberland Country Club. Dr. Phoebe Morrison, from the National Headquarters of the International Relations Association, Washington, was the speaker.

In a brief business session Dr. Hazel G. Ramsey announced that a speaker from India, who was associated with Ghandi, will address the group December 13. The place of the meeting is to be announced later. It also was decided to have the International Relations groups of the AAUW and Business and Professional Women meet together.

The place and influence of the American Association of University Women not only in the United States but throughout the world was stressed by Dr. Morrison, who also told of her trip to the International Council in London in 1948 at which time she also visited the various branches in England and Holland. She said that now there are 33 branches in foreign countries. The latest are China. Philippines and Siam

Discussing "Fellowships," the main project of the university women, Dr. Morrison declared that they are for college graduates, without regard to color or creed, who are brought to this country for study and upon return to their country are good will ambassadors. American students are also awarded Fellowships to foreign countries.

Mrs. Joseph H. Krusen presided and Dr. Ramsey introduced the speaker. Mrs. William H. Blake is co-chairman of the group. Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, is general program chairman and Mrs. John Hafer, chairman of the dinner committee.

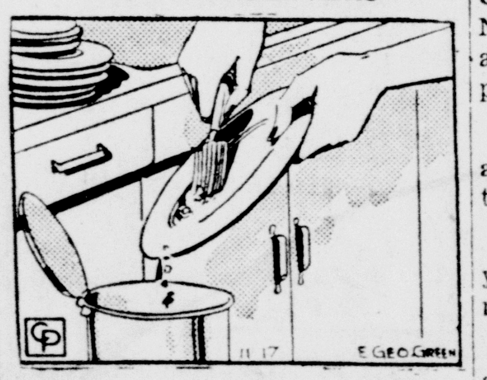
The autumn theme was carried out in the decorations with a harvest basket and bouquets of fall flowers adorning the tables. Covers were laid for more than 100, including 18 from the Keyser W. Va., club.

4-H Club Elects

Nancy McGill was elected president of the Winchester Road 4-H Girls Club at the meeting recently at the home of Edna Mae Strawser. Deanese Borror was named vice president; Patricia McGill, secretary; Dora Jean Shaffer, assistant; Nancy Lewis, treasurer; Virginia Jeffries, assistant; and Marjorie Lewis, publicity.

Installation of officers and a Christmas party will be held December 1 at 7:30 at the home of Deanese Borror. Jingle gifts are to be exchanged. Roll call was answered with naming favorite books. Miss Thelma Allin talked on projects and assisted the girls in selecting theirs. Edna Mae Strawser demonstrated folding napkins.

WIFE PRESERVERS



Always scrape and rinse dishes before washing them in the dishpan or mechanical dishwasher. Scrape burned or clinging particles of food from pots and pans first soaking in clear water, if necessary. The cleaner the dishwater, the better the job of washing.

flames, go to the cellar and lie close to the outside wall; if you don't have time, get away from windows and under any large piece of furniture. If the first warning is a blinding flash, fall flat and stay there for at least 10 seconds.

Important dos and don'ts, she said, are to keep at least one flashlight in the house in workable condition, preferably in the cellar, and not to use matches as gas mains may be broken and other fumes present in the atmosphere; keep the home free from unnecessary junk, especially in the attic; don't use the telephone to call for help, don't start rumors, or rush out to see what is going on; be careful of the food and water you consume (food in cans and ice box are not likely to be contaminated); turn on the radio for instructions; save first aid materials and bandages, as they are usable even though exposed to some radiation, and as soon as possible change our clothes and take a bath, paying particular attention to washing your hair.

Mrs. Bishop discussed the shelter angle of civil defense, urging a survey of the city to provide public shelters for those caught outside, with one per block. They should be chosen with regard to protection against flooding from ruptured water pipes, contain no inflammable material, have roofs or ceilings well supported by interior columns, have ample protection against broken, flying glass, have no objects which can be detached by shock, have doors designed to minimize danger of jamming, suitable lighting and auxiliary lighting, ventilation of equipment for two hours, sanitary provisions, drinking water available, and well marked for access and capacity. The shelter also should contain picks, shovels and crowbars for digging out.

Miss Delano reported the Red Cross, will begin classes in First Aid, Nurses Aide, Canteen, Shelter and all other groups as soon as enough persons for a class is enrolled.

TWO new names go up in lights! . . . The two brand-newest lady Representatives—Marguerite Church and Ruth Thompson. . . Of the 27 women who ran for Congress in the U. S., they're the only newcomers elected.

Marguerite Church the Capital already knows. . . In fact, this column predicted last May she'd win. . . Didn't hesitate to politely cross swords on one occasion with that brilliant verbal fencer, Clare Boothe Luce. . . Mrs. Luce scolded the Congressional wives at one of their own big luncheons, where she was speaker of the day. . . Clare told the ladies to get up off their girdles and get to work! . . . In so many words, their husbands were stupid and the women should use influence to make their men think harder and work harder

Listening to this the Congressional ladies bristled all the way up to their flowered hats. Mrs. Church rose to their defense. . Allowed as how the Congressional ladies were doing the best they could. . . But perhaps Mrs. Luce, judging from her record, had had more experience at getting the most out of men.

Yes, you'd have to get up early in the morning to outwit Representative Marguerite Church.

WRIGHT'S TIE: Members of the Italian Embassy laughingly predict that Frank Lloyd Wright, father of modern architecture, may be the father of a new necktie style.

When he came to their Embassy to lunch the other day he wore a long, long blue ribbon under his collar, tied at the collar button in a trickly little knot.

Nevertheless, Italy considers Wright "The World's Greatest Modern Architect" and an Italian shipping firm will pay all expenses to take plaster reproductions of his buildings to Florence for a comprehensive exhibit of his life and work next May. . . Before that though Gimbel's store in Philly will show the exhibition.

Slayer Of Wife, Lover Released

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP)—J. P. McRae, who shot to death his wife and her lover in a secluded summer cottage, was free tonight of any charge.

Coroner C. S. Green released the 34-year-old trucking firm head after his jury heard a brother—A. G. McRae—and two other witnesses tell of the shotgun slaying yesterday of City Safety Commissioner Richard D. Sutton, 39, and Mrs. McRae, 35 and socially prominent.

Judge Green said his jury would study the evidence and return a verdict in a week or 10 days.

The witnesses testified that McRae, aware of secret meetings of his wife with the city commissioner, entered the latter's lake-side cottage and caught them nude in bed together.

He had taken along an automatic shotgun. With it he blasted his wife's head from her shoulders and nearly severed Sutton's.

Almost immediately he suffered a heart attack. He was taken to jail, then to a hospital under guard. Later the guard was removed.

AA Founder Dies

AKRON, O., Nov. 16 (AP) — Dr. Robert Holbrook Smith, 71, one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous, died today at City Hospital after a long illness.

Rumored Brice May Become Fisheries Commission Head

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — The pulling and hauling within Maryland's hard-hit Democratic organization brought out these rumors today:

1. That Arthur H. Brice, now commissioner of motor vehicles, soon will become chairman of the State Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

2. That Robert B. Ennis will resign as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

3. That George P. Mahoney will be eased out of his new job as Democratic national committeeman

None of the principals would make any comment. Gov. Lane, perhaps the key man in all three situations, was away from the state.

Sources close to the Governor and to Brice indicated his transfer to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission is all set. Brice would replace David H. Wallace, the young conservation career man who has resigned to become director of the North American Oyster Institute.

The appointment of Brice would have the effect of assuring the Eastern Shoreman an important state job until the spring of 1955—until after the next gubernatorial campaign.

His term as motor vehicles commissioner expires next May, and it is a foregone conclusion that Theodore R. McKeldin, Republican governor-elect, will name a Republican for the job.

Hope Fades For Wife Of Insurance Co. Head

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—Searchers decided today that the 48-year-old wife of a nationally known insurance executive and her 39-year-old fishing companion drowned in the Atlantic.

Seamen and airmen found no sign of Mrs. Frederick H. Ecker, wife of the 83-year-old board chairman of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, or James Merrill Herd, Jr., head of a New York theatrical corporation.

Coast guardsmen found the small rowboat from which they and two friends were fishing yesterday when the craft capsized. The two companions reached shore. Searchers also found a life jacket Mrs. Ecker carried

Night Rider Fined

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A ride on a large white horse through a residential area last night cost Jack Henderson, 21, a fine of $15 and costs today.

Henderson, a stable groom at a riding academy, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Police officers testified Henderson was intoxicated when he took the night ride.

Father Is Held In Child's Death

FRONT ROYAL, Va., Nov. 16 (AP) — A former federal employe was charged with murder today in the death of his four-year-old daughter, originally believed to have been killed in an auto accident along precipitous Skyline Drive.

FBI agents said tonight that Andrew Danton, 34, Washington, admitted in a statement that he beat his daughter to death, critically injured his wife and then drove his car down the steep mountainside.

Richard D. Auerbach, in charge of the FBI office in Richmond, said Danton described the incident as "a comedy of errors" which went awry because of poor planning.

Rangers came upon the demolished car, lodged against a tree some 60 feet below the scenic drive atop the Blue Ridge mountains, yesterday. In it they found the body of the dead child, Lynn Frances Danton; her mother and father, both injured.

Mrs. Florence Danton, 33, remained unconscious in Front Royal Community hospital today. Danton, until recently a $9,000 a year employee of the Census Bureau, was removed from the hospital and taken by ambulance to the U. S. reformatory at Petersburg, Va.

Slayer Of Wife, Lover Released

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP)—J. P. McRae, who shot to death his wife and her lover in a secluded summer cottage, was free tonight of any charge.

Coroner C. S. Green released the 34-year-old trucking firm head after his jury heard a brother—A. G. McRae—and two other witnesses tell of the shotgun slaying yesterday of City Safety Commissioner Richard D. Sutton, 39, and Mrs. McRae, 35 and socially prominent.

Judge Green said his jury would study the evidence and return a verdict in a week or 10 days.

The witnesses testified that McRae, aware of secret meetings of his wife with the city commissioner, entered the latter's lake-side cottage and caught them nude in bed together.

He had taken along an automatic shotgun. With it he blasted his wife's head from her shoulders and nearly severed Sutton's.

Almost immediately he suffered a heart attack. He was taken to jail, then to a hospital under guard. Later the guard was removed.

AA Founder Dies

AKRON, O., Nov. 16 (AP) — Dr. Robert Holbrook Smith, 71, one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous, died today at City Hospital after a long illness.

Rumored Brice May Become Fisheries Commission Head

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — The pulling and hauling within Maryland's hard-hit Democratic organization brought out these rumors today:

1. That Arthur H. Brice, now commissioner of motor vehicles, soon will become chairman of the State Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

2. That Robert B. Ennis will resign as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

3. That George P. Mahoney will be eased out of his new job as Democratic national committeeman

None of the principals would make any comment. Gov. Lane, perhaps the key man in all three situations, was away from the state.

Sources close to the Governor and to Brice indicated his transfer to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission is all set. Brice would replace David H. Wallace, the young conservation career man who has resigned to become director of the North American Oyster Institute.

The appointment of Brice would have the effect of assuring the Eastern Shoreman an important state job until the spring of 1955—until after the next gubernatorial campaign.

His term as motor vehicles commissioner expires next May, and it is a foregone conclusion that Theodore R. McKeldin, Republican governor-elect, will name a Republican for the job.

Hope Fades For Wife Of Insurance Co. Head

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—Searchers decided today that the 48-year-old wife of a nationally known insurance executive and her 39-year-old fishing companion drowned in the Atlantic.

Seamen and airmen found no sign of Mrs. Frederick H. Ecker, wife of the 83-year-old board chairman of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, or James Merrill Herd, Jr., head of a New York theatrical corporation.

Coast guardsmen found the small rowboat from which they and two friends were fishing yesterday when the craft capsized. The two companions reached shore. Searchers also found a life jacket Mrs. Ecker carried.

Night Rider Fined

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A ride on a large white horse through a residential area last night cost Jack Henderson, 21, a fine of $15 and costs today.

Henderson, a stable groom at a riding academy, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Police officers testified Henderson was intoxicated when he took the night ride.

Cresaptown PTA Marks Anniversary

The Cresaptown PTA had Richard T. Rizer, assistant supervisor of public schools, as guest speaker at the 20th anniversary meeting Monday. Mr. Rizer, who was the first principal of the new school, spoke on "preparing the Elementary Child for High School." He also discussed the early history of the school.

Mrs. Marshall VanMeter conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Lester McGill and Mrs. Madeline Michael gave routine reports. Mrs. Samuel Parker announced she has 284 members and Mrs. Donald McGill reported she has sold 15 suscriptions to the PTA magazine. Mrs. Van Meter announced that the Christmas party is to be December 11.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Alton Walston and Mrs. Kenneth Lee had charge of the program. It consisted of a song, "My Hero and Love and Arithmetic" by Miss Lois Stine with Mrs. William Loar at the piano. Mrs. Edgar Hounshell gave the history of the school and PTA. Mrs. John Barncord reported on the PTA convention at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, last week. She said that among the 21 delegates from Allegany county Mrs. VanMeter, Mrs. Lester McGill, Mrs. Donald McGill and Mrs. Robert Doty are from the Cresaptown association.

The theme was "Preparing Todays Child for Tomorrow's World." Her group attended all sessions for the three days. A banquet with 257 attending climaxed the convention. Mrs. Emil Smith, state president, presided; toastmaster was John Seidel, assistant state superintendent, for vocational education. The group was greeted by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., superintendent of schools and Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College, gave the address.

Attending the past president's meeting was Mrs. Hounshell, Herbert Heineman and Mrs. Brace Hutson. Displays were held by the chore class and library. Miss Betty Matese's room won the attendance award.

Don't look into your mirror to see how pretty you are. It's distinction that you should look for!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WHICH DO YOU strive to be, pretty or distinctive?

The Powers Girls all agree that to be called distinctive is a pretty compliment, but to be called pretty isn't very distinctive. That's why they choose being distinguished as their goal. It's the one quality above all others that turns a girl into an outstanding and admiringly remembered personality.

It takes work aplenty to attain such a goal. It means that your personality must be shined up, polished and presented to the world so each of its facets wins approbation.

To Gain Distinction

Do you have wonderful hair, a willowy figure, exciting coloring, an unusual voice, an infectious smile, appealing traits? Pick your best characteristics and learn to play them up for all they are worth. If your hair is worthy, have it dressed to show it off. If your figure is good, wear the clothes that accent it. Exploit your coloring. Make your words interesting, your humor ready and let your heart be outgiving.

But don't overdo it. If you do, you will defeat your purpose and find yourself stereotyped. Such examples are to be seen on every Main street — the girl who has turned herself into a sophisticated siren; a man-tailored executive; a baby doll; something nationally geographic, like a senorita.

You can't express your personality that way. You'll just be regarded as play acting, and badly, in trumped-up roles. Of course, every girl finds that she has a natural preference for certain things. Some girls are always drawn toward snap-brimmed hats, or blue, or ruffled collars, or black satin. Such preferences are not wrong in themselves, but only when they conflict or cancel your looks or real personality. In that event you should train yourself to like other styles or colors.

The secret of attaining distinction lies in reflecting the most natural, attractive you. When you succeed, you have a flattering identification tag that you alone can wear!

Local Resident Pays $76 For Parking Tickets

Police Require $2 In Each Case

At least one Cumberlander has paid heavily because of the Cumberland Police Department's campaign this week of issuing warrants to holders of unpaid parking tickets.

He is Frank Bennett, 211 Holland Street, who yesterday personally paid $72 for 36 parking tickets which had been issued to him between May and October and had previously gone unpaid. Usually, $1 is charged for each parking offense but the issuance of a warrant costs the offender another $1.

Besides the 36 tickets personally issued to him, Bennett paid an additional $4 for two other tickets given the Bennett Appliance Sales Company, 52 Bedford Street.

Before Bennett's action, Lieut. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the department's Traffic Bureau, announced that warrants had been issued to 100 holders of unpaid parking tickets who had failed to cooperate with police by paying the tags. Lilya reports that warrants also are being readied in some 125 other cases. In each offense $2 will be required instead of $1.

Two weeks ago Chief R. Emmett Flynn appealed to parking violators to post collateral for trial "within a reasonable time" after tickets were issued. Response was slow since only a handful of holders complied, so police switched to warrants.

Vile Language Hit

Records show that some violations date back as far as May. In the majority of cases, warning notices had been mailed to violators.

Work of distributing the warrants probably will go to officers on duty in cruiser cars and to patrolmen with regular beats, according to Lt. Lilya, who said some of the warrants were served Wednesday night.

Abusive language by motorists posting bond at headquarters will not be tolerated, police officials said, adding that "patrolmen are performing their duty by tagging illegal parkers in an effort to relieve traffic congestion."

Grantsville Man Given Jail Term

Robert Rugg, Grantsville, is serving a 60-day sentence in Somerset Pa., County Jail on a charge of assault and battery against Game Protector L. B. Welch.

Sentence was imposed Monday in Somerset after Welch said Rugg attacked and threatened him earlier this month near Confluence, Pa.

Rugg entered a plea of guilty and the sentence was handed down to run concurrently with a 104-day term imposed on a game law violation. Also serving 104 days in jail is Aaron Rugg, Grantsville, who was arrested at the same time.

Conference May Shed Light On Local Problems

Because a number of problems affecting Cumberland will be discussed at a Businessmen's Conference in Washington next Monday and Tuesday, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is planning to have at least three representatives at the sessions, Harold W. Smith, chamber manager, said last night.

A decision to send Cumberland representatives was made last night at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors at the office in the Liberty Trust building.

It also was announced last night that the first of the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon meetings, continuing until June, will be held Monday, December 11, at 12:15 p. m. at the YMCA. Traffic and parking will be the subject of the program, arranged by the civic improvement committee, Robert Little Ebert, chairman.

Traffic and parking, the effect of street parking and "traffic inflation" are among the topics that will be discussed at the two-day Washington conference, sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

George C. Smith, who was affiliated with the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce some 35 years ago when the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company came here, will lead one of the panel discussions, Smith said.

"Inflation in Traffic" is expected to be one of the most interesting discussions, Smith stated. This panel will note that the 1950 traffic volume is 7 per cent above 1949 and 27 per cent above 1941, the two previous high years.

All Cumberland citizens interested in attending next week's conference in Washington should contact Smith so that arrangement for attendance can be made.

BUILDS HIS OWN 'FLYING SAUCER'

Dick (right) tells pals model is aerodynamically plausible.

ENGINEERING GRADUATE Dick Stasinos of Inglewood, Cal., has built a scale model of his version of a "flying saucer." His craft which, he claims, is aerodynamically plausible, features a revolving outer disc which houses eight turbo-jet ports. The stationary center of the disc contains the pilot's cockpit. Two main jets would provide the push and jets on the outer disc would make it spin. (International)

Conference May Shed Light On Local Problems

Because a number of problems affecting Cumberland will be discussed at a Businessmen's Conference in Washington next Monday and Tuesday, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is planning to have at least three representatives at the sessions, Harold W. Smith, chamber manager, said last night.

A decision to send Cumberland representatives was made last night at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors at the office in the Liberty Trust building.

It also was announced last night that the first of the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon meetings, continuing until June, will be held Monday, December 11, at 12:15 p. m. at the YMCA. Traffic and parking will be the subject of the program, arranged by the civic improvement committee, Robert Little Ebert, chairman.

Traffic and parking, the effect of street parking and "traffic inflation" are among the topics that will be discussed at the two-day Washington conference, sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

George C. Smith, who was affiliated with the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce some 35 years ago when the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company came here, will lead one of the panel discussions, Smith said.

"Inflation in Traffic" is expected to be one of the most interesting discussions, Smith stated. This panel will note that the 1950 traffic volume is 7 per cent above 1949 and 27 per cent above 1941, the two previous high years.

All Cumberland citizens interested in attending next week's conference in Washington should contact Smith so that arrangement for attendance can be made.

BUILDS HIS OWN 'FLYING SAUCER'

Dick (right) tells pals model is aerodynamically plausible.

ENGINEERING GRADUATE Dick Stasinos of Inglewood, Cal., has built a scale model of his version of a "flying saucer." His craft which, he claims, is aerodynamically plausible, features a revolving outer disc which houses eight turbo-jet ports. The stationary center of the disc contains the pilot's cockpit. Two main jets would provide the push and jets on the outer disc would make it spin. (International)

Europe's "Toughest Army" Holds Hostile Soviets From Yugoslavia

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK, (AP) — A recent traveler to Yugoslavia says Marshal Tito has the "toughest force" of any on the continent now facing Russia and it would fight to the last man in event of a Soviet attack.

"For this reason, I doubt whether Russia will soon try to move in on Yugoslavia," says Julien Bryan, executive director of the International Film Foundation, who spent five weeks making a documentary movie there.

Bryan found the borders along Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria heavily guarded and the frontier along Albania and Greece manned relatively lightly.

"If the Russians do move in," he says, "they might be able to occupy the northeast quarter of Yugoslavia fairly early because that is a great flat plain and not easily defended.

"But the Yugoslavs would move back to the mountains and fight there, and they would fight long and hard. There are no better guerrilla fighters in the hills."

Bryan, a veteran world traveler, says he went to Yugoslavia somewhat skeptical of that country's break with the Cominform two years ago.

"But I found the hostility of the Yugoslavs to the Russians very genuine and very great," he says. "The Yugoslavs have been bitterly disillusioned. They feel Russia let them down even before the break in the Cominform by not delivering enough machines and other goods which had been promised.

"Now they hear the Russians calling them fascists while expressing admiration for Hungary, which everybody but the Germans was fighting only a few years ago. This makes the anti-Russian feeling in Yugoslavia even more intense."

While a secret police still operates under Tito, Bryan said he found personal freedom had greatly increased in Yugoslavia since the break with the Cominform.

"People there," he says, "feel free to talk now, to criticize their own government, to talk with foreigners, to listen to foreign broadcasts. Chursches are wide open. The window which draws the biggest crowds in Belgrade is the office of the U. S. Information Service."

Bryan says he was given "complete freedom" to travel through and photograph the country, except for military installations and concentration camps.

"Oh, yes," he says, "there are still concentration camps. All is not sweetness and light. I don't know how many people are still in the concentration camps but the point is I was able to talk with many people who once were in them but are now free."

Bryan believes the pro-American attitude developing in Yugoslavia in the last two years is not merely one of expediency, not motivated only "by a five-pound sack of coffee or a loaf of bread."

"Sure, the factor of expediency is important," he says, "but the Yugoslavs now feel a closer tie to

Hot Menus For Cold Days

With cold weather on the way, warm up to a torrid idea: hot dishes for cold days! Whether the weather is sub-zero or just "a bit unusual" warmer-uppers has a place in the menu. Hot soup or stews are standbys when the days are frosty. With November here homemakers will want to sort out the family hot-dish favorites. Don't stick to the same old recipes — look around for new ones to supplement your file, because in some sections cold weather lasts for many months, and variety is indicated. Here are recipes for your consideration:

Vegetable Veal Stew

1½ pounds veal stew meat; 5 tablespoons flour; 1½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; ¼ cup fat; 5 cups boiling water; 4 medium-size potatoes diced; 4 carrots, sliced 1 cup peas; [illegible] cup water.

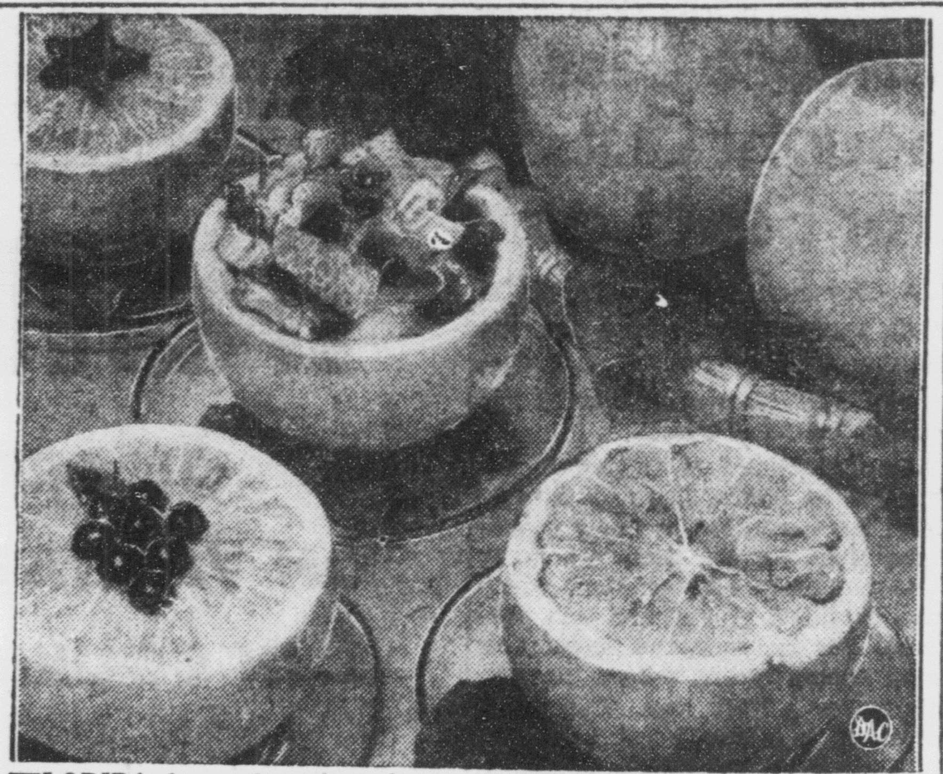
CLOROX... AMERICA'S FAVORITE BLEACH AND HOUSEHOLD DISINFECTANT



FLORIDA is a nice place to go when it starts getting cool, but even if you can't go south you can enjoy some of Florida's fairest offerings in the form of the big juicy grapefruit now being shipped to almost every section of the country.

Grapefruit halves have a tang that makes them a wonderful breakfast fruit, and their bracing flavor makes them delicious, too, as salads or desserts. Here are four ways to serve your grapefruit halves—all of them a little different. Reading from the top is a first course half centered with a cranberry jelly star; then a salad bowl. In the foreground at the right is the famous broiled grapefruit, and at the left, another first course or dessert using grapes.

Everyone will love grapefruit if you make it easy to get the succulent fruit out of the shell. To properly prepare it, cut the fruit in half; remove core. Cut around each section, loosening fruit from membrane. Do not cut around entire outer edge of fruit. Here's how to do the four variations shown:

Broiled Grapefruit

Sprinkle grapefruit half with 1 tablespoon sugar and a dash of cinnamon, mace or nutmeg, if desired; dot with 1 teaspoon butter Place grapefruit on broiler rack 3 inches from heat. Broil slowly 15 to 20 minutes or until grapefruit is slightly brown and heated through. Grapefruit may also be baked in a moderately hot oven (400°F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Grapefruit with Grape Garnish

Slice seedless grapes in half. Arrange 7 or 8 halves in center of grapefruit to represent bunch of grapes, as illustrated in photograph.

Grapefruit with Cranberry Garnish

Cut slice of cranberry jelly with small star-shaped cookie cutter. Place cranberry star in center of grapefruit half.

Grapefruit Salad Bowl

Follow directions for preparing grapefruit halves. Remove sections from half; reserve. Cut out membrane remaining in shell to make "Salad Bowl". Combine grapefruit sections with diced celery and chicken, shrimp or tuna. Moisten with mayonnaise. Refill shells with salad and garnish with watercress.

Flavor Biscuits With Meat Or Cheese

Meat or cheese-flavored biscuits and muffins are a good flavor choice to accompany fall and winter vegetable plates or salad meals. These breads add important protein, B-vitamins and iron needed especially with fruit or vegetable entrees. Enriched bacon sticks are a tempting member of the biscuit family, thrifty and easy to make. For each cup of flour in a basic biscuit recipe, add 2 strips of cooked bacon broken into crisp bits. Add the bacon after shortening is cut into flour mixture and before adding milk. Instead of cutting round biscuits from the rolled out dough, use a floured knife to cut sticks 1x4 inches.

Corned Beef Hash In Tomatoes

1 16-oz. can corned beef hash; 4 large tomatoes; Salt to season; ¼ cup cheddar cheese.

Scoop out center of tomatoes. Combine tomato pulp with corned beef hash. Season if necessary. Stuff tomatoes with mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. 4 servings.

Hot Menus For Cold Days

With cold weather on the way, warm up to a torrid idea: hot dishes for cold days! Whether the weather is sub-zero or just "a bit unusual" warmer-uppers has a place in the menu. Hot soup or stews are standbys when the days are frosty. With November here homemakers will want to sort out the family hot-dish favorites. Don't stick to the same old recipes — look around for new ones to supplement your file, because in some sections cold weather lasts for many months, and variety is indicated. Here are recipes for your consideration:

Vegetable Veal Stew

1½ pounds veal stew meat; 5 tablespoons flour; 1½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; ¼ cup fat; 5 cups boiling water; 4 medium-size potatoes, diced; 4 carrots, sliced 1 cup peas; cup water.

Cut meat into small cubes and dredge in mixture of 3 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Brown in hot fat. Cover with boiling water and simmer, covered, about 1¾ hours. Add vegetables; continue cooking 30 minutes. Make a paste of remaining flour and water and thicken stew. Servew ith buttered oven-popped rice cereal.

Corn and Potato Chowder

¼ pound diced salt pork; ½ cup finely chopped onions; 1 cup diced potatoes; 1 cup boiling water; 2⅓ cups whole kernel corn; 2 cups milk; 1 tablespoon flour! 2 teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoonpepper 2 tablespoons minced parsley; 1 cup corn soya shreds.

Cook salt pork in frying pan until brown and crisp. Lift from fat and drain. Cook onions in salt pork fat until tender and slightly browned. Drain onions from fat and put into soup kettle, add potatoes and water; cover and cook ten minutes. Add corn and milk. Make smooth paste of one tablespoon of the salt pork fat and flour, stir into soup. Continue cooking about ten minutes. Add seasonings and parsley and serve in warmed bowls.

Brown corn soya in one tablespoon of the salt pork fat and flour, stir into soup. Continue cooking about ten minues. Add seasonings and parsley and serve in warmed bowls.

Brown corn soya in one tablespoon of the salt pork fat. Drain well; combine with crisp salt pork cubes and serve in separate bowl with chowder.

Yield: 6 servings.

AS PERT and stimulating as autumn sunshine is Waldorf salad molded in clear gelatine. The gelatine adds protein to this popular combination of apples, celery and nuts as well as maintaining the fresh look and flavor. The recipe will be found elsewhere on this page.

Buffet Supper Is Graced By Serving Gelatine Salad

Buffet suppers win friends and influence people by their charm in appearance. Providing such graciousness is this menu of jellied Waldorf salad, thin sandwiches and sliced smoked pork tenderloin. The gelatine salad and the meat may be readied hours ahead of meal time so that the hostess is free to be with her guests.

Jellied Waldorf Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup hot water, ⅓ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup mild vinegar or lemon juice, ½ cup diced celery, 2 cups diced unpeeled tart apples, ¼ cup chopped pecans or walnuts.

Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve in hot water. Stir in sugar, salt and vinegar. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in celery, apples and nutmeats. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and serve with mayonnaise salad dressing. Garnish with small unpeeled apple slice.

YIELD: 6 servings.

A. This is French for "cooked on a skewer," and is an expression most often used when referring to meat and vegetable or fruit which are cooked in this manner.

Q. What is meant by pre-cooking?

A. To simmer for a short time preliminary to cooking by another method.

Choose Less Sought Cuts For Beef Loaf

A juicy meat loaf right out of the oven means good eating for the family. It can also be a budget choice for the homemaker if she selects the meat wisely.

Ground round is frequently requested by homemakers for a meat loaf, but according to home economist Reba Staggs, there are many less-demanded cuts of meat which are excellent ground for this purpose. For instance, the homemaker may choose chuck, shank, plate or flank for a beef loaf. The round steak is in demand for pot-roasts and other braised dishes, therefore, it is frequently higher in price than these cuts. The less-demanded cuts are equally as flavorsome.

All cuts of beef are made tender by grinding and may be cooked by the dry heat method — roasting. However, the temperature must be low for meat loaves as for other roasts. For a beef meat loaf keep the oven at a 300° F. temperature.

For a luscious dessert, thin a cup of marshmallow cream with two tablespoons of lemon juice, adding a little at a time. Fold in a cup of drained crushed pineapple and a cup of cream that's been stiffly beaten. Freeze in a refrigerator tray without stirring.

AS PERT and stimulating as autumn sunshine is Waldorf salad molded in clear gelatine. The gelatine adds protein to this popular combination of apples, celery and nuts as well as maintaining the fresh look and flavor. The recipe will be found elsewhere on this page.

Buffet Supper Is Graced By Serving Gelatine Salad

Buffet suppers win friends and influence people by their charm in appearance. Providing such graciousness is this menu of jellied Waldorf salad, thin sandwiches and sliced smoked pork tenderloin. Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve in hot water. Stir in sugar, salt and vinegar. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in celery, apples and nutmeats. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and serve with mayonnaise salad dressing. Garnish with small unpeeled apple slice.

YIELD: 6 servings.

ADD a light touch to golden pumpkin by pairing it with unflavored gelatine and you'll end up with a fluffy jellied pumpkin custard to be topped with whipped cream and toasted coconut and served in dainty tarts. Look elsewhere on this page for the recipe.

Unflavored Gelatin Adds Light Touch To Pumpkin

Use unflavored gelatine to give lightness to pumpkin and you come up with a pumpkin chiffon dessert of spicy taste and velvety texture. The kind of gel-cookery which produces a fluffy custard is just the thing to capture the spicy flavor of the pumpkin mixture while adding a new airy touch. Topped with toasted coconut, this Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert is a real fall triumph.

Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
2 eggs, separated
1 cup evaporated milk
1¼ cups mashed cooked pumpkin
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon each of salt, nutmeg and cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup shredded coconut, toasted
⅓ cup cream, whipped and sweetened

Soften gelatine in cold water. Put egg yolks in top of double boiler, add evaporated milk and beat until blended. Stir in pumpkin, ½ cup of the brown sugar, salt and spices. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; add remaining sugar gradually and continue beating. Fold pumpkin mixture into egg whites with ¾ cup of the toasted coconut. Pile into sherbet glasses, chill until firm. To serve, top with whipped cream and remaining coconut. Yield: 8 servings. To toast coconut, spread thinly in shallow pan. Place in moderate oven (350 degree F) and toast about 10 minutes, or until delicately browned. Stir occasionally to toast evenly. Cool before adding to pumpkin mixture.

Coffee Glazed Ham Slice

(Makes about ½ cup glaze)

1 1-inch smoked ham slice, ¼ cup pineapple juice, 2 teaspoons Instant Coffee, ½ cup pure maple syrup.

Pour pineapple juice over coffee in small saucepan and stir until dissolved. Stir in maple syrup, blending well. Simmer over low heat 15 minutes. Remove rind and most of the fat from ham. Brown ham slice on both sides in heavy skillet. Pour glaze over ham. Cover and cook over low heat, basting frequently and turning occasionally, about 30 minutes. If desired, garnish with hot sliced pineapple rings. Drained sliced pineapple rings may be heated by cooking with ham during last 5 minutes.

Note: If recipe is doubled, glaze may be used for half ham, weighing 6 to 8 pounds.

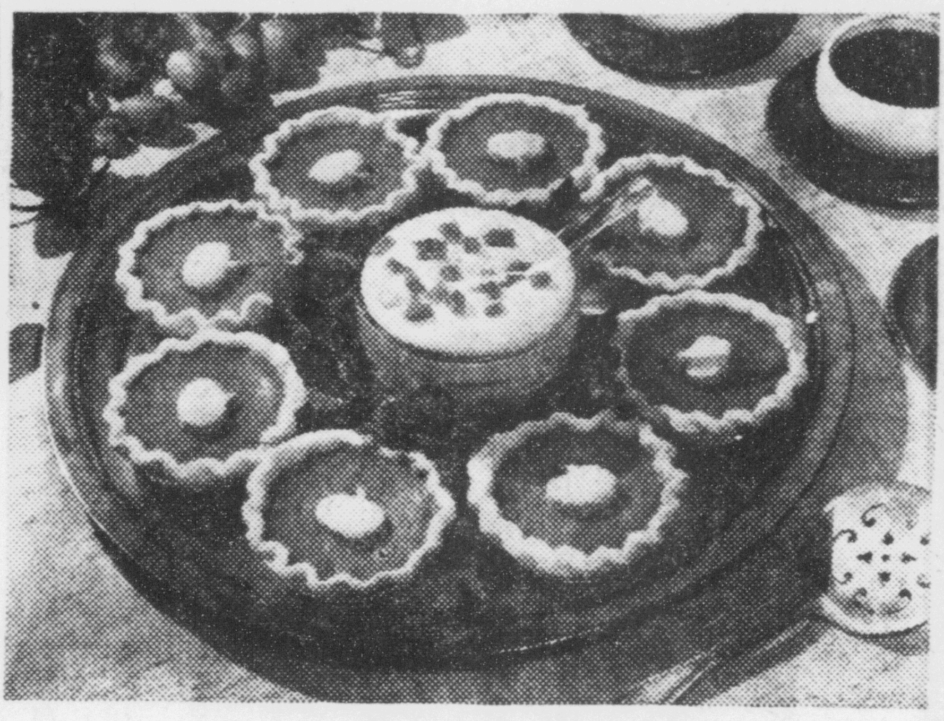
Pressure On In Kitchen

People talk about the increased pressure of modern living. Kitchen-wise, too, the pressure is on. In this case it is to the homemaker's advantage. With pressure cooking she can turn out all the old favorite dishes in a fraction of the time grandma had to devote to them.

It is especially fun to go back to the old desserts now that the time-table is shortened. Steamed puddings are one kind of dessert that turn out fine when cooked under pressure. One version is made of mince meat and rice. Full-flavored mince meat, a year around treat, does a lot to enhance the pudding's flavor. Either whipped cream or a hard sauce can be the finishing touch.

Once confined to canning tasks, the pressure cooking now has a daily role in the kitchen. It shortens cooking time for vegetables and provides a faster way to moist-cook the less tender meat cuts.

A flank steak is a good example of a less tender cut of meat that responds to pressure cooking. Once again, mince meat turns an every-day dish into a specialty. For into the pocket of the flank steak goes a stuffing of mince meat and sweet potato. For further flavor appeal, the steak is cooked in pineapple juice. This can become your company-on-a-budget offering.



Five Minute Pastry

Pumpkin Tarts Are The Style This Season

Pie rates first as America's favorite dessert. With the rustle of fall leaves, football games and club meetings again in session, pumpkin pie is a flavor favorite for this season of the year.

Pumpkin tarts are ever so good for your fall entertaining and with the holiday season drawing nigh you'll want to give these tarts a "test run," then add the recipe to your tried and true file.

Put your best foot forward in making the tarts by starting with a tender, flaky pastry. The good crust is the secret to your tart's success and it's all so easy when you use lard and a simple recipe.

For 8 Tart Shells

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard
3½-4 tablespoons water

Sift flour with salt, add lard which has been kept at room temperature and cut into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Measure water direct from tap, sprinkle over the surface of the flour and mix gently. Lay on lightly floured pastry cloth and roll lightly from center to edges. Line tart pans with pastry and crimp edges.

Pumpkin Filling

⅔ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
[illegible] teaspoon salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups pumpkin, cooked and mashed
1½ cups milk.

Mix sugar, spices and salt. Add eggs and mix well. Blend in pumpkin and add milk. Pour into unbaked shells and bake at 425°F. until filling is set. Top tarts with miniature pumpkins made of the pastry and baked 10-12 minutes in a 425°F. oven. Makes 8 tarts. Serve with a bowl of whipped cream, studded with small pieces of candied fruit.

ADD a light touch to golden pumpkin by pairing it with unflavored gelatine and you'll end up with a fluffy jellied pumpkin custard to be topped with whipped cream and toasted coconut and served in dainty tarts. Look elsewhere on this page for the recipe.

Unflavored Gelatin Adds Light Touch To Pumpkin

Use unflavored gelatine to give lightness to pumpkin and you come up with a pumpkin chiffon dessert of spicy taste and velvety texture. The kind of gel-cookery which produces a fluffy custard is just the thing to capture the spicy flavor of the pumpkin mixture while adding a new airy touch. Topped with toasted coconut, this Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert is a real fall triumph.

Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
2 eggs, separated
1 cup evaporated milk
1¼ cups mashed cooked pumpkin
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon each of salt, nutmeg and cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup shredded coconut, toasted
⅓ cup cream, whipped and sweetened

Soften gelatine in cold water. Put egg yolks in top of double boiler, add evaporated milk and beat until blended. Stir in pumpkin, ½ cup of the brown sugar, salt and spices. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; add remaining sugar gradually and continue beating. Fold pumpkin mixture into egg whites with ¾ cup of the toasted coconut. Pile into sherbet glasses, chill until firm. To serve, top with whipped cream and remaining coconut. Yield: 8 servings. To toast coconut, spread thinly in shallow pan. Place in moderate oven (350 degree F) and toast about 10 minutes, or until delicately browned. Stir occasionally to toast evenly. Cool before adding to pumpkin mixture.

Coffee Glazed Ham Slice

1 1-inch smoked ham slice, ¼ cup pineapple juice, 2 teaspoons Instant Coffee, ½ cup pure maple syrup.

Pour pineapple juice over coffee in small saucepan and stir until dissolved. Stir in maple syrup, blending well. Simmer over low heat 15 minutes. Remove rind and most of the fat from ham. Brown ham slice on both sides in heavy skillet. Pour glaze over ham. Cover and cook over low heat, basting frequently and turning occasionally, about 30 minutes. If desired, garnish with hot sliced pineapple rings. Drained sliced pineapple rings may be heated by cooking with ham during last 5 minutes.

Note: If recipe is doubled, glaze may be used for half ham, weighing 6 to 8 pounds.

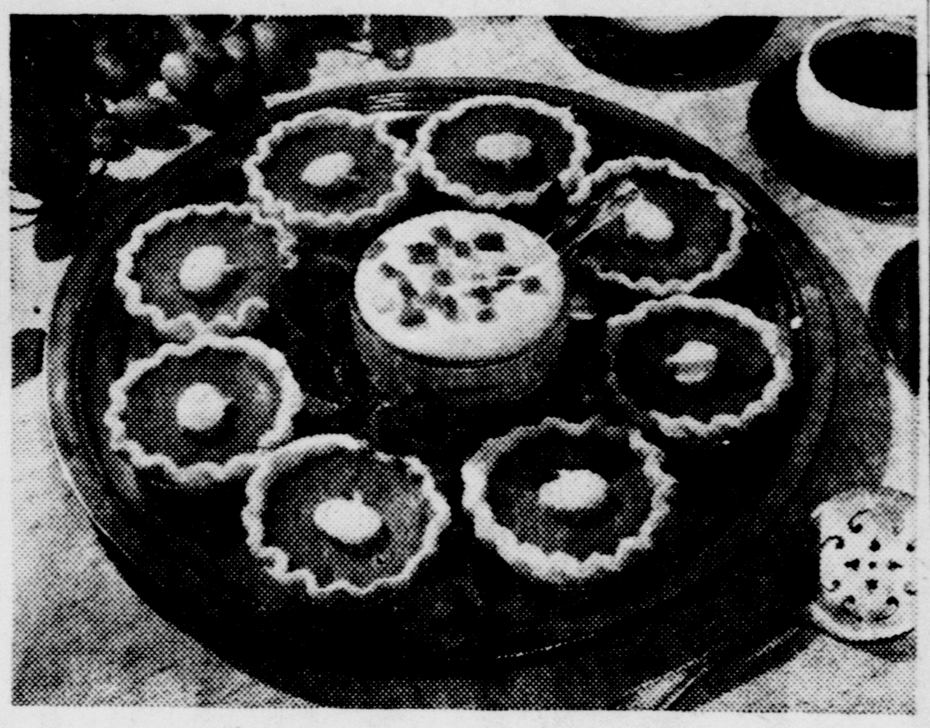
Pressure On In Kitchen

People talk about the increased pressure of modern living. Kitchen-wise, too, the pressure is on. In this case it is to the homemaker's advantage. With pressure cooking she can turn out all the old favorite dishes in a fraction of the time grandma had to devote to them.

It is especially fun to go back to the old desserts now that the time-table is shortened. Steamed puddings are one kind of dessert that turn out fine when cooked under pressure. One version is made of mince meat and rice. Full-flavored mince meat, a year around treat, does a lot to enhance the pudding's flavor. Either whipped cream or a hard sauce can be the finishing touch.

Once confined to canning tasks, the pressure cooking now has a daily role in the kitchen. It shortens cooking time for vegetables and provides a faster way to moist-cook the less tender meat cuts.

A flank steak is a good example of a less tender cut of meat that responds to pressure cooking. Once again, mince meat turns an everyday dish into a specialty. For into the pocket of the flank steak goes a stuffing of mince meat and sweet potato. For further flavor appeal, the steak is cooked in pineapple juice. This can become your company-on-a-budget offering.



Five Minute Pastry

Pumpkin Tarts Are The Style This Season

Pie rates first as America's favorite dessert. With the rustle of fall leaves, football games and club meetings again in session, pumpkin pie is a flavor favorite for this season of the year.

Pumpkin tarts are ever so good for your fall entertaining and with the holiday season drawing nigh you'll want to give these tarts a "test run," then add the recipe to your tried and true file.

Put your best foot forward in making the tarts by starting with a tender, flaky pastry. The good crust is the secret to your tart's success and it's all so easy when you use lard and a simple recipe.

For 8 Tart Shells

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard
3½-4 tablespoons water

Sift flour with salt, add lard which has been kept at room temperature and cut into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Measure water direct from tap, sprinkle over the surface of the flour and mix gently. Lay on lightly floured pastry cloth and roll lightly from center to edges. Line tart pans with pastry and crimp edges.

Pumpkin Filling

⅔ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
[illegible] teaspoon salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups pumpkin, cooked and mashed
1½ cups milk.

Mix sugar, spices and salt. Add eggs and mix well. Blend in pumpkin and add milk. Pour into unbaked shells and bake at 425°F. until filling is set. Top tarts with miniature pumpkins made of the pastry and baked 10-12 minutes in a 425°F. oven. Makes 8 tarts. Serve with a bowl of whipped cream, studded with small pieces of candied fruit.

You Gotta Know Russian For Really Hep Living, Satellite Romanians Told

By G. K. HODENFIELD

VIENNA—(AP)—If you don't speak Russian you're not really living.

That's what Romanians are being told. The Communist newspapers of that iron curtain country are bombarding their readers with articles explaining the absolute necessity of learning Russian.

Only then, they are being told, can they "penetrate the entire depth and logic of Lenin's ideals, and the clarity and concision of Stalin's writings."

The newspaper Scanteia Tineretuli says, "One cannot conceive of an honest, peace-loving man, or a real lover of culture and science in the service of mankind, who does not strive to master the Russian language.

"Let us organize the greatest possible number of Russian courses, in factories and workshops, institutions and collective farms. Let us attend these courses regularly and work our hardest to learn Russian as quickly as possible. Let us bring our colleagues to these courses and make every youth eager and determined to overcome all difficulties in order to master Russian."

Viata Sindicala opened a similar plea with a quotation from V. M. Molotov, Premier Stalin's right hand man:

"There is no doubt that if Latin was the language of feudal society, French the language of capitalist society and English the language of imperialism, Russian is the language of our century, in which all roads lead to Communism."

The paper says Russian is now being studied by "progressives" all over the world.

Wel, it's been a lot of fun this time. That rustle in the northeast is Connecticut separating the ballots from the autumn leaves.

Merrill And Berg Make "The Goldbergs" For Radio And Television Followers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK — Fortunately for Gertrude Berg, Fanny Merrill is no clockwatcher. She has never let things like a private life interfere with "the Goldbergs."

Mrs. Merrill, short, gray-haired and friendly as a puppy, is the sturdy left arm of the tireless Mrs. Berg who has created a warm, funny, true-to-life Bronx family for more than two decades of radio and television. There's no adequate name for Fanny's salaried function, but she is referred to as "Shadow" by friends. It is very possible that, should Fanny decide to sample of joys of home and hearth, Gertrude would be forced into premature retirement and the nation would lose a heroine, Molly Goldberg.

But Fanny loves her life, even when it means a lengthy separation from her husband, a composer, and son Howard, a successful radio and television writer. Last summer she was off to California with Gertrude to make the Goldbergs, then on radio and TV, into a movie.

In a single day, Mrs. Merrill is by turns a sounding board (Mrs. Berg likes to "talk out" plots) amannuensis, personal shopper, casting director and chum. They've worked as a smooth team since 1929, but Fanny has never lost a jot of her vast admiration for the middle-aged, friendly and charming Mrs. Berg.

Mrs. Berg does all her script writing in long-hand, and has a secretary to convert it into the traditional form. Almost anything else is apt to land in Fanny's lap.

"One day Mrs. Berg told me to go out and by her bloomers." Mrs Merrill said, still with some shock in her voice. "I told her that it was all right for me to go along with her to Hattie Carnegie's and Bergdorf's for dresses and to help pick out other things, but a person should pick out her own underwear. But I had to get it for her."

The pair loves to sample restaurant fare.

"You'll find us wherever there's good food and lots of it," she said, gaily. "And every Sunday for the past 21 years we've sworn to go on a diet the next day. Puffed eggs is what does it each time," said Fanny, "we love them."

Gertrude, who has turned out close to 5,000 scripts on Goldberg adventures and produced a hit play, "Me and Molly," on them, has a quick temper.

"But once it's out, it's over," says Fanny, "I figure she's got to let off steam some way. I sometimes think it upsets me inside, because I'm not that way myself. I don't think I've ever lost my temper. When something really upsets me, I just walk out and don't come back."

She more or less stumbled into her present job. Both she and her son Howard were doing some acting in the old silent days, and then Howard naturally slid over into radio roles. Gertrude, about to launch The Goldbergs, did a mother part in a show with Howard. The two women met and took an instant liking to one another.

One day Fanny told Gertrude she thought it would be a good idea if she separated her fan mail into two piles, Christian and Jewish, sending the Jewish listeners Yom Kippur cards and the Christian, Christmas greetings. Soon Mrs. Merrill was handling all the fan mail of the successful program, and then slid into other jobs when they popped up.

She has been doing the casting for the Goldberg's for years—subject to a final okay from Gertrude.

"I've been with the show so long I get all mixed up on things," she said. "Sometimes I can't remember whether things happened to the Goldbergs, to Mrs. Berg's family or to my own family."

Gertrude, who has made a reputation and a fortune depicting family life in the Bronx, actually is a native of Delaware County, upstate, where her family ran a hotel. Fanny, nee Goldberg—"strictly a coincidence," comes from the borough of the Yankee Stadium.

After all the years, Fanny still thinks Gertrude Berg is just about the finest woman alive. The feeling is mutual. Fanny thinks they get along well because they are both tolerant.

"After all, we've been repeating the same stories to each other for 21 years," she confessed, "and we both like the same old stories over again. Anyway, we listen politely."

Election Meeting Planned

Plans for the annual election of Celanese Locali 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO, will be discussed at membership meeting Tuesday, November 21. Action on the election was slated Wednesday night but no quarum was present, according to Earl L. Snyder, president.

Gonder Will Ask Recount

Bernard I. Gonder, Oakland resident who was defeated by one vote in the November 7 election as the Democratic candidate for the State Senate from Garrett County, will challenge the results and ask for a recount.

Gonder was nosed out by the incumbent Republican, Senator Neil C. Fraley. The official count was 3,080 for Fraley to Gonder's 3,079.

The State Senate will receive Gonder's petition in the January session and will act on it, setting the place and conditions of the recount.

Gonder said: "After the unofficial tabulation showed that I had lost by 21 votes I made up my mind not to ask for a recount. However, when the official tally had reduced my opponent's lead to only one vote, I was urged by many of my friends and supporters, not only in Garrett county but throughout the state, to challenge the count. I did not feel that I could ignore their request, especially when reports of election irregularities began to reach me, I decided to go into the matter as fully as possible.

"Of course I do not suspect any deliberate attempt to change the vote, but I do have evidence that certain irregularities occurred in the marking and counting of the ballots which could alter the result."

Hearings will be arranged and persons having knowledge of discrepancies in counting or marking of ballots will have an opportunity to present their statements.

Merrill And Berg Make "The Goldbergs" For Radio And Television Followers

NEW YORK — Fortunately for Gertrude Berg, Fanny Merrill is no clockwatcher. She has never let things like a private life interfere with "the Goldbergs."

Mrs. Merrill, short, gray-haired and friendly as a puppy, is the sturdy left arm of the tireless Mrs. Berg who has created a warm, funny, true-to-life Bronx family for more than two decades of radio and television. There's no adequate name for Fanny's salaried function, but she is referred to as "Shadow" by friends. It is very possible that, should Fanny decide to sample of joys of home and hearth, Gertrude would be forced into premature retirement and the nation would lose a heroine, Molly Goldberg.

But Fanny loves her life, even when it means a lengthy separation from her husband, a composer, and son Howard, a successful radio and television writer. Last summer she was off to California with Gertrude to make the Goldbergs, then on radio and TV, into a movie.

In a single day, Mrs. Merrill is by turns a sounding board (Mrs. Berg likes to "talk out" plots) amannuensis, personal shopper, casting director and chum. They've worked as a smooth team since 1929, but Fanny has never lost a jot of her vast admiration for the middle-aged, friendly and charming Mrs. Berg.

Mrs. Berg does all her script writing in long-hand, and has a secretary to convert it into the traditional form. Almost anything else is apt to land in Fanny's lap.

"One day Mrs. Berg told me to go out and by her bloomers." Mrs Merrill said, still with some shock in her voice. "I told her that it was all right for me to go along with her to Hattie Carnegie's and Bergdorf's for dresses and to help pick out other things, but a person should pick out her own underwear. But I had to get it for her."

The pair loves to sample restaurant fare.

"You'll find us wherever there's good food and lots of it," she said, gaily. "And every Sunday for the past 21 years we've sworn to go on a diet the next day. Puffed eggs is what does it each time," said Fanny, "we love them."

Gertrude, who has turned out close to 5,000 scripts on Goldberg adventures and produced a hit play, "Me and Molly," on them, has a quick temper.

"But once it's out, it's over," says Fanny, "I figure she's got to let off steam some way. I sometimes think it upsets me inside, because I'm not that way myself. I don't think I've ever lost my temper. When something really upsets me, I just walk out and don't come back."

She more or less stumbled into her present job. Both she and her son Howard were doing some acting in the old silent days, and then Howard naturally slid over into radio roles. Gertrude, about to launch The Goldbergs, did a mother part in a show with Howard. The two women met and took an instant liking to one another.

One day Fanny told Gertrude she thought it would be a good idea if she separated her fan mail into two piles, Christian and Jewish, sending the Jewish listeners Yom Kippur cards and the Christian, Christmas greetings. Soon Mrs. Merrill was handling all the fan mail of the successful program, and then slid into other jobs when they popped up.

She has been doing the casting for the Goldberg's for years—subject to a final okay from Gertrude.

"I've been with the show so long I get all mixed up on things," she said. "Sometimes I can't remember whether things happened to the Goldbergs, to Mrs. Berg's family or to my own family."

Gertrude, who has made a reputation and a fortune depicting family life in the Bronx, actually is a native of Delaware County, upstate, where her family ran a hotel. Fanny, nee Goldberg—"strictly a coincidence," comes from the borough of the Yankee Stadium.

After all the years, Fanny still thinks Gertrude Berg is just about the finest woman alive. The feeling is mutual. Fanny thinks they get along well because they are both tolerant.

"After all, we've been repeating the same stories to each other for 21 years," she confessed, "and we both like the same old stories over again. Anyway, we listen politely."

Election Meeting Planned

Plans for the annual election of Celanese Locali 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO, will be discussed at membership meeting Tuesday, November 21. Action on the election was slated Wednesday night but no quarum was present, according to Earl L. Snyder, president.

Gonder Will Ask Recount

Bernard I. Gonder, Oakland resident who was defeated by one vote in the November 7 election as the Democratic candidate for the State Senate from Garrett County, will challenge the results and ask for a recount.

Gonder was nosed out by the incumbent Republican, Senator Neil C. Fraley. The official count was 3,080 for Fraley to Gonder's 3,079.

The State Senate will receive Gonder's petition in the January session and will act on it, setting the place and conditions of the recount.

Gonder said: "After the unofficial tabulation showed that I had lost by 21 votes I made up my mind not to ask for a recount. However, when the official tally had reduced my opponent's lead to only one vote, I was urged by many of my friends and supporters, not only in Garrett county but throughout the state, to challenge the count. I did not feel that I could ignore their request, especially when reports of election irregularities began to reach me, I decided to go into the matter as fully as possible.

"Of course I do not suspect any deliberate attempt to change the vote, but I do have evidence that certain irregularities occurred in the marking and counting of the ballots which could alter the result."

Hearings will be arranged and persons having knowledge of discrepancies in counting or marking of ballots will have an opportunity to present their statements.

Industrial Plan Outlined To Local Committee

$300,000 Subscription Suggested By Advisor

A three-year plan for this area costing $300,000 was outlined by a spokesman for Richardson Wood and Company, New York industrial consultants, Wednesday night before three industrial development groups and city and county officials.

Attending the session in the office of the Department of Employment Security were representatives of the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Company, Inc.; the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee and the Steering Committee for Economic Development.

Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the county industrial promotion committee, said that James M. Vacary, public opinion researcher for Richardson Wood, proposed a three-year plan entailing the public subscription of $300,000.

$200,000 For Capital

Of this sum, $100,000 would be for administrative and operating expenses. The $200,000 would be kept on hand for equity capital purposes, Kenney said.

Richardson Wood, under the plan outlined by Vacary, will furnish the same service it has given under its six-month contract with the county groups.

Woods contract is up in February, 1951, Kenney pointed out, and the three industrial promotion groups will be forced to take some action at that time towards obtaining an agent in New York to keep Cumberland and Allegany county in line for factory possibilities.

Kenney said Richardson Wood, in its present contract, has participated in the Berkowitz Pajama Company expansion financing at Frostburg.

The firm also has obtained about 25 leads for industries seeking to locate plants. Of these, Kenney stated, 11 are still in the active stage, or, in other words, are being investigated.

Current Cost $10,000

The present contract for $10,000 covers six months. The city and county each contributed $5,000 to finance it.

Kenney stated that the group primarily interested in the new proposal is the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Company, Inc., which has Benjamin M. Kamens as president.

Of the three county agencies, this one is underwritten and deals with the financial end of the industrial promotion setup here.

Kamens was present last night in behalf of his group. Others attending were Kenney, David Kauffman, chairman of the steering committee; Harold W. Smith, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce; County Commissioners James Holmes and William H. Lemmert, and Mayor Thomas S. Post, Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder; City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey, and representatives of organized labor.

Arthritis Fund Drive Planned

Plans are progressing for a county branch of the Maryland Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism National Foundation to conduct a fund drive, according to William C. Walsh, local attorney and member of the state group's board of directors.

The Maryland Chapter is headed by Howard Bruce, honorary chairman; Mrs. W. Wallace Lanahan, honorary vice chairman; Clarence W. Miles, president, and Walter N. Kirkman, secretary. All are of Baltimore.

A five-point program of service to the people of Maryland has been developed for application in this state according to Mr. Miles. It is:

1. Providing funds to aid in the organization and development of new arthritis clinics throughout Maryland.
2. Providing funds for the procurement of the newer forms of treatment of patients worthy of assistance.
3. Providing funds for research in arthritis and rheumatism.
4. Providing funds for home nursing service.
5. Providing funds to aid in the development of physical medicine, for the treatment and rehabilitation of patients suffering from arthritis and rheumatism.

To implement this program, clinical fellowships will be set up for training doctors, and a program of education for the general public will be conducted.

Arthritis Fund Drive Planned

Plans are progressing for a county branch of the Maryland Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism National Foundation to conduct a fund drive, according to William C. Walsh, local attorney and member of the state group's board of directors.

The Maryland Chapter is headed by Howard Bruce, honorary chairman; Mrs. W. Wallace Lanahan, honorary vice chairman; Clarence W. Miles, president, and Walter N. Kirkman, secretary. All are of Baltimore.

A five-point program of service to the people of Maryland has been developed for application in this state according to Mr. Miles. It is:

1. Providing funds to aid in the organization and development of new arthritis clinics throughout Maryland.
2. Providing funds for the procurement of the newer forms of treatment of patients worthy of assistance.
3. Providing funds for research in arthritis and rheumatism.
4. Providing funds for home nursing service.
5. Providing funds to aid in the development of physical medicine, for the treatment and rehabilitation of patients suffering from arthritis and rheumatism.

To implement this program, clinical fellowships will be set up for training doctors, and a program of education for the general public will be conducted.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

New Fire Truck Due In City By Next Week

Truck To Be Used By West Side Station

Commissioner Long and Assistant Chief R. Paul Reid left last night for New York to inspect the newest pumper for the Cumberland Fire Department which is to arrive in the city next week, according to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

The truck, constructed by the Mack Company at its Long Island factory, will probably leave the plant Monday for delivery at Baltimore.

The commissioner said Assistant Chiefs William V. Linder and Reid and two fire company chauffeurs will meet the truck in Baltimore and drive it here.

A representative of the factory will accompany the vehicle here to be present when National Underwriters tests are given.

The truck has a 750-gallon-per-minute centrifugal pump, capable of 150 pounds pressure, equipped with a fog nozzle attachment, one of the latest developments in fire fighting. The fog does not cause the damage that a direct stream of water does.

The vehicle has a 100-gallon booster tank and will carry 1,200 feet of 2½-inch hose; 350 feet of 1½-inch hose, and 150 feet of ¾-inch booster hose.

This truck will be placed in operation at the West Side Fire Station. The old pumper will be kept for Cumberland's second line of fire defense, Long pointed out. This will result in a higher underwriters rating, officials say.

The commissioner also said that several subjects were covered in his recent meeting with the supervisory officers of the fire department.

Long reported that the training program will be stepped up. All practice sessions will be held in front of Central Fire Station in City Hall plaza.

Assistant Chief Reid reported that the inspection department has already visited several public buildings, including the two hospitals; several schools and stores.

Inspectors are firemen drawn from the ranks, Long said. This serves two purposes, he explained, one to make the men familiar with the interiors of public buildings, gaining knowledge of their layouts for use in case of fire, and second, to acquaint them with the causes of fire in order to further fire prevention.

Long said the inspection department has been instructed to be particularly alert as to the fuses in the electric switch boxes noting to see whether they have a higher ampere fuse, thereby overloading the wiring.

The commissioner said that the department is gradually repairing the alarm system. He added that much badly damaged wire has been replaced.

Troopers Given Shooting Awards At Inspection

The annual inspection of the LaVale Barracks "C" by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of the Maryland State Police, and staff officers from Pikesville was featured by the presentation of medals for noteworthy shooting.

Acclaimed experts were Sgt. Harry Holsinger and Troopers John F. Browning, George E. Coddington, A. M. Spioch, Paul T. Long and Charles DeWitt.

In pistol tests held last May Trooper Browning made 286 out of 300, shooting a .38 caliber special revolver while firing the Army "L" course. In 1949 he led the field again with 291 points. He was all-state high scorer the previous year.

Sharpshooters included Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander at LaVale, who is away on special duty, and Troopers Glen D. Folk, Blair J. Buckel and Timothy M. Gilmore. Trooper Milton G. Hart was awarded the marksman's medal.

Marksmen must make 210 of a possible 300. Other ratings are sharpshooter, 240, and experts, 255.

Assisting Col. Jarman with the inspection were Major Buxton Ridgeley, executive officer; Captain W. H. Weber, field force commander; Captain G. E. Davidson, chief of the Identification and Investigation Bureau; Captain Charles W. Magaha, commander of Troop B in Western Maryland; Captain Andrew T. Connor, administrative officer, and Captain Louis Bloom, communications officer.

The officials checked personnel records of the office, the communication setup, housing and food facilities and all equipment.

Romanian Doctor Castigated For Using U. S. Drugs

VIENNA—(AP)—A Bucharest physician recently prescribed American drugs for two of his patients and immediately was castigated by Romania's Communist government.

Among other things, the doctor was described as: "A submissive servant of the imperialists," "a tool of inveterate reactionaries," "a man without professional honor," a worshipper of American specialities."

The doctor also was accused of a glaring lack of "Stalinist self-criticism."

All this because he prescribed 4,000 tablets of glutamic acid and three bottles of aureomycin made by an American firm (Parke and Davis) for a father and his son. The father has syphilis and hemorrhoids, the son has advanced cerebral anemia and syphilis.

Monitorul Sanitar, the official publication of the Romanian Ministry of Health, identified the offender as Dr. Stefan M. Radulescu of the Dragasani Hospital, and devoted more than 600 words to an editorial pointing out Dr. Radulescu's "errors."

After asking rhetorically where Dr. Radulescu heard about these American "wonder drugs," the editorial said they aren't necessary in the Romanian peoples democracy.

"Thousands and thousands of people are treated in this country with very good results by using scientific methods and local drugs.

"Where is Dr. Radulescu's respect for his medical knowledge, for his long work in the university? Who can trust a doctor who consents to become a tool of the inveterate reactionaries?

"Dr. Radulescu excuses himself, says that he does not know, that he did not realize. Far from admitting his mistakes, seriously analyzing them and drawing conclusions, he pretends that all this happened 'unconsciously,' due to carelessness.

"He is not absent minded, but purely and simply cosmopolitan, a worshipper of American specialities, nicely packed in multicolored boxes. He has been dazed by the cosmopolitan poison, which had made him lose his honor x x x

"The bourgeoisie have taught Dr. Radulescu to be a submissive servant of the imperialists, and he does not understand that all this is not compatible with the activity of a doctor in the Romanian peoples democracy."

Arabian Prince Likes Low Prices At Home, Curves Of U. S. Actresses

WASHINGTON (INS) — Prince Fahad Al-Sakh of Kuwaton, Arabia, likes the low cost of living in his home country but also the curves of United States movie actresses.

Interviewed at his suite in the rambling Wardman Park hotel after a tour of the U. S., the Prince reported that, in his oil rich land, cigarets are four and one-half cents a pack. Rent for a five-room house is about two dollars a month.

He stopped one reporter who thought he might like to move there by saying that there is no price on whisky because none is drunk there.

The Prince has been visiting the nations leading industrial and resort centers, wearing his national costume. He said he likes the cleanliness of Washington but the fun of New York.

At home, he said, he has all the modern conveniences excepting television and would have that if there were a broadcasting station nearby.

A reporter asked what he thought of American women. He replied: "they are like all women."

Another asked whether he liked the curves of the motion picture stars. He replied "why not!" However, he rejected an invitation to meet some of them at a reception later. Reason? Previous engagement.

Educated in the American University of Beyruth, Syria, the Prince praised highly the work of American missionaries in the Near East. He noted that their institutions treated the poor for nothing.

A man who had been a book salesman for twenty years decided there was more money in selling vacuum cleaners, and secured the local agency for a well-known brand. His very first prospect was a skeptical housewife who asked, "Are you sure that contraption will gather up every single bit of dirt?" "Lady," said the salesman earnestly, "I ran this cleaner lightly over a copy of Lady Chatterley's Lover yesterday, and when I was finished, it was Louise Alcott's Little Women!"

John O'Connell reports that Author Eric Hodgins finds writing a monumental chore. When he finished "Blanding's Way," for instance, his almost-new typewriter was in need of extensive repairs. The man who had sold him the machine said, "We get back twenty-year-old typewriters that aren't half as beat up as this." Hodgins reported later, "I had to ask him to repeat that statement. The way I feel, I was sure he said eighty-year-old authors."

California Boy Has Life Story With Never Ending Adventure

AP Newsfeatures

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—This is the story of four years of a boy's life. It has no ending, as you will see.

Written four years ago, the ending would have seemed inevitably to be death; two years ago, prison or at best a mental institution. Now the ending is for you to guess, and the boy, who is only 14, to live.

The story of Ted Johnson (and that isn't his real name; it's not important) is told in articles in the Santa Barbara News-Press. They began four years ago:

July 17, 1946—"Severely burned when a blow torch with which he was playing exploded, Ted Johnson, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Johnson, was reported in critical condition today . . . Fire Chief C. L. Tenney said the lad found the blowtorch in the rear of a waterfront building. The flames set fire to the structure and the boy ran screaming to the ocean where he plunged into the surf in an effort to halt the pain.

"Attending physicians said Ted will be lucky if he recovers. Three fourths of his body is covered with first degree burns."

Oct. 9, 1946—"A plea for A-type blood donors to aid a 10-year-old boy severely burned by a blowtorch July 17 was issued today by his parents . . ."

Nov. 26, 1946—"Wanted: a place to live. Remember the Johnson boy who was dangerously burned by a blowtorch?

"Ted is just beginning to take a few steps on his reconditioned legs. The hospital says he is ready to go home—but his family's apartment is not large enough to hold a person needing medical care."

Oct. 26, 1947—"Police investigating the conduct of an 11-year-old boy suspected of arson took testimony from eight persons in his neighborhood today.

"These persons said the boy threw lighted matches on porches, set a haystack ablaze and set lighted candles on their window sills. . ."

April 9, 1948—"An 11-year-old boy—almost, but not quite, like any other kid in Santa Barbara—is in Juvenile Hall today because yesterday he tried to wreck the Southern Pacific Daylight.

"If you saw him and talked to him you would like him. And you would think he was just like the boy across the street—until you noticed that one side of his face is scarred by burns."

At this point the probation department of juvenile court took over the problem of Ted Johnson, grossly scarred and crippled, a fire bug and would-be train wrecker.

April 20, 1948—"The 11-year-old boy who set fires in buildings at Hoff Heights and made two attempts to wreck railroad trains will be sent to Los Angeles for plastic surgery . . ."

The operation improved Ted's looks and helped his crippled right arm, but mentally he was far from cured. At Juvenile Hall he continued to play with fire. He had to be carefully watched. After six months doctors recommended that he be sent where he could have home-like care. Ted went to the Optimist's Boys Home in Los Angeles.

Eighteen months later, when he was released to his mother and stepfather, the home reported his adjustment was excellent. At first a "Frankenstein monster," Ted gradually made friends and developed a cooperative attitude. He especially liked games in which masks were used—they covered his facial scars. True, he was still very much interested in fires, but he hadn't started any.

Ted has been home three months now. He's starting life anew in Bakersfield, Calif., where his family has moved. He's had a couple of operations since he arrived which have made his crippled arm and leg more limber. He'll have more, including plastic surgery, doctors say.

He is still a ward of the local court. They'll keep a close watch over him for the next few years. They hope Ted's story will have a happy ending. It's up to him.

In Amphibious Landing

Lonnie B. Allen, seaman apprentice, Green Spring, W. Va., is aboard one of the Navy's destroyers which struck a blow against North Korean Communists in an amphibious landing on Korea's west coast recently.

New Trial Has Been Granted To Walburn

A new trial has been granted to James C. Walburn, former Martinsburg, W. Va., man found guilty last March in Garrett County Circuit Court for assault with intent to kill his infant son.

Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., granted the motion for action in the March term of court at Oakland.

Walburn is serving an eight-year term in the Maryland Penitentiary. He is represented by two Oakland attorneys, Walter W. Dawson and S. R. Pagenhardt.

The former insurance firm investigator was arrested last winter after his child was brought to a Martinsburg hospital in an unconscious condition as a result of a beating.

The alleged assault occurred in a Deep Creek Lake cabin where Walburn, his wife and child were staying while he was working in the McHenry section.

California Boy Has Life Story With Never Ending Adventure

AP Newsfeatures

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—This is the story of four years of a boy's life. It has no ending, as you will see.

Written four years ago, the ending would have seemed inevitably to be death; two years ago, prison or at best a mental institution. Now the ending is for you to guess, and the boy, who is only 14, to live.

The story of Ted Johnson (and that isn't his real name; it's not important) is told in articles in the Santa Barbara News-Press. They began four years ago:

July 17, 1946—"Severely burned when a blow torch with which he was playing exploded, Ted Johnson, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Johnson, was reported in critical condition today . . . Fire Chief C. L. Tenney said the lad found the blowtorch in the rear of a waterfront building. The flames set fire to the structure and the boy ran screaming to the ocean where he plunged into the surf in an effort to halt the pain.

"Attending physicians said Ted will be lucky if he recovers. Three fourths of his body is covered with first degree burns."

Oct. 9, 1946—"A plea for A-type blood donors to aid a 10-year-old boy severely burned by a blowtorch July 17 was issued today by his parents . . ."

Nov. 26, 1946—"Wanted: a place to live. Remember the Johnson boy who was dangerously burned by a blowtorch?

"Ted is just beginning to take a few steps on his reconditioned legs. The hospital says he is ready to go home—but his family's apartment is not large enough to hold a person needing medical care."

Oct. 26, 1947—"Police investigating the conduct of an 11-year-old boy suspected of arson took testimony from eight persons in his neighborhood today.

"These persons said the boy threw lighted matches on porches, set a haystack ablaze and set lighted candles on their window sills. . ."

April 9, 1948—"An 11-year-old boy—almost, but not quite, like any other kid in Santa Barbara—is in Juvenile Hall today because yesterday he tried to wreck the Southern Pacific Daylight.

"If you saw him and talked to him you would like him. And you would think he was just like the boy across the street—until you noticed that one side of his face is scarred by burns."

At this point the probation department of juvenile court took over the problem of Ted Johnson, grossly scarred and crippled, a fire bug and would-be train wrecker.

April 20, 1948—"The 11-year-old boy who set fires in buildings at Hoff Heights and made two attempts to wreck railroad trains will be sent to Los Angeles for plastic surgery . . ."

The operation improved Ted's looks and helped his crippled right arm, but mentally he was far from cured. At Juvenile Hall he continued to play with fire. He had to be carefully watched. After six months doctors recommended that he be sent where he could have home-like care. Ted went to the Optimist's Boys Home in Los Angeles.

Eighteen months later, when he was released to his mother and stepfather, the home reported his adjustment was excellent. At first a "Frankenstein monster," Ted gradually made friends and developed a cooperative attitude. He especially liked games in which masks were used—they covered his facial scars. True, he was still very much interested in fires, but he hadn't started any.

Ted has been home three months now. He's starting life anew in Bakersfield, Calif., where his family has moved. He's had a couple of operations since he arrived which have made his crippled arm and leg more limber. He'll have more, including plastic surgery, doctors say.

He is still a ward of the local court. They'll keep a close watch over him for the next few years. They hope Ted's story will have a happy ending. It's up to him.

New Trial Has Been Granted To Walburn

A new trial has been granted to James C. Walburn, former Martinsburg, W. Va., man found guilty last March in Garrett County Circuit Court for assault with intent to kill his infant son.

Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., granted the motion for action in the March term of court at Oakland.

Walburn is serving an eight-year term in the Maryland Penitentiary. He is represented by two Oakland attorneys, Walter W. Dawson and S. R. Pagenhardt.

The former insurance firm investigator was arrested last winter after his child was brought to a Martinsburg hospital in an unconscious condition as a result of a beating.

The alleged assault occurred in a Deep Creek Lake cabin where Walburn, his wife and child were staying while he was working in the McHenry section.

Dr. Whitworth Named Head Of Area Scouters

Reports Given At Westernport Meeting

WESTERNPORT—Dr. Donald P Whitworth was elected chairman of the Tri-Towns District Scouters at the monthly meeting Wednesday at Odd Fellow's Hall. Dr. Whitworth succeeds Rev. G. Stanley Schwind who is completing a two-year term in that office.

Other officers named were C. Albert Beck, vice chairman, and Rev. Schwind, district commissioner. The report of the nominating committee was given by the chairman, Julian G. Patrick, Westernport, president of Potomac Council of Boy Scouts. The new officers will assume duties in January.

Rev. Schwind reported that the recent roll call for reregistration of the troops was fairly successful. He also noted the possibility of organizing three additional troops in the district and helping another to reorganize.

Black said the total number of boys enrolled in scouting went from 174 last year to 251 this year.

Relative to the annual week end trip of the Boy Scouts in May, Alton R. Fortney, who has charge of the trip suggested that they either visit the Luray Cavern or another cavern.

Fortney who is also chairman for the annual Scout Circus to be held at the Piedmont High School in February reported progress.

The general Christmas party of the Boy and Girl Scouts and the one for the Brownie troops would be held in the recreation hall of Piedmont Trinity Methodist Church The dates will be December 5 and 8.

Five troops have gathered used paper which they will load next Tuesday at 5:30 to sell to a local business man who will resell it.

Troop No. 30, of which Carl McMillen is scoutmaster, was declared winner of the 1950 Scouts Soft Ball tournament.

Evan Meese, representing Piedmont Lodge No. 1120, Loyal Order of the Moose, stated that the lodge was considering in the future of giving a "floating" trophy to the winning team of the soft ball league

Patrick gave a report of the Top Hand meeting of the district chairmen of Potomac Council, district commissioners and the heads of the operating committees of the council held recently at Potomac State School in Keyser, W. Va. He said it would be necessary to raise the budget next year to a little over $13,000, about $1,000 more than this year.

Keyser Clubmen Urged To Strive For Americanism

Morgantown Man Seeks Action Now

KEYSER, W. Va.—Homer Hoskins, Morgantown, former director of the Geological Survey in West Virginia, and governor elect of the West Virginia District of Kiwanis Clubs, told Keyser business and professional men Thursday, that "we, as moving parts of Americanism, have a job to do in protecting our freedoms against those who would destroy all for which America stands."

The speaker was an honored guest at the annual Rotarian luncheon to members of the three service clubs of Keyser, the Rotarian, Lions and Kiwanis groups. The luncheon, served in the Odd Fellows Temple, North Mineral Street, was attended by 150 service club members and guests, including two senior students at Keyser High School.

Hoskins made reference to the alleged encroachments into various departments of our federal government of individuals and groups whose aims are not for Americanism but for disturbance of the customary ways of American life in government. "They are threatening the very existence of our government," he said.

"A few years ago it was the fifth column of Hitler's form of government and now it is Communism. Communist infiltration in America is dangerous to all of us," he emphasized.

"The service clubs, Rotarians Kiwanis and Lions, do not play in politics as organizations but we must be awakened to the present dangers and work for elimination of the threat in every way," he continued. "Our members are alerted to the danger, but we must work with all the power we can muster against those who would destroy the freedoms we enjoy.

Communists and Communism cannot stand up against exposure if the light of intelligence is turned on brightly enough," Hoskin declared.

In concluding his address, Mr. Hoskins said:

"Fellows, I am convinced more than ever that we must personally put more of our religion into our daily lives; that we owe it to ourselves and to our town, state and nation to be more aggressive citizens; alert to the dangers confronting us, and to all we can to overcome them—now! Tomorrow may be too late.

"Let me end on a quotation from a news release just received from the editorial department of the Kiwanis Magazine; 'Beneath America's wonderful material civilization is a solid foundation of religious faith. Without this faith we could not have reached our heights, and unless our all-important spiritual foundation is nourished through appreciation, America cannot maintain its spiritual strength.'"

The luncheon meeting was opened by Chester J. Compton, president of the Rotary Club, who welcomed the guests. Rotarians introdued their non-member guests and visitors from out of town were introduced. Dr. Thomas Bess, past district president of Rotary, introduced Mr. Hoskins, who had come from Morgantown to appear at the luncheon meeting. In his short talk, Dr. Bess welcomed the Kiwanians, the youngest of the three service clubs into the service family locally, adding that they have a part to play in the general community service.

The presidents of the three local services sat at the speaker's table. In addition to Rotary's President Compton, there were Harry R. Taylor, president of the Lions, and James Handlan, president of the Kiwanis Club.

Keyser Clubmen Urged To Strive For Americanism

Morgantown Man Seeks Action Now

KEYSER, W. Va.—Homer Hoskins, Morgantown, former director of the Geological Survey in West Virginia, and governor elect of the West Virginia District of Kiwanis Clubs, told Keyser business and professional men Thursday, that "we, as moving parts of Americanism, have a job to do in protecting our freedoms against those who would destroy all for which America stands."

The speaker was an honored guest at the annual Rotarian luncheon to members of the three service clubs of Keyser, the Rotarian, Lions and Kiwanis groups. The luncheon, served in the Odd Fellows Temple, North Mineral Street, was attended by 150 service club members and guests, including two senior students at Keyser High School.

Hoskins made reference to the alleged encroachments into various departments of our federal government of individuals and groups whose aims are not for Americanism but for disturbance of the customary ways of American life in government. "They are threatening the very existence of our government," he said.

"A few years ago it was the fifth column of Hitler's form of government and now it is Communism. Communist infiltration in America is dangerous to all of us," he emphasized.

"The service clubs, Rotarians Kiwanis and Lions, do not play in politics as organizations but we must be awakened to the present dangers and work for elimination of the threat in every way," he continued. "Our members are alerted to the danger, but we must work with all the power we can muster against those who would destroy the freedoms we enjoy.

Communists and Communism cannot stand up against exposure if the light of intelligence is turned on brightly enough," Hoskin declared.

In concluding his address, Mr. Hoskins said:

"Fellows, I am convinced more than ever that we must personally put more of our religion into our daily lives; that we owe it to ourselves and to our town, state and nation to be more aggressive citizens; alert to the dangers confronting us, and to all we can to overcome them—now! Tomorrow may be too late.

"Let me end on a quotation from a news release just received from the editorial department of the Kiwanis Magazine; 'Beneath America's wonderful material civilization is a solid foundation of religious faith. Without this faith we could not have reached our heights, and unless our all-important spiritual foundation is nourished through appreciation, America cannot maintain its spiritual strength.'"

The luncheon meeting was opened by Chester J. Compton, president of the Rotary Club, who welcomed the guests. Rotarians introdued their non-member guests and visitors from out of town were introduced. Dr. Thomas Bess, past district president of Rotary, introduced Mr. Hoskins, who had come from Morgantown to appear at the luncheon meeting. In his short talk, Dr. Bess welcomed the Kiwanians, the youngest of the three service clubs into the service family locally, adding that they have a part to play in the general community service.

The presidents of the three local services sat at the speaker's table. In addition to Rotary's President Compton, there were Harry R. Taylor, president of the Lions, and James Handlan, president of the Kiwanis Club.

Rec Directors For Tri-Towns Are Reappointed

Eight-Week Program Planned Next Year

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Harold Marsh and Rodney Baker, co-directors of the Tri-Towns Recreation Association summer program, were appointed for next summer at the monthly meeting of the association held Tuesday evening at the Piedmon Library, with Vernon A. Staggers, president, presiding.

The tentative budget prepared by the steering committee of $1,590 was accepted. The salaries of the two directors were increased to $40 per week each and an eight-week program was authorized.

Raymond C. Hudson, acting treasurer for George Boyd, gave a report.

The association expressed appreciation for donations by organizations and individuals to the program.

A letter was read from Rev. Robert E. Cassell, pastor of the Westernport Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, stating the board of his church could not give use of part of their lot for a neighborhood playground. The deed of the ground restricts it to church purposes.

Albert M. Kaiser, manager of the Luke Mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, has granted the association permission to use the "Little Ball Ground" on the county road, Westernport, and the old Maryland Avenue, Westernport, tennis courts for playground purposes.

At the next meeting to be held at the Piedmont Library Tuesday evening, December 12, at 7:30 the fund-raising campaign early next spring will be discussed.

Grand Coulee Will Start Filling Up In Few Months

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

COULEE DAM, Wash.—(AP)—In a few months, for the first time in 50,000 years, the huge Grand Coulee canyon, a dried-up course of the Columbia river, will start filling with water.

The canyon will hold a lake 27 miles long, two to five miles wide, and up to 90 feet deep—the start for irrigating in the Big Bend country of Washington, 85 miles by 65, with a goal of 14,000 families where now there isn't much but crumpled lava rock and sage brush.

This project is an example of the curious and unpredictable events coming out of science. The idea started more than half a century ago. It was then visioned as diverting part of the Columbia River into the Grand Coulee, a thousand foot high walled canyon the Columbia cut when glaciers dammed it in the last ice age. The river now flows hundreds of feet lower past this canyon mouth floor.

Science figured a way to do the irrigation, not by diversion higher upriver, but building the present dam, where by-product electric power will pump Columbia water up to a level some 600 feet above the old river bed and into the canyon.

The dam's top is a two-lane high- has started, has changed the industrial economy of the entire northwestern United States. As the world's largest electric power plant, and part of a five-state electric network pool, the dam has brought in basic industries, including aluminum and caustic soda. It brought atomic energy in the form of plutonium made by the huge Hanford engineer works lying near the southern border of the irrigation district. It speeded airplane and shipbuilding.

The dam's top is a two-lane Highway, nearly a mile long, with a new lighting scheme. All light comes from electric lamps concealed inside hollow handrails guarding the walks at the highway sides.

You are 370 feet above the river, about twice as high as Niagara Falls. Elevators take you down inside the dam. The floor numbering is upside down. With first floor at the top. But you don't call by floors. You say 1230 floor please,—or 1190—your floor's elevation above sea level.

You enter eight-and-a-half miles of inspection corridors. And when you stand at the level of the water on the down-side of the dam, there is more concrete below your feet than forms all the great Hoover dam across the Colorado river, which is itself one of the world's big ones. That is, Hoover's total concrete wouldn't even rise above the Columbia water, if spread as in the base of this dam.

Result of the election is pretty much like a fellow looking at his grapefruit in the morning. This time he's sure they didn't keep the bigger half in the kitchen.

An egg four and one-half inches long was reported laid in Ohio. By a hen of a traveling stock company?

Recreation Study Plan Faces Delay

Temporary delay faces a proposal of the State Planning Commission to make a full-scale study, costing about $10,000, of the recreational possibilities of Western Maryland.

The State Board of Public Works agreed at a meeting in Baltimore that it would not act on any more money questions without prior consultation with Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin.

McKeldin will serve on the board after his inauguration January 10.

The Senate is divided as evenly as hinges in a door factory. Every day the Democratic whip will call the roll to make sure his slender majority hasn't slipped through its collar.

School Boys Asked To Help In Parade

Senior high school boys are being sought to help in handling the giant inflated figures in the balloon parade here November 27 which will open the Christmas season.

About 200 boys are needed, according to City Recreation Director Edmund F. Hoey, chairman of the personnel committee for the parade.

Youth Charged With Assault In Shooting

BEDFORD, Pa. — After his capture by police following a running gun battle, John Eddy, 18, was charged with assault with intent to kill.

The Decatur (Ill.) resident was arraigned formally before Justice of the Peace H. Cyril Bingham Bedford. He waived preliminary hearing and was taken back to jail for court action in default of $3,500 bail.

Eddy had been lodged in Bedford county jail after his capture. He was charged with violation of the Uniform Firearms Act and hit-and-run.

The youth, AWOL from the Army, wrecked a stolen car he was driving at the intersection of East Pitt Street and Route 220 here. He fled from the scene and later exchanged shots with pursuing officers.

Stalled Automobile Demolished By Train

An automobile which had been stalled 20 minutes on a railroad crossing at the west end of Keyser, W. Va., was struck and demolished Wednesday night by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train.

Roy D. Keplinger, 530 Newton Street, Keyser, told West Virginia State Police he was unable to get the car started after it stalled. He added that he had signaled the oncoming train with a flashlight but was unable to attract the attention of the engineer. The vehicle was dragged 133 feet by the train.

F. P. McCarty, 511 North Queen Street, Martinsburg, W. Va., was the engineer of the westbound train. He informed authorities he was watching for signal lights and did not notice Keplinger until it was too late to avoid striking the automobile.

Keplinger and his wife, a passenger in the vehicle, escaped injury by leaving the car before the crash.

DRAFTED BY BUCS—Branch Rickey represented the Pittsburgh Pirates at yesterday's major league session in Cincinnati and drafted George Metkovich, above, of Oakland, Calif., former major leaguer who hit 24 home runs and batted .316 in the Pacific Coast League. Metkovich formerly played with the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox.

Graham To Fight Gavilan Tonight

Welters To Tangle In New York Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — With Sugar Ray Robinson an ocean width away, Billy Graham and Kid Gavilan fight tomorrow night for New York ranking as No. 1 welter centender.

Since there is a chance Robinson never will get around to fighting as a welter again, this could be a most important bout. Robinson wants his promised middleweight title shot at Jake LaMotta in February.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, will name the winner of this 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden as the leading welter contender. Abe Greene, NBA commissioner, dissents. Charlie Fusari is his candidate.

The result probably will be an involved series of eliminations if Robinson ever gives up his championship.

Majors Draft 25 From Minors For $239,500

Eleven Saw Previous Service In Big Show

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP) — Major league teams, hoping to plug gaping holes in their 1951 lineups, picked up 25 minor loop players today in the annual draft at a cost of $239,500.

Eleven of the 25 have seen previous major league service, and the average age of the draftees — around 26 years — is the highest ever in the annual talent grab from the bush loops.

A dozen pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and a pair of outfielders were elevated to the big time.

The 16 big league clubs have until midnight Friday to post more claims for players by telegraph, and if any come in with more selections to Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the total may soar far above the 1949 figure of 21 draftees, for whom $192,500 was paid.

The Triple-A clubs, who may be excused from the draft next year, were raided for 22 of the 25 players, the American Association giving up nine, the Pacific Coast seven, and the International League six. Each cost the major loopers $10,000.

11 Played In Majors

In picking up 11 former major leaguers, the bigwig moguls evidently were attempting to grab tested talent to fill holes which might be made by present participants going into the military service, rather than gamble on minor league kids who have never shown under the big top.

The Kansas City farm of the New York Yankees was the big loser in the draft, three players being picked off the eighth place club of the American Association.

Pittsburgh picked up first baseman Richard Dale Long, the bonus player shifted to Kansas City after batting .286 as a first baseman for Binghamton last season; Jack Cusick, shortstop, moved to Kansas City after batting .234 for Houston and Beaumont, going to the Chicago Cubs, and bonus pitcher Paul Hinrichs being claimed by the Boston Americans after winning six and losing five for the Blues last season.

Bucs Get Metkovich

Today's draft marked the first since 1946 that a pitcher was not the first choice. Branch Rickey, making the opening selection as representative of the last place Pittsburgh Pirates of the National loop, put his finger on George Metkovich of Oakland, Calif., former big league outfielder who hit 24 home runs and batted .316 for the Pacific Coast League club. Metkovich batted in 144 runs on his 233 hits in 184 games, and amassed 34 doubles and eight triples.

Three National League clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants, and the Brooklyn Dodgers, did not make any draft selections. The American loop made 16 selections, including nine pitchers, and the National League drafted nine players.

Harry Dorish, who won four and lost nine for the St. Louis Browns last year, had one of the shortest minor league careers on record.

Chisox Land Dorish

Less than 48 hours before the draft was made he was shifted to the Toronto club of the International loop, but the Chicago White Sox picked him up as their No. 4 draft choice.

The Chicago clubs led the list in picking up talent, the American League White Sox taking four players and the National League clubs getting three. Washington also took three, reaching down into the Sally and Tri-State loops for a pitcher and catcher — the pitcher, Joe E. Hazle, having won eight and lost 12 for Greenville last year.

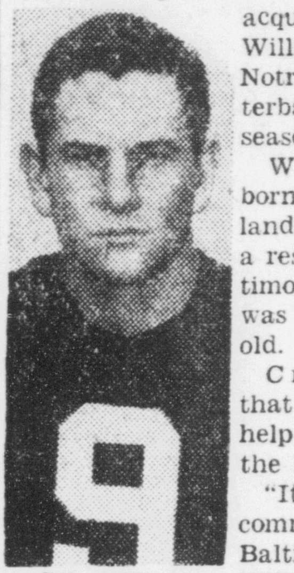
By C. V. BURNS

Clem Crowe, coach of the luckless Baltimore Colts, believes the National Football League should make arrangements for the Colts to acquire Bobby Williams, present Notre Dame quarterback, for next season.



Bob Williams

Williams was born in Cumberland and has been a resident of Baltimore since he was three years old.

Crowe feels that Bobby would help the club and the league.

"It only makes common sense for Baltimore to get Williams, whether we have the first draft choice or bonus pick or not," Crowe declared.

About one-third of the participants are negroes and most are from out-of-town. In the five shows held here this year there were 39 bouts and 78 participants. Twenty-five were negroes and 53 were white boxers.

Back in 1934 when the local K of C. and the Devon Club of Luke were staging amateur shows not a single negro boxer was listed among the 40 mittmen of the tri-state area. Bill Niland topped the boxers that year with a 15-3 record.

In 1935 the only negroes on the list of 60 boys were Frankie Freeman, Luke, and Francis Togan, Frostburg. Robert "Jiggs" McKnight led the hit parade with 12 wins and no defeats.

Frank Small, Jr., is reported to be headed for the post of chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission and the appointment will be made after Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin takes office.

Small is the lone Republican now on the commission and before the election he is reported to have told McKeldin he would be available if needed.

Two appointments will fall due during McKeldin's term. Wilbur R. Dulin will complete his tenure next year. The chairman's office, currently held by H. Courtnay Jenifer, will expire in 1953.

Chairman Jenifer is a Democrat and was a supporter of Lane's reelection.

Small favors a plan to have the state give up its half of the mutuel breakage—that amounts to $100,000 a year—to the tracks so the operators could keep purses on a suitable level.

Various horsemen's organizations want the receiving barn abolished as trainers claim many of the thoroughbreds "go to pieces" when locked up in the receiving barn for two hours prior to racing.

Small believes the tracks could save a lot of money and put it to better use for the horsemen should they be permitted to do away with the receiving barn and pre-race saliva tests. He is convinced prerace precautions taken in Maryland are not worth their cost.

Cincinnati Rules Ezzard Charles Must Shave Off Mustache For Bout

Must Be Clean Shaven For Barone Go Nov. 28

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ezzard Charles, world's heavyweight boxing champion, must shave off his mustache before fighting Nick Barone of Syracuse, N. Y., in a title bout here Nov. 28.

The city boxing commission so ruled today. Charles and the boys who boss the sport here have been fussing over the question for days. Charles is real proud of the thing.

"This rule applies not only to the champion, but to all boxers who fight in Cincinnati rings," Paul Cain, commission chairman, announced "The rules say the fighter must be clean shaven, and the examining physician for the commission has recommended that clean shaven means without any hirsute adornment whatsoever."

By Pitts Smith

ILLINOIS Vs. OHIO STATE—These midwestern giants clash in the most important game of the year. It not only decides the Big Ten champ, but also determines if Illinois is to meet California in the Rose Bowl Classic. This all-time thriller should go to the Illini on Johnny Karras' All-American performance.

OKLAHOMA Vs. MISSOURI—These exponents of the fabulous split T stage their annual party for better or worse. The Sooners finally snapped out of the doldrums by spicing their attack with a little air traveling. They are now beginning to look more like themselves. Graham To Fight Gavilan Tonight

Welters To Tangle In New York Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — With Sugar Ray Robinson an ocean width away, Billy Graham and Kid Gavilan fight tomorrow night for New York ranking as No. 1 welter contender.

Since there is a chance Robinson never will get around to fighting as a welter again, this could be a most important bout. Robinson wants his promised middleweight title shot at Jake LaMotta in February.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, will name the winner of this 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden as the leading welter contender. Abe Greene, NBA commissioner, dissents. Charlie Fusari is his candidate.

The result probably will be an involved series of eliminations if Robinson ever gives up his championship.

Majors Draft 25 From Minors For $239,500

Eleven Saw Previous Service In Big Show

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP) — Major league teams, hoping to plug gaping holes in their 1951 lineups, picked up 25 minor loop players today in the annual draft at a cost of $239,500.

Eleven of the 25 have seen previous major league service, and the average age of the draftees — around 26 years — is the highest ever in the annual talent grab from the bush loops.

A dozen pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and a pair of outfielders were elevated to the big time.

The 16 big league clubs have until midnight Friday to post more claims for players by telegraph, and if any come in with more selections to Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the total may soar far above the 1949 figure of 21 draftees, for whom $192,500 was paid.

The Triple-A clubs, who may be excused from the draft next year, were raided for 22 of the 25 players, the American Association giving up nine, the Pacific Coast seven, and the International League six. Each cost the major loopers $10,000.

11 Played In Majors

In picking up 11 former major leaguers, the bigwig moguls evidently were attempting to grab tested talent to fill holes which might be made by present participants going into the military service, rather than gamble on minor league kids who have never shown under the big top.

The Kansas City farm of the New York Yankees was the big loser in the draft, three players being picked off the eighth place club of the American Association.

Pittsburgh picked up first baseman Richard Dale Long, the bonus player shifted to Kansas City after batting .286 as a first baseman for Binghamton last season; Jack Cusick, shortstop, moved to Kansas City after batting .234 for Houston and Beaumont, going to the Chicago Cubs, and bonus pitcher Paul Hinrichs being claimed by the Boston Americans after winning six and losing five for the Blues last season.

Bucs Get Metkovich

Today's draft marked the first since 1946 that a pitcher was not the first choice. Branch Rickey, making the opening selection as representative of the last place Pittsburgh Pirates of the National loop, put his finger on George Metkovich of Oakland, Calif., former big league outfielder who hit 24 home runs and batted .316 for the Pacific Coast League club. Metkovich batted in 144 runs on his 233 hits in 184 games, and amassed 34 doubles and eight triples.

Three National League clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants, and the Brooklyn Dodgers, did not make any draft selections. The American loop made 16 selections, including nine pitchers, and the National League drafted nine players.

Harry Dorish, who won four and lost nine for the St. Louis Browns last year, had one of the shortest minor league careers on record.

Chisox Land Dorish

Less than 48 hours before the draft was made he was shifted to the Toronto club of the International loop, but the Chicago White Sox picked him up as their No. 4 draft choice.

The Chicago clubs led the list in picking up talent, the American League White Sox taking four players and the National League clubs getting three. Washington also took three, reaching down into the Sally and Tri-State loops for a pitcher and catcher — the pitcher, Joe E. Hazle, having won eight and lost 12 for Greenville last year.

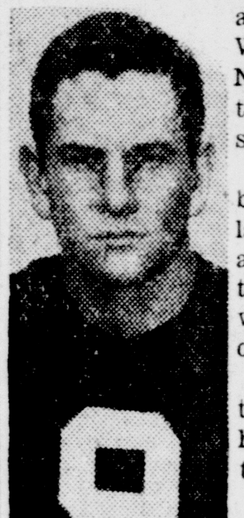
Colts Want Bobby • • • Small May Get Post

Rollin On The Ball • • • Invite To Hunters

By C. V. BURNS

Clem Crowe, coach of the luckless Baltimore Colts, believes the National Football League should make arrangements for the Colts to acquire Bobby Williams, present Notre Dame quarterback, for next season.



Bob Williams

Williams was born in Cumberland and has been a resident of Baltimore since he was three years old.

Crowe feels that Bobby would help the club and the league.

"It only makes common sense for Baltimore to get Williams, whether we have the first draft choice or bonus pick or not," Crowe declared.

About one-third of the participants are negroes and most are from out-of-town. In the five shows held here this year there were 39 bouts and 78 participants. Twenty-five were negroes and 53 were white boxers.

Back in 1934 when the local K of C. and the Devon Club of Luke were staging amateur shows not a single negro boxer was listed among the 40 mittmen of the tri-state area. Bill Niland topped the boxers that year with a 15-3 record.

In 1935 the only negroes on the list of 60 boys were Frankie Freeman, Luke, and Francis Togan, Frostburg. Robert "Jiggs" McKnight led the hit parade with 12 wins and no defeats.

Frank Small, Jr., is reported to be headed for the post of chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission and the appointment will be made after Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin takes office.

Small is the lone Republican now on the commission and before the election he is reported to have told McKeldin he would be available if needed.

Two appointments will fall due during McKeldin's term. Wilbur R. Dulin will complete his tenure next year. The chairman's office, currently held by H. Courtnay Jenifer, will expire in 1953.

Chairman Jenifer is a Democrat and was a supporter of Lane's reelection.

Small favors a plan to have the state give up its half of the mutuel breakage—that amounts to $100,000 a year—to the tracks so the operators could keep purses on a suitable level.

Various horsemen's organizations want the receiving barn abolished as trainers claim many of the thoroughbreds "go to pieces" when locked up in the receiving barn for two hours prior to racing.

Small believes the tracks could save a lot of money and put it to better use for the horsemen should they be permitted to do away with the receiving barn and pre-race saliva tests. He is convinced prerace precautions taken in Maryland are not worth their cost.

Must Be Clean Shaven For Barone Go Nov. 28

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ezzard Charles, world's heavyweight boxing champion, must shave off his mustache before fighting Nick Barone of Syracuse, N. Y., in a title bout here Nov. 28.

The city boxing commission so ruled today. Charles and the boys who boss the sport here have been fussing over the question for days. Charles is real proud of the thing.

"This rule applies not only to the champion, but to all boxers who fight in Cincinnati rings," Paul Cain, commission chairman, announced "The rules say the fighter must be clean shaven, and the examining physician for the commission has recommended that clean shaven means without any hirsute adornment whatsoever."

This all-time thriller should go to the Illini on Johnny Karras' All-American performance.

Frank Bone Falls In Pimlico Race

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Jockey Frank Bone, third leading rider in the country, escaped serious injury when he fell while riding Full Reward shortly after leaving the gate in the $3,500 Dress Parade Purse at Pimlico today.

John A. Manfuso's Alluring led from start to finish in the mile and sixteenth event and beat out Grandview Stable's Artist Life by a length and a half. E. B. Stewart's Perfect finished third some 2½ lengths ahead of Golden Bull, the even money farovite.

Only six horses went to the post and Near East finished last.

The spill occurred in full view of the grandstand, a few strides after the start. Golden Bull and Alluring both swerved a bit coming out of the barrier and Full Reward was in close quarters when the saddle slipped. The four-year-old appeared to stumble and then fell heavily.

Bone tried to get to his feet after hitting the ground but was groggy. He was carried from the track and taken to the dispensary. An examination disclosed no broken bones Bone, however, cancelled his one remaining mount of the day.

Jockey Joe Culmone added three more winners to bring his total for the year to 327. He scored with Sophocles at $3.60 in the opener, Banjoist, $3.40 in the fifth and First Degree, $8.40, in the eighth.

A turnout of 10,151 watched the semi-final card of the Pimlico fall meet which closes tomorrow.

Jockey Escapes Serious Injury

Frank Bone Falls In Pimlico Race

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Jockey Frank Bone, third leading rider in the country, escaped serious injury when he fell while riding Full Reward shortly after leaving the gate in the $3,500 Dress Parade Purse at Pimlico today.

John A. Manfuso's Alluring led from start to finish in the mile and sixteenth event and beat out Grandview Stable's Artist Life by a length and a half. E. B. Stewart's Perfect finished third some 2½ lengths ahead of Golden Bull, the even money farovite.

Only six horses went to the post and Near East finished last.

The spill occurred in full view of the grandstand, a few strides after the start. Golden Bull and Alluring both swerved a bit coming out of the barrier and Full Reward was in close quarters when the saddle slipped. The four-year-old appeared to stumble and then fell heavily.

Bone tried to get to his feet after hitting the ground but was groggy. He was carried from the track and taken to the dispensary. An examination disclosed no broken bones. Bone, however, cancelled his one remaining mount of the day.

Jockey Joe Culmone added three more winners to bring his total for the year to 327. He scored with Sophocles at $3.60 in the opener, Banjoist, $3.40 in the fifth and First Degree, $8.40, in the eighth.

A turnout of 10,151 watched the semi-final card of the Pimlico fall meet which closes tomorrow.

Cleveland Browns Refuse To Permit Mont To Play With Redskins Sunday

Washington Must Use Gilmer And Sebek

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—The Cleveland Browns refused today to permit the Washington Redskins to use assistant backfield coach Tommy Mont as an active player when the two teams meet Sunday in Cleveland.

The decision forces the injury-riddled Redskins to rely on semi-crippled Harry Gilmer and rookie Nick Sebek, the only remaining "T" formation quarterbacks.

Sammy Baugh is still suffering from the effects of a sacroilliac condition despite his presence in the lineup during most of last Sunday's game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mont, former University of Maryland back, was Baugh's understudy from 1946 through 1949. As a coach, he is ineligible to play without the unanimous consent of National Football League club owners.

Engh has been bringing his Westmont quints to Allegany High since 1929 and the schools have played two games annually with the exception of the 1945 and 1946 seasons when they did not meet.

Westmont, incidentally, was hit hard by graduation in June. Bob Sharkey, 6-foot-5 center, will be the only regular on hand from last season's squad. AHS plays host to the Keystone Staters December 15

Only one of the twenty-two football games scheduled here on Thanksgiving Day since 1928 had been postponed on account of the weather.

That was the 1938 tilt which was held over until the following Tuesday night. A snowstorm caused the postponement.

Rollin McCleary, backfield ace of Romney's Class "B" championship team last year, scored one of the four touchdowns collected by the undefeated West Virginia U. freshmen when they notched their 4th straight win over George Washington's frosh by the score of 26-12.

The Little Mountaineers recovered a G. W. fumble on the Colonials' 40. On the first play Dick Luciani advanced to the 25 and fumbled when hit, but McCleary picked up the bounding ball and continued to the goal line unmolested.

Baseball Pension Fund Gets $974,000 From Radio And TV

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP)—The entire $974,000 that major league baseball derived from sale of radio and television rights for the 1950 world series will be dumped into a fund that is used for payment of pensions and death benefits for ball players.

It took the major league club owners, meeting in joint session, less than three minutes to make that decision today.

Walter Mulbry, secretary of baseball and secretary of the pension fund, explained that player representatives Freddie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers and Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals previously had agreed to that disposal of the money.

At the time the television rights were sold for a record breaking $800,000 some of the players had sought to have a part of the money diverted into a fund that is divided among players on the clubs which finish in the first four spots of the two loops.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16 (INS)—If the life story of Jackie Coogan can be put on the screen just exactly as it happened to the "Kid" who earned more than $4,000,000 before he was ten—it will be one of the most dramatic Hollywood stories ever told.

But, yipes — the problems!

Jackie Coogan

Even though Jackie and his mother are not on friendly terms, I wonder how she will take the rehashing of the headline suit brought against her for an accounting of Jackie's enormous fortune. This sensational case was responsible for the California law that a large percentage of minor actors earnings must be placed in trust.

Lou Irwin, the agent, who has acquired all screen rights for the Coogan story for Jackie, says the problems can be handled to the satisfaction of all. And I happen to know 20th has the story under consideration.

Lucille Ball has won out over Paulette Goddard and all the other girls who wanted to play Angel, the elephant girl in Cecil B. De Mille's "The Greatest Show On Earth."

The deal was just closed, and things are certainly coming Lucille's way with a vengeance. She and Desi Arnaz opened at the Paramount Theater in San Francisco on Wednesday, and early in the morning she sent word to me that the line was way down the block. That I can believe.

I also know that Lucille and Desi were offered $50,000 for a two weeks engagement at the Casablanca hotel in Miami with a penthouse thrown in. That's real money! Lucille was willing to give it all up to be in the De Mille picture—that's how much she wants it.

Robert Helpmann, who is staying with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, tells me that he has left the Sadler's Wells Ballet after 21 years.

"I will return as a guest star some time," he said, "but I want to give all my attention to making 'Sleeping Beauty' which starts in London next August. Michael Benthall, who directed Katharine Hepburn in 'As You Like It," will direct it for Sir Alexander Korda.

"Margot Fonteyn will again do the ballet numbers as the princess."

Margot, who was in "The Little Ballerina," is as photogenically beautiful as she looks and dances on the stage.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

John Wayne has an eye allergy caused by makeup, and he's visiting his doctor every day.

Marie Wilson leaves for Las Vegas tomorrow to establish residence. As I exclusively reported last Monday, she's divorcing Allan Nixon.

Mickey Rooney was barred from the Palladium for Frank De Vol's opening when he walked in wearing a leather jacket.

Dick Powell has been very ill with neuritis, and his bride, June Allyson, has been taking care of him.

After a shopping spree Judy Garland and a girl friend stopped to lunch at the Brown Derby in Beverly Hills.

Who was the blonde girl dining with Dr. Peter Lindstrom at the House of Murphy?

Big doings for Lassie. Rudd Weatherwax, Lassie's owner and trainer, and John Rothwell, MGM publicist, have put "The Story Of Lassie" on the stands. Same day the popular pooch signed a new contract. He's just completed his sixth starring picture.

Scotty Beckett, former child star, and Sonny Vickers, Columbia actress, are talking marriage. Scotty, who is 21 has already been married and divorced.

When Arlene Dahl marries Lex Barker she'll be married in the Lutheran church. One of the several members of her family, who are ministers, wants the honor of performing the ceremony.

Ann Blyth, who has just turned 21, is the youngest member of the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Norns were the Fates of Scandinavian history. They were three young women who represented the past, the present and the future.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16 (INS)—If the life story of Jackie Coogan can be put on the screen just exactly as it happened to the "Kid" who earned more than $4,000,000 before he was ten—it will be one of the most dramatic Hollywood stories ever told.

But, yipes — the problems!

Jackie Coogan

Even though Jackie and his mother are not on friendly terms, I wonder how she will take the rehashing of the headline suit brought against her for an accounting of Jackie's enormous fortune. This sensational case was responsible for the California law that a large percentage of minor actors earnings must be placed in trust.

Lou Irwin, the agent, who has acquired all screen rights for the Coogan story for Jackie, says the problems can be handled to the satisfaction of all. And I happen to know 20th has the story under consideration.

Lucille Ball has won out over Paulette Goddard and all the other girls who wanted to play Angel, the elephant girl in Cecil B. De Mille's "The Greatest Show On Earth."

The deal was just closed, and things are certainly coming Lucille's way with a vengeance. She and Desi Arnaz opened at the Paramount Theater in San Francisco on Wednesday, and early in the morning she sent word to me that the line was way down the block. That I can believe.

I also know that Lucille and Desi were offered $50,000 for a two weeks engagement at the Casablanca hotel in Miami with a penthouse thrown in. That's real money! Lucille was willing to give it all up to be in the De Mille picture—that's how much she wants it.

Robert Helpmann, who is staying with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, tells me that he has left the Sadler's Wells Ballet after 21 years.

"I will return as a guest star some time," he said, "but I want to give all my attention to making 'Sleeping Beauty' which starts in London next August. Michael Benthall, who directed Katharine Hepburn in 'As You Like It,' will direct it for Sir Alexander Korda.

"Margot Fonteyn will again do the ballet numbers as the princess."

Margot, who was in "The Little Ballerina," is as photogenically beautiful as she looks and dances on the stage.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

John Wayne has an eye allergy caused by makeup, and he's visiting his doctor every day.

Marie Wilson leaves for Las Vegas tomorrow to establish residence. As I exclusively reported last Monday, she's divorcing Allan Nixon.

Mickey Rooney was barred from the Palladium for Frank De Vol's opening when he walked in wearing a leather jacket.

Dick Powell has been very ill with neuritis, and his bride, June Allyson, has been taking care of him.

Who was the blonde girl dining with Dr. Peter Lindstrom at the House of Murphy?

Big doings for Lassie. Rudd Weatherwax, Lassie's owner and trainer, and John Rothwell, MGM publicist, have put "The Story Of Lassie" on the stands. Same day the popular pooch signed a new contract. He's just completed his sixth starring picture.

Scotty Beckett, former child star, and Sonny Vickers, Columbia actress, are talking marriage. Scotty, who is 21 has already been married and divorced.

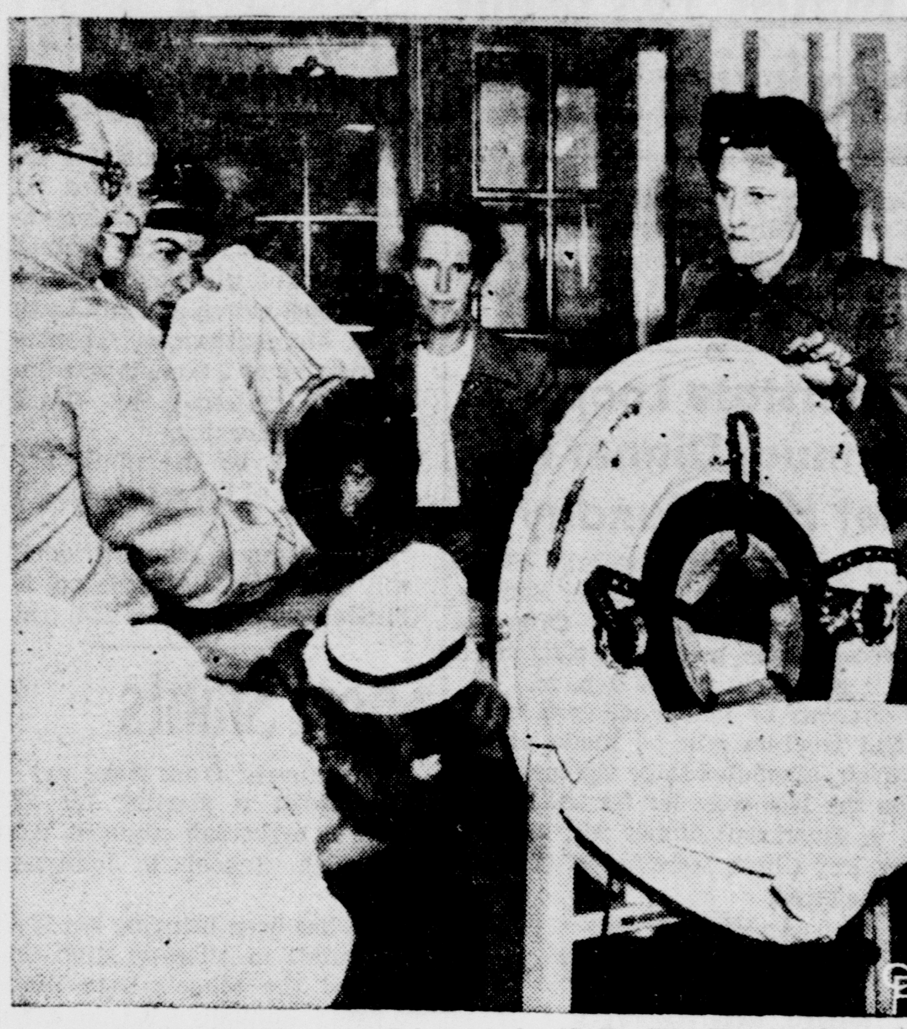
When Arlene Dahl marries Lex Barker she'll be married in the Lutheran church. One of the several members of her family, who are ministers, wants the honor of performing the ceremony.

Ann Blyth, who has just turned 21, is the youngest member of the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Norns were the Fates of Scandinavian history. They were three young women who represented the past, the present and the future.

POLIO VICTIM GETS NEW IRON LUNG



A NEW POLIO CENTER at the Schenectady, N. Y., City Hospital has an iron lung ready for Christopher F. Trager, 29, of Glenmont, N. Y. Mrs. Trager watches anxiously as attendants place the infantile paralysis victim in the apparatus. Since he can live only a limited time outside the lung, Trager was rushed the 17 miles from Albany to Schenectady in a record time of about 15 minutes. (International Soundphoto)

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Listeners Speak Up

EVERY YEAR the Wisconsin Association for Better Radio Listening conducts a listening project in which 2,583 ordinary citizens from all walks of life participate. The listeners examine some 9,300 programs, write down their opinions and then try to do something about it.

John Crosby

Some of the opinions are instructive, since they don't tally very closely with, let us say, professional radio opinion, and they do tally rather closely with critical opinion. The concensus on news programs I found particularly edifying because a news program is a hard thing for an amateur to evaluate, and yet these people's opinions on what constitutes a good news program pretty well follows those of the pros. The main concern was that news be played according to its relative importance.

The listeners instantly detected unsupported statements or bias, and they were not at all happy with news programs that gave only one side of the facts in an effort to influence their opinion. High marks were given to "The Christian Science Monitor" news program ("calm, objective, a moral seriousness"), Edward R. Murrow ("honest reporting") and Elmer Davis ("careful analysis"). Low marks went to Upton Close ("One side of picture"), Robert Montgomery ("poor selection of news"), Fulton Lewis, Jr. ("Good in delivery; poor in content") and Gabriel Heatter ("overdramatized.")

Incidentally, the listeners seemed irritated rather than uplifted by newscasters who used their voices to incite emotion. What is particularly striking about these opinions is the fact that a good many of these commentators are very popular, especially Fulton Lewis Jr. and Gabriel Heatter, who have been getting away with quite a lot of murder for years on the strength of their voices. The fact that the average listener is beginning to see through the foghorn, to insist on news in place of eloquence, to place a precise estimate on just what news is, to detect unfairness in news play, seems to indicate a maturity on the part of the listener which is very heartening.

I'm happy to note that my old favorite "Dragnet" pulled down top honors in the crime class. Crime programs are becoming one of the most serious sociological aspects of broadcasting, both TV and radio, and it's nice to have one which wins approval for its honesty. Here are some of the comments: "Emotion is not pumped up." "It is true. It is well done. There are no shrieks or spooky music." "Little of the criminal point of view of conversation."

The Wisconsin listening post also disagrees heavily with the prize programs and finds on quiz programs generally that questions are too simple, participants too dull and emcees too wise-cracking. "Whole idea of giveaway programs—getting something for nothing—promotes a false sense of values." All these things, the critics and the editorialists have been saying for some time. It is very pleasant to hear the people saying the same things.

I have at hand a press release on an Inner Sanctum program which I missed, happily. In fact, I can think of nothing that has given me more pleasure than missing this one. Without further ado I pass along the plot, as outlined in this press release:

"Psychoanalysts would take delight in the problem of James Webb, suspected as a homicidal maniac who had been terrorizing the city, but actually a bank clerk slated for a grave dug before he is dead.

"Pulled from his bed at the witching hour, Webb is dragged off to a haunted flight through mouldering graveyards, empty graves and violent death by the stranger Mercure—an emissary of darkling lands where the human mind can abruptly collapse under the impact of terror beyond endurance.

"A thousand queer questions, leading to a trial by terror, plague James Webb in his cemetery sojourn—questions which, when answered by an empty pistol and an emptier grave, bring Webb and his faithful wife Margaret to the brink of insanity."

Good night, kiddies. Sleep tight.

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Miss Dorothy Irene Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Cochran, Williamsburg, and Walter Gordon Newhouse, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Newhouse, Baltimore, Md., were united in marriage at Oakland, Md., Saturday, November 11. Rev. Denver Pickens, pastor of Oakland Methodist Church, performed the double-ring ceremony in the Methodist parsonage.

The bride wore a blue satin street-length dress with black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Glenna Abdella, Ronceverte, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Lacy Cochran, Moorefield, served Mr. Newhouse as best man and other witnesses at the ceremony were Mrs. Lacy Cochran and Miss Carolyn Chipley.

Mrs. Newhouse was graduated from Williamsburg High School in 1949 and is employed as a waitress in Harrison's Restaurant. Mr. Newhouse spent 20 months in the Navy and since his discharge, has been associated with B. J. McWhorter in the heating and electrical appliance field.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Listeners Speak Up

EVERY YEAR the Wisconsin Association for Better Radio Listening conducts a listening project in which 2,583 ordinary citizens from all walks of life participate. The listeners examine some 9,300 programs, write down their opinions and then try to do something about it.

John Crosby

Some of the opinions are instructive, since they don't tally very closely with, let us say, professional radio opinion, and they do tally rather closely with critical opinion. The concensus on news programs I found particularly edifying because a news program is a hard thing for an amateur to evaluate, and yet these people's opinions on what constitutes a good news program pretty well follows those of the pros. The main concern was that news be played according to its relative importance.

The listeners instantly detected unsupported statements or bias, and they were not at all happy with news programs that gave only one side of the facts in an effort to influence their opinion. High marks were given to "The Christian Science Monitor" news program ("calm, objective, a moral seriousness"), Edward R. Murrow ("honest reporting") and Elmer Davis ("careful analysis"). Low marks went to Upton Close ("One side of picture"), Robert Montgomery ("poor selection of news"), Fulton Lewis, Jr. ("Good in delivery; poor in content") and Gabriel Heatter ("overdramatized.")

Incidentally, the listeners seemed irritated rather than uplifted by newscasters who used their voices to incite emotion. What is particularly striking about these opinions is the fact that a good many of these commentators are very popular, especially Fulton Lewis Jr. and Gabriel Heatter, who have been getting away with quite a lot of murder for years on the strength of their voices. The fact that the average listener is beginning to see through the foghorn, to insist on news in place of eloquence, to place a precise estimate on just what news is, to detect unfairness in news play, seems to indicate a maturity on the part of the listener which is very heartening.

I'm happy to note that my old favorite "Dragnet" pulled down top honors in the crime class. Crime programs are becoming one of the most serious sociological aspects of broadcasting, both TV and radio, and it's nice to have one which wins approval for its honesty. Here are some of the comments: "Emotion is not pumped up." "It is true. It is well done. There are no shrieks or spooky music." "Little of the criminal point of view of conversation."

The Wisconsin listening post also disagrees heavily with the prize programs and finds on quiz programs generally that questions are too simple, participants too dull and emcees too wise-cracking. "Whole idea of giveaway programs—getting something for nothing—promotes a false sense of values." All these things, the critics and the editorialists have been saying for some time. It is very pleasant to hear the people saying the same things.

I have at hand a press release on an Inner Sanctum program which I missed, happily. In fact, I can think of nothing that has given me more pleasure than missing this one. Without further ado I pass along the plot, as outlined in this press release:

"Psychoanalysts would take delight in the problem of James Webb, suspected as a homicidal maniac who had been terrorizing the city, but actually a bank clerk slated for a grave dug before he is dead.

"Pulled from his bed at the witching hour, Webb is dragged off to a haunted flight through mouldering graveyards, empty graves and violent death by the stranger Mercure—an emissary of darkling lands where the human mind can abruptly collapse under the impact of terror beyond endurance.

"A thousand queer questions, leading to a trial by terror, plague James Webb in his cemetery sojourn—questions which, when answered by an empty pistol and an emptier grave, bring Webb and his faithful wife Margaret to the brink of insanity."

Good night, kiddies. Sleep tight.

Dorothy Cochran Becomes Bride

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Miss Dorothy Irene Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Cochran, Williamsburg, and Walter Gordon Newhouse, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Newhouse, Baltimore, Md., were united in marriage at Oakland, Md., Saturday, November 11. Rev. Denver Pickens, pastor of Oakland Methodist Church, performed the double-ring ceremony in the Methodist parsonage.

The bride wore a blue satin street-length dress with black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Glenna Abdella, Ronceverte, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Lacy Cochran, Moorefield, served Mr. Newhouse as best man and other witnesses at the ceremony were Mrs. Lacy Cochran and Miss Carolyn Chipley.

Mrs. Newhouse was graduated from Williamsburg High School in 1949 and is employed as a waitress in Harrison's Restaurant. Mr. Newhouse spent 20 months in the Navy and since his discharge, has been associated with B. J. McWhorter in the heating and electrical appliance field.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home here.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a small boy have his hair cut?

Answer: By all means, if other boys of the same age have. To be compelled to "look like a girl" (or a "sissy") is one of the cruelest emotional injuries a boy can be forced to endure. It means to him a denial of his right to masculinity, and once doubt of that right has been planted in his mind, he may never be able to play a man's role in the world with confidence. I cannot see how any mother who is not a victim of extreme sex jealousy would wish to deprive her son of the privilege of looking as much like a man as he can.

Does "social equality" really exist?

Answer: No, say W. Lloyd Warner and associates in a social study called "Democracy in Jonesville." "Complete equality does not exist in any society which is highly complex and differentiated into many occupations and positions." But these authors also say that the ideal of equality is important in preventing our social-class system from becoming "rigid and inflexible." Years ago a Britisher said to me: "The trouble with you Americans is that you think Jack is as good as his master." I countered: "That's better than saying that he never can be."

Can you "know too much psychology"?

Answer: Yes, if you know it only intellectually. There's no easier way to dodge the impact of emotional problems than to theorize about them, and you will meet people who can offer half-a-dozen "scientific explanations" of their failure to adjust themselves to life yet are no nearer doing so than if they "knew" nothing whatever. Psychiatrists often forbid patients to read books about psychology while under treatment, and if you find such reading only leaves you more and more confused, you'd better stop it and seek personal help.

Stock Market Stages Late Rally After Prices Droop

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — The stock market took the woes of a semi-war economy to heart today and prices dropped.

Spirited buying in railroad, aircraft and public utility stocks in the last trading hour, however, sparked a recovery drive that came close to setting the market on its feet.

Trading was a bit more perky both on the downgrade and when prices started to recover. Volume of 1,760,000 shares was the best in six sessions and compared with 1,620,000 Wednesday.

Columbia Broadcast System class "B" stock dropped $1.75 a share at $32.25 and the class "A" was off $1.50 at $32.75. This followed a federal court ruling Wednesday suspending FCC authorization to CBS to start commercial color telecasts next Monday.

Chrysler and General Motors each declined $1.12 a share, closing at $70.12 and $48 respectively.

At the top of the winning column was B. F. Goodrich, whose directors have approved a three-for-one stock split on which holders will vote in January. The issue gained $2.50 a share of $116.75.

Lower prices were paid for U. S. Steel, Studebaker, Caterpillar Tractor, Philco, Zenith Radio, Dow Chemical, American Woolen, Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum.

Gains were registered by Sears Roebuck, Boeing Airplane, Douglas, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Seabord Air Line (ahead $1.88 a share at $44.37 and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Law Offices of E. M. Horchler, Cumberland, Maryland. Bernice D. Little, vs. Charles S. Little, No. 21938, Equity, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to secure the passage of a decree divorcing Bernice D. Little, A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Charles S. Little, the Defendant. The Defendant is a non-resident of the state of Maryland.

The Bill of Complaint herein filed states that this couple were married January 29th, 1940, at Cumberland, Maryland, and lived in and around Cumberland, with Mrs. Little's folks, and with some of Mr. Little's relatives for a period of about a year. They had no children. Sometime in the early part of 1941, Mr. Little left Cumberland, to seek employment and in February 1943, he wrote a letter to the Plaintiff post marked Warren, Ohio, and the Plaintiff has not heard of or from the Defendant since that letter.

The Plaintiff never gave the Defendant any just cause or reason for the Defendant to abandon and desert her, and there is now no chance of a reconciliation.

The Complainant is a resident of the state of Maryland, but the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard from was a resident of the state of Ohio.

It is thereupon ORDERED this 15th day of November, by the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, that a copy of this order to be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week for four successive weeks, before the 18th day of December, 1950, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, Charles S. Little, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning him to be in this Court in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 3rd day of January, 1951, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

us because of their increasing sense of freedom. I got the feeling they were actually relieved to be out from under the Russian yoke. Maybe it's a Tito yoke now but it's Yugoslavian and that makes a difference to the fiercely nationalistic people there."

Bryan says Tito is still highly revered by his people as a great patriot but occasionally his regime is openly criticized because of food shortages, official corruption and the secret police.

"There is less criticism of the secret police," he says, "because there is less secret police. I asked many people who talked freely with me and had me in their homes if they would have done so two years ago. They said, of course not. Their general attitude now is that while they may not be getting all of the essentials they need they are getting more freedom."

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—A new drug to ease digestive distress often associated with ailments like peptic ulcer and bowel disorders was described to the Southern Medical Association.

Dr. Charles W. Hock of the Medication College of Georgia reported at the association's annual convention that the drug combats the "spasm" of an overactive digestive tract.

Such spasms, he said, can occur with certain organic diseases—and also as a functional or nervous symptom in the absence of any definite organic disease.

Its manifestations are such things as nausea, diarrhea, abdominal pain cramps, "gas" and constipation.

The new drug, made by a complex chemical process, will be called "bentyl hydrochloride" when it is commercially produced.

Dr. Hock said it appears to be a more effective anti-spasmodic than certain natural plant-derived drugs like belladonna.

He added that it offers the further advantage of producing virtually none of the "side reactions"—such as blurring of vision and dryness of the mouth—which occur in a "good percentage" of patients receiving drugs of the balladonna class.

Dr. Hock explained there are a number of other synthetic drugs for use of patients who are sensitive to the cheaper but potentially-distressing belladonna.

He described the new drug as "at least as effective and preferable to most" drugs of this class.

Like the other synthetics, it will cost more than belladonna, he explained. A commercial firm will make it generally available to the medical profession in January, he said.

In another report to the association, Dr. Edmund A. Smolik of St. Louis University school of medicine described the effectiveness of blood transfusions in treating "closed head injuries."

Those are brain injuries in which there is no break in the skull to give access to the enclosed nervous structure. Sometimes a fall from a chair can cause such an injury and a generalized disturbance within the nervous system can result.

Dr. Smolik said a "profound anemia" can occur and that in such cases, blood transfusions have a "marked beneficial" effect.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T RISK HIS PASS

ORDINARILY it is fine strategy to put your partner in position to make a "business pass" of the opponents' doubled suit bid. There are times, however, when that is the last thing you desire. If you are blank in the bid suit, with five cards of one other and four each in the remaining two, and if your side is vulnerable, you don't especially want to play against a doubled not vulnerable contract in your blank suit. You may have enough strength to feel that there is a vulnerable game in the cards for your side, and your best move is therefore the one most likely to produce such a contract.

What you see in those bidding sequences proved one of the deciding factors in a team of four match. The principles governing South's action in the two cases should apply in exactly the same way to a rubber game.

South at Table 1 decided that, after having passed on his first turn, he was strong enough to make a takeout double with his fine suit lengths in the three unbid suits. It didn't occur to this unimaginative player that his partner might pass. But that is of course what North did. Wouldn't you, with that diamond holding? The result at that table was that West lost two tricks in each side suit and three in trumps to be down three, giving his opponents 500 points.

A keener player was in the South at Table 2. He realized that the outcome of a double would almost certainly be a business pass, whereas he desired a game contract if one was in the cards. Since he had previously passed, his own bid of the opponent's suit could not mislead North into thinking he was terrifically powerful. North's response of 3-Spades was just about strong enough. South of course carried that to four, and the reward was an easily made game contract worth 620 points for his side.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a small boy have his hair cut?

Answer: By all means, if other boys of the same age have. To be compelled to "look like a girl" (or a "sissy") is one of the cruelest emotional injuries a boy can be forced to endure. It means to him a denial of his right to masculinity, and once doubt of that right has been planted in his mind, he may never be able to play a man's role in the world with confidence. I cannot see how any mother who is not a victim of extreme sex jealousy would wish to deprive her son of the privilege of looking as much like a man as he can.

Does "social equality" really exist?

Answer: No, say W. Lloyd Warner and associates in a social study called "Democracy in Jonesville." "Complete equality does not exist in any society which is highly complex and differentiated into many occupations and positions." But these authors also say that the ideal of equality is important in preventing our social-class system from becoming "rigid and inflexible." Years ago a Britisher said to me: "The trouble with you Americans is that you think Jack is as good as his master." I countered: "That's better than saying that he never can be."

Can you "know too much psychology"?

Answer: Yes, if you know it only intellectually. There's no easier way to dodge the impact of emotional problems than to theorize about them, and you will meet people who can offer half-a-dozen "scientific explanations" of their failure to adjust themselves to life yet are no nearer doing so than if they "knew" nothing whatever. Psychiatrists often forbid patients to read books about psychology while under treatment, and if you find such reading only leaves you more and more confused, you'd better stop it and seek personal help.

Stock Market Stages Late Rally After Prices Droop

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — The stock market took the woes of a semi-war economy to heart today and prices dropped.

Spirited buying in railroad, aircraft and public utility stocks in the last trading hour, however, sparked a recovery drive that came close to setting the market on its feet.

Trading was a bit more perky both on the downgrade and when prices started to recover. Volume of 1,760,000 shares was the best in six sessions and compared with 1,620,000 Wednesday.

Columbia Broadcast System class "B" stock dropped $1.75 a share at $32.25 and the class "A" was off $1.50 at $32.75. This followed a federal court ruling Wednesday suspending FCC authorization to CBS to start commercial color telecasts next Monday.

This helped to soften up the entire field of radio-TV stocks and losses for issues of the radio-TV manufacturers ran from 25 cents to $1.25 a share.

Chrysler and General Motors each declined $1.12 a share, closing at $70.12 and $48 respectively.

At the top of the winning column was B. F. Goodrich, whose directors have approved a three-for-one stock split on which holders will vote in January. The issue gained $2.50 a share of $116.75.

Lower prices were paid for U. S. Steel, Studebaker, Caterpillar Tractor, Philco, Zenith Radio, Dow Chemical, American Woolen, Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum.

Gains were registered by Sears Roebuck, Boeing Airplane, Douglas, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Seabord Air Line (ahead $1.88 a share at $44.37 and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Law Offices of E. M. Horchler, Cumberland, Maryland. Bernice D. Little, vs. Charles S. Little, No. 21938, Equity, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to secure the passage of a decree divorcing Bernice D. Little, A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Charles S. Little, the Defendant. The Defendant is a non-resident of the state of Maryland.

The Bill of Complaint herein filed states that this couple were married January 29th, 1940, at Cumberland, Maryland, and lived in and around Cumberland, with Mrs. Little's folks, and with some of Mr. Little's relatives for a period of about a year. They had no children. Sometime in the early part of 1941, Mr. Little left Cumberland, to seek employment and in February 1943, he wrote a letter to the Plaintiff post marked Warren, Ohio, and the Plaintiff has not heard of or from the Defendant since that letter.

The Plaintiff never gave the Defendant any just cause or reason for the Defendant to abandon and desert her, and there is now no chance of a reconciliation.

The Complainant is a resident of the state of Maryland, but the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard from was a resident of the state of Ohio.

It is thereupon ORDERED this 15th day of November, by the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, that a copy of this order to be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week for four successive weeks, before the 18th day of December, 1950, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, Charles S. Little, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning him to be in this Court in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 3rd day of January, 1951, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

us because of their increasing sense of freedom. I got the feeling they were actually relieved to be out from under the Russian yoke. Maybe it's a Tito yoke now but it's Yugoslavian and that makes a difference to the fiercely nationalistic people there."

Bryan says Tito is still highly revered by his people as a great patriot but occasionally his regime is openly criticized because of food shortages, official corruption and the secret police.

"There is less criticism of the secret police," he says, "because there is less secret police. I asked many people who talked freely with me and had me in their homes if they would have done so two years ago. They said, of course not. Their general attitude now is that while they may not be getting all of the essentials they need they are getting more freedom."

Spasm-Reducing Drug Relieves Digestive Ills

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—A new drug to ease digestive distress often associated with ailments like peptic ulcer and bowel disorders was described to the Southern Medical Association.

Dr. Charles W. Hock of the Medication College of Georgia reported at the association's annual convention that the drug combats the "spasm" of an overactive digestive tract.

Such spasms, he said, can occur with certain organic diseases—and also as a functional or nervous symptom in the absence of any definite organic disease.

Its manifestations are such things as nausea, diarrhea, abdominal pain cramps, "gas" and constipation.

The new drug, made by a complex chemical process, will be called "bentyl hydrochloride" when it is commercially produced.

Dr. Hock said it appears to be a more effective anti-spasmodic than certain natural plant-derived drugs like belladonna.

He added that it offers the further advantage of producing virtually none of the "side reactions"—such as blurring of vision and dryness of the mouth—which occur in a "good percentage" of patients receiving drugs of the balladonna class.

Dr. Hock explained there are a number of other synthetic drugs for use of patients who are sensitive to the cheaper but potentially-distressing belladonna.

He described the new drug as "at least as effective and preferable to most" drugs of this class.

Like the other synthetics, it will cost more than belladonna, he explained. A commercial firm will make it generally available to the medical profession in January, he said.

In another report to the association, Dr. Edmund A. Smolik of St. Louis University school of medicine described the effectiveness of blood transfusions in treating "closed head injuries."

Those are brain injuries in which there is no break in the skull to give access to the enclosed nervous structure. Sometimes a fall from a chair can cause such an injury and a generalized disturbance within the nervous system can result.

Dr. Smolik said a "profound anemia" can occur and that in such cases, blood transfusions have a "marked beneficial" effect.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DON'T RISK HIS PASS

ORDINARILY it is fine strategy to put your partner in position to make a "business pass" of the opponents' doubled suit bid. There are times, however, when that is the last thing you desire. If you are blank in the bid suit, with five cards of one other and four each in the remaining two, and if your side is vulnerable, you don't especially want to play against a doubled not vulnerable contract in your blank suit. You may have enough strength to feel that there is a vulnerable game in the cards for your side, and your best move is therefore the one most likely to produce such a contract.

What you see in those bidding sequences proved one of the deciding factors in a team of four match. The principles governing South's action in the two cases should apply in exactly the same way to a rubber game.

South at Table 1 decided that, after having passed on his first turn, he was strong enough to make a takeout double with his fine suit lengths in the three unbid suits. It didn't occur to this unimaginative player that his partner might pass. But that is of course what North did. Wouldn't you, with that diamond holding? The result at that table was that West lost two tricks in each side suit and three in trumps to be down three, giving his opponents 500 points.

A keener player was in the South at Table 2. He realized that the outcome of a double would almost certainly be a business pass, whereas he desired a game contract if one was in the cards. Since he had previously passed, his own bid of the opponent's suit could not mislead North into thinking he was terrifically powerful. North's response of 3-Spades was just about strong enough. South of course carried that to four, and the reward was an easily made game contract worth 620 points for his side.

200-Acre Woods Fire In W. Va. Under Control

Wind Fans Flames On Allegheny Front

A forest fire, fanned for 24 hours by a 20-mile an hour wind, swept over more than 200 acres of land on Allegheny Mountain, between U. S. Route 50 and the Elk Garden, W. Va. area, before it was brought under control, according to District Forester Robert Coughenour of Romney, W. Va.

The blaze, believed caused by hunters, started sometime Wednesday afternoon and fire fighting crews were sent into the rugged mountainous area immediately. The crews worked all of Wednesday night and all day Thursday. Relief units were in the area last night, and there will be some clean-up work to be done in scattered sections today, Coughenour said.

The fire burned over land formerly owned by a coal company, and property believed owned by Loren Cornell. The woods consisted of scrub, pine, and other second growth timber, the forester said.

This particular area is among the most rugged in Mineral county. The section of Allegheny Front where the fire raged includes three seperate mountain peaks, and the fire started about the middle, sweeping in a wide circular formation over all three.

Firemen were handicapped in their initial efforts by wind and withdrew to the tops of the mountains, where the fire, in most cases, was finally checked.

Rain fell about sundown yesterday which slowed the blaze, but Coughenour said the fire fighters, numbering about 50 regulars and volunteers, had the blaze under control in the area before the rains came.

This was the worst fire in nearby West Virginia areas since two bad conflagrations on Allegheny Mountain in 1947, a particularly dry year.

Coughenour said there was a second fire in his district yesterday, which burned over about 20 acres in the vicinity of Franklin, W. Va. This fire also was believed started by hunters. Both fires were reported from the lookout fire tower on the Pinnacle.

O'Connell Named To Railroad Post

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — Thomas J. O'Connell, eastern region supervisor of yard and terminal operations for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, today was promoted to chief of yards and terminal operations for the entire system.

He succeeds the late Carl C. Pitcher, who died of a sudden heart seizure a few weeks ago upon arriving in Pittsburgh on an inspection trip.

O'Connell started with the B&O in 1916 as a stenographer at the Baltimore general offices. His rise in the operating department included yardmaster assignments at Fairmont and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Rochester, N. Y., and trainmaster assignments in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Robb Is Named To Head March Of Dimes Drive

County Campaign Opens January 15

John M. Robb, a local attorney, has been named chairman for the Allegany County March of Dimes campaign.

The two-week county fund-raising campaign will be held from January 15 to 31.

National goal for the 1951 drive has been set at 50 million dollars, according to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paraylsis.

Costs of the last three tragic polio years have left the National Foundation's epidemic aid funds exhausted, officials said.

Bills for polio patient care alone have consumed more than 94 million dollars in March of Dimes funds since the National Foundation was established in 1938.

Almost two-thirds of that entire amount has been spent during the past three years, from 1948 to 1950.

During that period there were 100,000 cases of polio throughout the nation, almost as many as the entire case load for the preceding 10 years.

Worst polio epidemic was in 1949, when 42,173 cases were reported. This year was second, with over 30,000 cases.

Officials pointed out that March of Dimes funds must do double duty, paying for long-term care and rehabilitation of thousands crippled in previous years while at the same time fighting the new epidemics.

Emergency funds of the National Foundation are completely exhausted by calls for help from hard-hit communities in 45 states, but service is being continued although the Foundation is operating at a deficit, O'Connor said.

Weather

Someone who didn't have a calendar handy might have thought yesterday was a spring day. Light showers in the early evening added to the similarity, as well as the high temperature of 59. Overnight low was 39. Today, though, is due to be more like November. Partly cloudy and colder is the forecast.

Union Election Vote Is Heavy

Between 60 and 70 per cent of the over 1,800 members of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, were believed to have voted yesterday at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company in a special union election on a 50-cent per month dues increase, according to Ralph C. Beard, union vice president.

Voting took place from 6 until 8 a. m., from 2 until 4 p. m. and again from 10 p. m. until midnight so that men on all three shifts would have equal voting opportunities. Only about 50 per cent of the union personnel had voted in the first two periods but Beard said last night that he anticipated a heavy vote in the last two hours.

The ballots will be counted this afternoon at the union office on Mechanic Street. Beard explained that union dues now are $1.50 per man per month. They had been at that level since 1947. At the time the union was organized in 1933 the dues were $1. Despite the fact that the average pay of union members has advanced from 1933's 60 cents per hour to today's $1.60, the dues have increased only 50 per cent. For the past year some 100 other rubber workers unions in the United States have charged $1 or more monthly dues, Beard added. If approved, the increase would be effective in December.

Blind Veteran Wins Optimist Club Plaque

"Billy" Cassell Is Honored At Dinner

William E. "Billy" Cassell, blind veteran of World War II, last night was named Cumberland's most optimistic person.

Cassell was an honor guest at a dinner meeting held by the Optimist Club at Central YMCA.

Cassell, who is 26, entered military service in October, 1942, four months after his graduation from Fort Hill High School. He lost his sight while serving in the Aleutian Islands.

Since receiving his honorable discharge, Cassell has become a qualified Braille reader. He studied under the Veterans Administration for the sound ascriber device and has become efficient in its operation.

Cassell is licensed by the State Insurance Department and is employed as an agent in a local insurance office.

Fond of music, he plays the drums and appears regularly with musical groups at social events held by area clubs and organizations.

He resides with his wife and son on Browning Street.

Last night's program marked the annual dinner meeting of the local club and the 32nd anniversary of Optimist clubs of the world.

Richard Dailey, Fort Hill High School student who won the county "I Speak for Democracy" contest, gave his prize-winning speech.

Music for the dinner was furnished by Peck Mills at the piano. Members of the Opti-Mrs. Club were guests.

A business meeting was held with J. Gordon Mitchell, cub master, and George Harris, committee chairman, presiding.

It was decided that the program for December will be repairing of toys for charity organizations and the making of Christmas gifts for mothers and fathers.

A Christmas party will be held on December 12.

Local Division Of B & O Railroad To Get Diesels

Steam Engines Not To Be Eliminated

Although more Diesel locomotives will be added to the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the next four months, steam locomotives will not be eliminated from the division, Chester T. Williams, new division superintendent, said last night.

"The B & O Railroad has ordered quite a few new Diesel units to be delivered in November, December, January and February," Williams stated. The superintendent explained that he was uncertain as to just how many units had been ordered.

Williams' response came in comment upon a rumor that the railroad had ordered 450 new locomotives. He was certain that the number of new engines would not approach 450. He observed that two, three and sometimes four Diesel units are necessary to provide the pulling power for a train.

The superintendent, who assumed his new duties here only four weeks ago, also refuted a rumor that the Cumberland division would be Dieselized completely by next September.

"Although there is a definite trend on the part of the B & O to replace steam engines with Diesels, steam engines will continue to be used on the entire system and in this division," Williams said.

"Certainly the railroad does not intend junking the 30 new Mallet steam engines which were purchased for the Cumberland Division five years ago," he added.

Williams, who came here from Pittsburgh October 20 to assume new duties, is living at 217 Washington Street.

Board Plans Cableway At Kitzmiller To Aid In Measuring Flow Of Water

The Water Resources Board, U. S. Geological Survey, is making plans to erect a cableway across the Potomac River at Kitzmiller to aid in measuring the flow of water through the area, according to Louis Koffman, engineer in charge.

The cableway consists of two towers, one on each side of the river, with a strong cable connectiing the two. A small cable car is to be attached to the cable and move between the towers over the river, Koffman said.

There will be a span of 297 feet between the two towers, enabling a man to move in the car from one bank of the river to the other. Koffman said that he will be able to measure the flow of the river at any point and periodic readings will be made, especially at times of high water.

Sounding meters, devices used to determine the speed of flowing water, will be dropped from the cable-car in order to make the recordings, Koffman related.

He explained that the recordings are to be made to aid in determining the necessity of flood control, as well as to supply information to organizations interested in water sanitation.

The Upper Potomac River Board, a cooperative organization to improve water supply, Koffman pointed out, depends upon the data it receives from the Water Resources Board to determine whether the flow of water is sufficient to properly take care of the sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the banks of the river.

The Savage River project is to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second to take care of the disposal from plants and mines, Koffman related.

"It is hoped that better regulation of the flow," he said, "will provide better sanitation in the river and that will be a large factor in attracting more industrial plants to Cumberland."

Equipment for the cable and towers is being made in York, Pa., Koffman said. One tower is to be 15 feet in height and the other, 20 feet in height. "This should allow a 30-foot clearance for the car in normal stages," he said.

Erection of the equipment will begin when it arrives here, and that should be in the next two or three weeks, he added.

Oldtown Hunter Is Shot Accidentally

An Oldtown man shot in a hunting accident during the first day of the season Wednesday was reported in "good condition" at Memorial Hospital last night.

Two Men Hurt In Fall From Railroad Bridge

Scaffold Slips On Painting Job

Two men were injured yesterday when they were plunged 55 feet into the Potomac River at North Branch, near Oldtown, when the scaffold upon which they were standing slipped, according to Nick Cosares, foreman of the crew.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were Gusta Gsaugaris, 33, Brooklyn, N. Y., and John Darmis, 49, New York, N. Y.

Hospital attaches said that Gsaugaris has a possible fractured right hip, and Darmis has a right shoulder injury. Both men were X-rayed.

Cosares said the men were injured while painting the B. and O. railway bridge at North Branch. They fell when one of the boards on the scaffold slipped off a pipe, causing them to fall into the water from a height of about 55 feet.

Darmis fell straight into the water and managed to swim to shore. Gsaugaris, however, struck the side of the bridge with his right hip during the fall. Cosares related that it was necessary to use ropes and a block and tackle to remove him from the water.

The accident occurred at about 3 p.m. yesterday, and the men were employed by G. N. Sponas and Son, a painting contracting firm, Baltimore.

At the time of the accident the second coat of paint was being applied to the bridge and Cosares said they expected to finish the job in about five more days. They have been working in Cumberland for several weeks, he related, all work being done for the B. and O. Railroad

Civic Club Asks Jury Duty For County Women

Board Of Education Appointment Cited

The Woman's Civic Club passed resolutions to ask the appointment of a woman to the board of education when there is a vacancy in May, 1951; to permit women of Allegany county to serve on juries; and endorsed the resolution of the Annapolis club that all future state government buildings be erected in Annapolis, where there is adequate room and parking facilities.

Mrs. Albert Paye, Civic chairman, presented the motions that letters be written to the state legislature, state senators and governor in regard to the board of education appointment, and to the legislature and state senator concerning jury duty.

The resolutions were presented at the monthly meeting of the club yesterday at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. Mrs. George G. Young, Resolutions chairman, presented the Annapolis Club resolution.

Giving the Welfare report, Mrs. Morton Peskin, chairman, announced that a canary bird and foam rubber cushions have been given to the Allegany County Infirmary. The foam rubber was donated by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and the cushions were made by the Community Service Sewing Group of the First Presbyterian Church. Clothing and fruit were donated to the Keating Memorial Day Nursery.

Mrs. Courtney Kidwell, International Relations chairman, announced that Mrs. Leland Spencer will speak at the first meeting of her group, which is to be held at 2 o'clock November 30 at the Public Library. Her talk will be on "Home Life in Post War Germany."

Three new members were welcomed. They are Mrs. Noel Speir Cook, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Mrs. Lloyd Clark.

A panel discussion on "Civil Defense" was presented by the Community Service Group with Miss Martha Delano as moderator. Participating were Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, Mrs. G. Morgan Smith and Mrs. James W. Bishop. Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, chairman of the Community Service Group introduced the panel.

Although Civil Defense is based on a national plan the importance of the local people was stressed by Miss Delano who pointed out that civil defense depends largely on cooperation between critical target areas and the communities around them. She pointed out, Cumberland is not a designated "critical area" and so is called on mainly to support Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

It is vitally important, she said, that the entire populace be informed of the Civil Defense plans and of the individual's duty in case of attack. Pamphlets and booklets on the topic are being distributed by the government.

A great deal of responsibility for Civil Defense rests with the women, Mrs. Cupler declared. For, she said, the men will be at work, in the service or with other organizations and not be available. She stressed the importance of knowing what to do and not becoming panicky or hysterical. She explained that Maryland has been divided into four Mutual Health Areas, the Eastern Shore area, Baltimore area, Washington area, and Western area.

Necessary for operation of the plan, Mrs. Cupler said, is to have a air raid warning service; shelter protection, evacuation, warden service, mutual aid and mobile support system, fire services, law enforcement, health service, emergency welfare, engineering, rescue, communications, transportation, plant protection, supply, civilian auxiliaries to military activities and personnel.

Mrs. Smith outlined the instructions in case of atomic explosion which, she pointed out, differ from other explosions in magnitude of destruction and presence of radiation. She explained the three types of atomic explosions: the air blast such as was used on Japan, she warned, get below ground; the marine burst which need not be considered here; and the land burst, not the most effective, and little liklihood of it being used.

For general instructions she urged to get under ground; make use of any screening or shelter; if no protection is available fall flat on your face and cover exposed parts of the body; learn to do these things instinctively and immediately; don't look at the blast; and if inside your home, close windows and blinds, turn off oil burner, cover open

Wind Fans Flames On Allegheny Front

A forest fire, fanned for 24 hours by a 20-mile an hour wind, swept over more than 200 acres of land on Allegheny Mountain, between U. S. Route 50 and the Elk Garden, W. Va. area, before it was brought under control, according to District Forester Robert Coughenour of Romney, W. Va.

The blaze, believed caused by hunters, started sometime Wednesday afternoon and fire fighting crews were sent into the rugged mountainous area immediately. The crews worked all of Wednesday night and all day Thursday. Relief units were in the area last night, and there will be some clean-up work to be done in scattered sections today, Coughenour said.

The fire burned over land formerly owned by a coal company, and property believed owned by Loren Cornell. The woods consisted of scrub, pine, and other second growth timber, the forester said.

This particular area is among the most rugged in Mineral county. The section of Allegheny Front where the fire raged includes three seperate mountain peaks, and the fire started about the middle, sweeping in a wide circular formation over all three.

Firemen were handicapped in their initial efforts by wind and withdrew to the tops of the mountains, where the fire, in most cases, was finally checked.

Rain fell about sundown yesterday which slowed the blaze, but Coughenour said the fire fighters, numbering about 50 regulars and volunteers, had the blaze under control in the area before the rains came.

This was the worst fire in nearby West Virginia areas since two bad conflagrations on Allegheny Mountain in 1947, a particularly dry year.

Coughenour said there was a second fire in his district yesterday, which burned over about 20 acres in the vicinity of Franklin, W. Va. This fire also was believed started by hunters. Both fires were reported from the lookout fire tower on the Pinnacle.

O'Connell Named To Railroad Post

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — Thomas J. O'Connell, eastern region supervisor of yard and terminal operations for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, today was promoted to chief of yards and terminal operations for the entire system.

He succeeds the late Carl C. Pitcher, who died of a sudden heart seizure a few weeks ago upon arriving in Pittsburgh on an inspection trip.

O'Connell started with the B&O in 1916 as a stenographer at the Baltimore general offices. His rise in the operating department included yardmaster assignments at Fairmont and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Rochester, N. Y., and trainmaster assignments in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Robb Is Named To Head March Of Dimes Drive

County Campaign Opens January 15

John M. Robb, a local attorney, has been named chairman for the Allegany County March of Dimes campaign.

The two-week county fund-raising campaign will be held from January 15 to 31.

National goal for the 1951 drive has been set at 50 million dollars, according to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paraylsis.

Costs of the last three tragic polio years have left the National Foundation's epidemic aid funds exhausted, officials said.

Bills for polio patient care alone have consumed more than 94 million dollars in March of Dimes funds since the National Foundation was established in 1938.

Almost two-thirds of that entire amount has been spent during the past three years, from 1948 to 1950.

During that period there were 100,000 cases of polio throughout the nation, almost as many as the entire case load for the preceding 10 years.

Worst polio epidemic was in 1949, when 42,173 cases were reported. This year was second, with over 30,000 cases.

Officials pointed out that March of Dimes funds must do double duty, paying for long-term care and rehabilitation of thousands crippled in previous years while at the same time fighting the new epidemics.

Emergency funds of the National Foundation are completely exhausted by calls for help from hard-hit communities in 45 states, but service is being continued although the Foundation is operating at a deficit, O'Connor said.

Weather

Someone who didn't have a calendar handy might have thought yesterday was a spring day. Light showers in the early evening added to the similarity, as well as the high temperature of 59. Overnight low was 39. Today, though, is due to be more like November. Partly cloudy and colder is the forecast.

Union Election Vote Is Heavy

Between 60 and 70 per cent of the over 1,800 members of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, were believed to have voted yesterday at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company in a special union election on a 50-cent per month dues increase, according to Ralph C. Beard, union vice president.

Voting took place from 6 until 8 a. m., from 2 until 4 p. m. and again from 10 p. m. until midnight so that men on all three shifts would have equal voting opportunities. Only about 50 per cent of the union personnel had voted in the first two periods but Beard said last night that he anticipated a heavy vote in the last two hours.

The ballots will be counted this afternoon at the union office on Mechanic Street. Beard explained that union dues now are $1.50 per man per month. They had been at that level since 1947. At the time the union was organized in 1933 the dues were $1. Despite the fact that the average pay of union members has advanced from 1933's 60 cents per hour to today's $1.60, the dues have increased only 50 per cent. For the past year some 100 other rubber workers unions in the United States have charged $1 or more monthly dues, Beard added. If approved, the increase would be effective in December.

Blind Veteran Wins Optimist Club Plaque

"Billy" Cassell Is Honored At Dinner

William E. "Billy" Cassell, blind veteran of World War II, last night was named Cumberland's most optimistic person.

Cassell was an honor guest at a dinner meeting held by the Optimist Club at Central YMCA.

Cassell, who is 26, entered military service in October, 1942, four months after his graduation from Fort Hill High School. He lost his sight while serving in the Aleutian Islands.

Since receiving his honorable discharge, Cassell has become a qualified Braille reader. He studied under the Veterans Administration for the sound ascriber device and has become efficient in its operation.

Cassell is licensed by the State Insurance Department and is employed as an agent in a local insurance office.

Fond of music, he plays the drums and appears regularly with musical groups at social events held by area clubs and organizations.

He resides with his wife and son on Browning Street.

Last night's program marked the annual dinner meeting of the local club and the 32nd anniversary of Optimist clubs of the world.

Richard Dailey, Fort Hill High School student who won the county "I Speak for Democracy" contest, gave his prize-winning speech.

Cub Scouts Meet At Mt. Royal School

Pack 20, Cub Scouts of America, was entertained last night at Mt. Royal School auditorium by cubs from Den 5, who portrayed the roundup, with camp fire and cowboy songs.

Movies taken at the scout jamboree last summer at Valley Forge were shown and narrated by Samuel Swain, Ranger Scout of Troop 6.

A business meeting was held with J. Gordon Mitchell, cub master, and George Harris, committee chairman, presiding.

It was decided that the program for December will be repairing of toys for charity organizations and the making of Christmas gifts for mothers and fathers.

A Christmas party will be held on December 12.

Local Division Of B & O Railroad To Get Diesels

Steam Engines Not To Be Eliminated

Although more Diesel locomotives will be added to the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the next four months, steam locomotives will not be eliminated from the division, Chester T. Williams, new division superintendent, said last night.

"The B & O Railroad has ordered quite a few new Diesel units to be delivered in November, December, January and February," Williams stated. The superintendent explained that he was uncertain as to just how many units had been ordered.

Williams' response came in comment upon a rumor that the railroad had ordered 450 new locomotives. He was certain that the number of new engines would not approach 450. He observed that two, three and sometimes four Diesel units are necessary to provide the pulling power for a train.

The superintendent, who assumed his new duties here only four weeks ago, also refuted a rumor that the Cumberland division would be Dieselized completely by next September.

"Although there is a definite trend on the part of the B & O to replace steam engines with Diesels, steam engines will continue to be used on the entire system and in this division," Williams said.

"Certainly the railroad does not intend junking the 30 new Mallet steam engines which were purchased for the Cumberland Division five years ago," he added.

Williams, who came here from Pittsburgh October 20 to assume new duties, is living at 217 Washington Street.

Honor George Thomas At Local Celanese Plant

A local man was honored yesterday at the local plant of the Celanese Corporation of America for having completed 25 years of service.

In 1930, he was placed on the staff at the local plant and given a salaried position. He is now block foreman of the bobbin store.

In a ceremony yesterday at 4 p. m Thomas was presented with the Celanese certificate and a 25-year emblem by John Bestwick, superintendent of spinning and auxiliaries which includes the bobbin store.

H. C. Givens, Jr., plant manager, presented him with a wrist watch.

Grass Fires Occupy East Side Firemen

Grass fires at opposite ends of Princeton Street occupied the attention of East Side firemen yesterday afternoon.

The firemen used brooms to extinguish the first blaze, which occurred in a lot in the rear of 536 Princeton Street about 1:30 p. m. They were at that location about 18 minutes.

At 2:20 p. m. they were dispatched to the west end of Princeton Street and remained there 32 minutes. It was necessary to use water on this fire. No damage was reported in either blaze

Board Plans Cableway At Kitzmiller To Aid In Measuring Flow Of Water

The Water Resources Board, U. S. Geological Survey, is making plans to erect a cableway across the Potomac River at Kitzmiller to aid in measuring the flow of water through the area, according to Louis Koffman, engineer in charge.

The cableway consists of two towers, one on each side of the river, with a strong cable connectiing the two. A small cable car is to be attached to the cable and move between the towers over the river, Koffman said.

There will be a span of 297 feet between the two towers, enabling a man to move in the car from one bank of the river to the other. Koffman said that he will be able to measure the flow of the river at any point and periodic readings will be made, especially at times of high water.

Sounding meters, devices used to determine the speed of flowing water, will be dropped from the cable-car in order to make the recordings, Koffman related.

He explained that the recordings are to be made to aid in determining the necessity of flood control, as well as to supply information to organizations interested in water sanitation.

The Upper Potomac River Board, a cooperative organization to improve water supply, Koffman pointed out, depends upon the data it receives from the Water Resources Board to determine whether the flow of water is sufficient to properly take care of the sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the banks of the river.

The Savage River project is to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second to take care of the disposal from plants and mines, Koffman related.

"It is hoped that better regulation of the flow," he said, "will provide better sanitation in the river and that will be a large factor in attracting more industrial plants to Cumberland."

Equipment for the cable and towers is being made in York, Pa., Koffman said. One tower is to be 15 feet in height and the other, 20 feet in height. "This should allow a 30-foot clearance for the car in normal stages," he said.

Erection of the equipment will begin when it arrives here, and that should be in the next two or three weeks, he added.

Oldtown Hunter Is Shot Accidentally

An Oldtown man shot in a hunting accident during the first day of the season Wednesday was reported in "good condition" at Memorial Hospital last night.

State Police said Charles Walters, 26, suffered a left foot injury when his brother, John Walters, accidentally shot him. The pair was standing side by side when a rabbit ran across their feet, police said. No charges were preferred.

Two Men Hurt In Fall From Railroad Bridge

Scaffold Slips On Painting Job

Two men were injured yesterday when they were plunged 55 feet into the Potomac River at North Branch, near Oldtown, when the scaffold upon which they were standing slipped, according to Nick Cosares, foreman of the crew.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were Gusta Gsaugaris, 33, Brooklyn, N. Y., and John Darmis, 49, New York, N. Y.

Hospital attaches said that Gsaugaris has a possible fractured right hip, and Darmis has a right shoulder injury. Both men were X-rayed.

Cosares said the men were injured while painting the B. and O. railway bridge at North Branch. They fell when one of the boards on the scaffold slipped off a pipe, causing them to fall into the water from a height of about 55 feet.

Darmis fell straight into the water and managed to swim to shore. Gsaugaris, however, struck the side of the bridge with his right hip during the fall. Cosares related that it was necessary to use ropes and a block and tackle to remove him from the water.

The accident occurred at about 3 p.m. yesterday, and the men were employed by G. N. Sponas and Son, a painting contracting firm, Baltimore.

At the time of the accident the second coat of paint was being applied to the bridge and Cosares said they expected to finish the job in about five more days. They have been working in Cumberland for several weeks, he related, all work being done for the B. and O. Railroad.

Civic Club Asks Jury Duty For County Women

Board Of Education Appointment Cited

The Woman's Civic Club passed resolutions to ask the appointment of a woman to the board of education when there is a vacancy in May, 1951; to permit women of Allegany county to serve on juries; and endorsed the resolution of the Annapolis club that all future state government buildings be erected in Annapolis, where there is adequate room and parking facilities.

Mrs. Albert Paye, Civic chairman, presented the motions that letters be written to the state legislature, state senators and governor in regard to the board of education appointment, and to the legislature and state senator concerning jury duty.

The resolutions were presented at the monthly meeting of the club yesterday at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. Mrs. George G. Young, Resolutions chairman, presented the Annapolis Club resolution.

Giving the Welfare report, Mrs. Morton Peskin, chairman, announced that a canary bird and foam rubber cushions have been given to the Allegany County Infirmary. The foam rubber was donated by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and the cushions were made by the Community Service Sewing Group of the First Presbyterian Church. Clothing and fruit were donated to the Keating Memorial Day Nursery.

Mrs. Courtney Kidwell, International Relations chairman, announced that Mrs. Leland Spencer will speak at the first meeting of her group, which is to be held at 2 o'clock November 30 at the Public Library. Her talk will be on "Home Life in Post War Germany."

Three new members were welcomed. They are Mrs. Noel Speir Cook, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Mrs. Lloyd Clark.

A panel discussion on "Civil Defense" was presented by the Community Service Group with Miss Martha Delano as moderator. Participating were Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, Mrs. G. Morgan Smith and Mrs. James W. Bishop. Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, chairman of the Community Service Group introduced the panel.

Although Civil Defense is based on a national plan the importance of the local people was stressed by Miss Delano who pointed out that civil defense depends largely on cooperation between critical target areas and the communities around them. She pointed out, Cumberland is not a designated "critical area" and so is called on mainly to support Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

It is vitally important, she said, that the entire populace be informed of the Civil Defense plans and of the individual's duty in case of attack. Pamphlets and booklets on the topic are being distributed by the government.

A great deal of responsibility for Civil Defense rests with the women, Mrs. Cupler declared. For, she said, the men will be at work, in the service or with other organizations and not be available. She stressed the importance of knowing what to do and not becoming panicky or hysterical. She explained that Maryland has been divided into four Mutual Health Areas, the Eastern Shore area, Baltimore area, Washington area, and Western area.

Necessary for operation of the plan, Mrs. Cupler said, is to have a air raid warning service; shelter protection, evacuation, warden service, mutual aid and mobile support system, fire services, law enforcement, health service, emergency welfare, engineering, rescue, communications, transportation, plant protection, supply, civilian auxiliaries to military activities and personnel.

Mrs. Smith outlined the instructions in case of atomic explosion which, she pointed out, differ from other explosions in magnitude of destruction and presence of radiation. ALLIES MAKE GENERAL ADVANCE

13 Killed As Air Force Planes Collide

B-29 Tanker, B-50 Bomber Crash In Ariz.

10 Crew Members Survive Collision

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 16 (AP) — Thirteen airmen were killed and 10 survived a collision of two Air Force planes over the desert 50 miles west of here today.

Lt. Elwin Piwetz, public information officer at Davis-Monthan Air Force base here, said it has not been determined whether the survivors are injured.

He said the two four-motor planes, a B-29 tanker and a B-50 bomber, plunged to the ground five miles north of the Papago Indian village of Silnakya on the Sells reservation.

The rugged country is extremely difficult to reach on foot.

Piwetz could give no detailed description of what happened but it is believed the two planes came together during a refueling operation.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration tower at Tucson municipal airport made the first report of a crash at 12:08 p. m. (MST). It said a column of smoke was seen west of the city.

Indian Is Eyewitness

Search planes were sent out from Davis-Monthan and the wreckage spotted. Ground rescue teams were dispatched to the scene, but have not reported back. They have radio equipment.

The planes apparently crashed within a hundred feet of each other in a horseshoe valley in the Black Mountains.

One of the few eyewitnesses was Steven Ramon, a Papago Indian living in Silnakya.

"It was around noon," he said. "I thought there was one airplane in the sky. There was a flash. The plane started to come down toward the ground. Then I saw that there were two planes. They were both on fire. I did not see any parachutes They landed very close together about 10 miles away from me."

Wreckage Scattered

Robert Moore, reporter for the Arizona Daily Star and a captain with the Air Force during the war, flew to the crash scene today.

Moore said:

"The planes were spread over an area of a mile in radius. I counted five engines, but three apparently had been consumed by the heat.

"In the center of the circle were two holes in the ground, one about eight feet deep and one five feet deep. They were about 100 feet apart.

Cumberlander Missing In Crash

They are Capt. Arthur M. Neal and Tech. Sgt. Virgil L. Young.

Staff Sgt. Franklin E. Spicer, radio operator, Cumberland, Md.

Truman Will Continue Pressing "Fair Deal"

Radar Screen Helps Bulwark Western Berlin

West To Train, Equip German Police Force

BERLIN, Nov. 16 (AP) — The Western Allies erected new safeguards today against surprise aggression from the East and disclosed that a hitherto secret American radar screen, backed by jet fighter patrols, has passed its first tests.

The bulwarking of West Berlin was illustrated in three actions:

1—The Americans, British and French decided to equip and train the 13,800-man West Berlin police force with machine guns and automatic rifles of French make so the force could join Western troops in resisting any invader from street to street and house to house.

British Tanks Arrive

2—The British moved eight 33-ton Comet tanks to West Berlin to replace light armored cars. The tanks pack 77-millimeter guns.

3—The United States started building a new regiment here with the arrival of 200 troops comprising a headquarters company.

Allied forces now numbering about 10,000 will be increased to about 12,000 by the end of the year. The result will be a combined Allied-German force equal to more than two divisions. American officers calculate that, with the new weapons and coordinated planning, such a force would be able to pin down an enemy three or four times its size.

Military units of the East German Communist people's police, trained with tanks and artillery, number about 50,000. The Soviet army in East Germany, however, is five or six times that size.

Picked Up Thorez Plane

The disclosure of the radar network, which charts the approach of any aircraft, came from Frankfurt. The first test came when a Soviet hospital plane carrying the ailing French Communist leader, Maurice Thorez, from Paris to Moscow for medical treatment flew over West Germany Saturday. Radar picked up the plane and a jet fighter was sent to investigate.

This led to a protest last night by Gen. Vassily Chuikov, chief of the Soviet High Commission in East Germany. He charged that the Russian plane was "attacked."

Proud Boy Chases 100% School Paper Into Path Of Death

BOSTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Seven-year-old Johnny Corrado, who was so proud of his 100 per cent school paper that he chased it right into the path of a freight train, died today in City hospital.

"I got a hundred. I got a hundred," little Johnny yelled happily to schoolmates as he hurried home Tuesday.

A gust of wind whipped the prized paper from his clenched hand and Johnny ran to the railroad tracks to retrieve it. The freight train hurled him to the side of the right-of-way.

As his pals knelt beside him Johnny gasped his last words:

"Get my paper. I want to show it to mother."

Gold Received Rubber Formula From Brothman

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — Soviet Atom Spy Harry Gold testified today that Abraham Brothman became panicky when the FBI got on his trail and "wanted to make up any story to conceal how we met."

"He suggested that I say we had been writing a book together," said Gold, who has testified that he and Brothman worked together for a Russian spy ring.

Earlier, Gold testified that the 36-year-old Brothman turned over to him complete plans for the production of buna-S synthetic rubber—plans a Russian official considered worth two or three brigades of troops.

Gold Passed Data To Boss

Gold said the top-secret data came to him from Brothman in 1942 in "25 or 30" blueprints plus weighty typewritten instructions.

Gold said he passed the information to his boss in the spy ring

The heart of the case is Brothman's story to a grand jury of how he met Gold, a confessed spy for the Soviet.

The government charges Brothman lied about their relations.

Suggested Cooking Up Story

Gold testified he went to Brothman's office in May, 1947, and Brothman told him:

"Look, Harry, the FBI just left here. They know all about us—that you are a (spy ring) courier."

Then, Gold said, Brothman suggested they cook up some sort of a story to explain their relationship.

This testimony came after Gold told of introducing his Russian superior, Semen M. Semenov, to Brothman in a suite in New York City's Lincoln hotel in December, 1942.

President Says Election Gains Of GOP Normal

No Early Congress Call; Acheson Stays

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)— President Truman declared today, with chin outthrust, that he's going to keep right on pressing for adoption of his whole "Fair Deal" program as long as he is president.

He brushed off the Republican election gains as normal in a non-presidential year and said they don't make him blue, even though they're not what he expected.

The President said he'll present his full program to the 82nd Congress when it convenes in January—this in the face of GOP claims that the "Fair Deal" was killed by the Nov. 7 election.

But he told his first news conference since the election that he has decided against calling Congress back in advance of the Nov. 27 date it set for itself. There won't be time, Mr. Truman said, to get a Korean war funds bill ready for presentation before Nov. 27.

Acheson To Keep Job

Before turning to domestic affairs Mr. Truman read a statement pledging this country to take "every honorable step" to keep the Korean war from spreading to China or elsewhere. But he warned at the same time:

"If the Chinese Communists share the desire of the United Nations for peace and security in the Far East, they will not take upon themselves the responsibility for obstructing the objectives of the United Nations in Korea."

Sharply, Mr. Truman told a questioner that Secretary of State Acheson is going to keep his job—period. Acheson has been a prime target of Republican critics of the administration foreign policy, and many have demanded his resignation.

No Comment On 1952 Plans

The President said he's not ready to make any comment on whether he'll seek reelection in 1952. Most leading Democrats predict he will.

In answer to other questions, the President said:

1—Gen. Douglas MacArthur tells him American troops in Korea have plenty of clothing and that's good enough for him. (Dispatches from Korea have reported some men are fighting in summer uniforms despite freezing weather.)

2—Surveys still are going on to determine whether price and wage controls are necessary. They'll be imposed as soon as there is need for them, the President said, but he doesn't think the time has come yet.

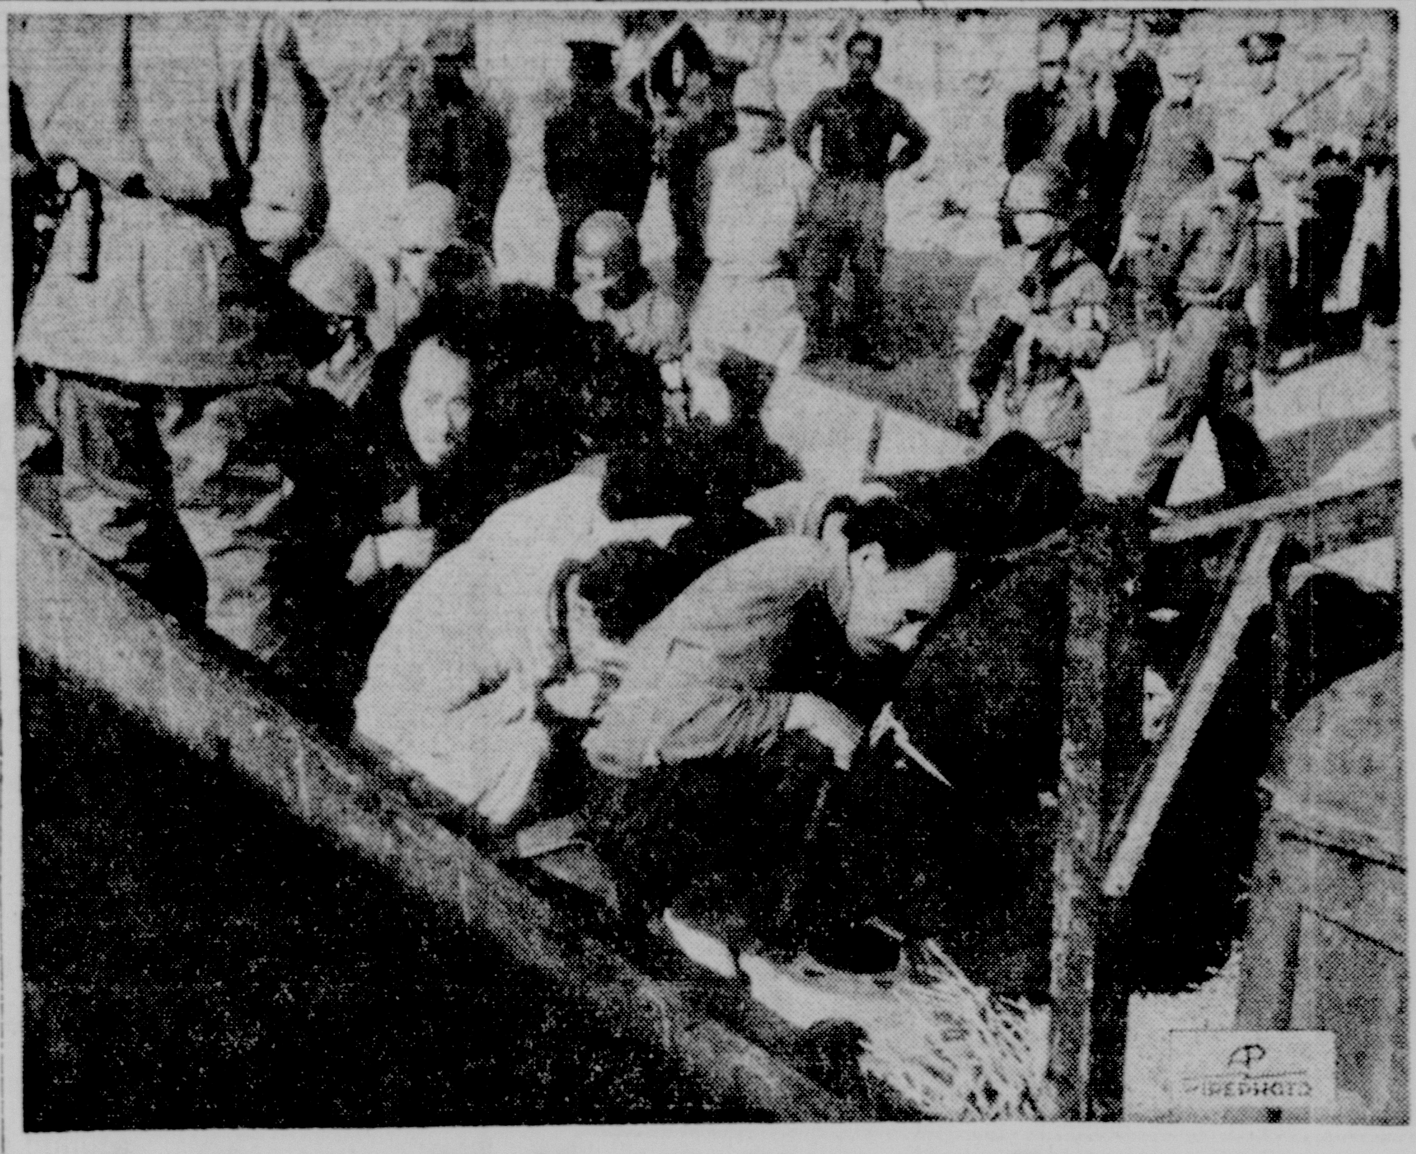
3—He could be convinced that this country should send an ambassador to Franco Spain, but he hasn't been convinced so far.

Train And River Barge Collide

KEOKUK, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A Burlington Route passenger train and a Mississippi river barge collided today.

The Mark Twain Zephyr had just left the station here en route to St. Louis when it hit the prow of the barge, which protruded over the railroad tracks. The engine and a baggage car were derailed but no one was hurt.

Officials still are trying to figure out how the barge reached the railroad tracks. The barge lines use a concrete pier at which they tie up while awaiting their turn to go through the locks at the big dam here.



En Route To South Korean Execution

This picture shows South Korean Communist collaborators crouching in a truck as they were conveyed to the scene of their execution, according to Pix, Inc., New York picture agency which distributed the picture made by its Seoul photographer, I. R. Lorwin. The collaborators faced a firing squad eight miles outside Seoul.

Egypt Says It May Upset British Pact

Threatens Action If Troops Remain

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 16 (AP)— Egypt's Wafdist government today challenged the validity of the Egyptian-British defense treaty of 1936 and pledged cancellation if Britain does not remove her troops from the Suez Canal zone.

The threat was made in a formal speech from the throne, read by Premier Nahas Pasha for King Farouk I at the opening of parliament.

It marked the first time an Egyptian government has officially pledged before parliament to renounce the treaty unilaterally if Britain does not agree to Egypt's longtime demands for withdrawal of the troops and transfer of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to Egyptian rule.

Britain Rejects Views

King Farouk's speech declared the treaty is no longer regarded as legal and "there is no other alternative than to decide its cancellation."

The Suez base, which serviced Allied armies throughout the Middle East in World War II, covers about 2,000,000 acres. It is now staffed by 40,000 army and civilian personnel. The value of the buildings and facilities has been estimated at $500,000,000.

(With unusual speed, Britain rejected the Egyptian views. A Foreign Office spokesman told a London news conference Britain does not recognize Egypt's right to upset the treaty, which binds the two countries together for 20 years. The spokesman said Britain's attitude on the Sudan—that the Sudanese should have the right to decide their own future — remains unchanged.)

Appeasement Speech?

The 1936 treaty authorized the maintenance of British troops in the canal zone until 1956. They have been occupying Egyptian soil for 68 years.

Western observers here believed the King's speech was drafted in vague terms to permit a two-day interpretation and to appease Egyptian popular feeling, which strongly favors withdrawal of the British.

Killed By Lamp

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP) — Officials decided today that Harold Earle, 56, Hammond, was killed when struck on the head last night by a lamp blown from a pole by a high wind. He was working as a plant guard at the time. No one saw the accident.

Malik Says He'll Veto Demand Red China Pull Out Of Korea

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik served notice today he will veto a six-power demand that Communist China pull its troops out of the Korean war immediately. Confronted with that impasse, the United States read to the Security Council President Truman's statement that the U. S. never had any intention of sending troops into China.

Malik attacked the U. S. role in Korea and the Far East once more, said the resolution was based on illegal council decisions and he would vote against it. There were reports tonight that the backers of the resolution, including the U. S., might not press for a vote immediately in view of a certain Soviet veto.

The council adjourned until 3 p. m. EST tomorrow to continue argument over the Korean question.

Malik insisted that the council hear a three-page statement from Peiging denouncing the U. S. on charges of aggression against China and Korea. When Malik had spoken and the statement of the Peiping regime was read, Ernest A. Gross, United States, read into the record President Truman's pledge that the U. S. "never at any time entertained any intention to carry hostilities into China."

Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang opened the verbal firing today with a charge that the Chinese masses are being driven into "un-Chinese" adventures in Korea, Tibet, and Indochina in the interests of the Soviet Union and Prime Minister Joseph Stalin.

Malik's announcement that he will vote against the resolution had been expected from the start of this case in the council. The backers are expected after the veto to urge the General Assembly to act. Some delegates, including India, are reported anxious to have the newly-created peace observation commission of the U. N. go to Korea and check the situation on the spot. Russia is a member of that commission.

Bob Hope Sues Life And Columnist For $2,010,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16 (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope today filed a $2,010,000 damage suit against Life magazine and Radio Columnist John Crosby, charging they libeled him by asserting he stole Comedian Fred Allen's jokes.

Hope alleged that the Nov. 6 issue of Life, under the title "Seven Deadly Sins of the Air," implied he was guilty of plagiarism, a practice which he said the entertainment industry regards as unethical.

U. S. Acts To Hike Aluminum Yield

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — The government tonight offered substantial financial incentives to increase production of a metal vitally needed in the defense program.

At the same time the General Services Administration announced that two large aluminum plants of the Aluminum Company of America will be reopened. These are expected to produce 55,000 tons of metal next year and 79,000 tons a year thereafter. National production is at the rate of 750,000 tons.

An announcement by Administrator Jess Larson of GSA said the government will make aluminum producers this offer:

If they build a new plant or construct an addition to a present plant they may subtract one-fifth of the cost of it each year from their income taxes.

But they must apply this amount to the cost of building the plant, until the building is paid for or the rebates equal the cost.

Boy Triplets Born

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The mother of a nine-month-old daughter gave birth yesterday and today to healthy boy triplets.

The first of the triplets was born to 26-year-old Mrs. Claire Yerves, at 2:15 a. m.

Court Rules Mistress Is Dependent In Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Is a mistress a dependent? She is in Maryland, says the state's highest court.

The Court of Appeals, by a 5 to 1 decision, upheld Mrs. Ida R. Kendall's contention that she was a dependent of the late John Daniels and therefore eligible for benefits under the workmen's compensation law.

Push Forward Up To 5 Miles Despite Sleet

Air Attack Slowed; Resistance Spotty

SEOUL, Friday, Nov. 17 (AP) — Allied troops scratched out gains up to five miles against spotty Red resistance in a general advance along the sleet-struck fighting front in North Korea Thursday.

The sleet made the going rough for the foot soldiers, and cut down the around-the-clock bombing of Red bases and supply centers. Temperatures rose from previous near-zero levels, however.

Chinese and Korean Communists pulled back a little more in the northwest and north-central sectors. The steam went out of a North Korean Red counterattack in the far northeast.

The U. S. First Corps advanced on a 30-mile front in the northwest against practically no opposition.

Reds Reportedly Pull Back

The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade rolled through Pakchon and pushed about three miles north. British patrols ventured another mile and one-half ahead and found no trace of Reds.

Chinese and North Korean Red divisions, once reported digging in on high ground west of Pakchon, now were reported to have pulled back ten miles.

Northeast of Pakchon, the U. S 24th Division advanced up to a mile and one-half and sent patrols as far as Yongsong. The U. S. First Cavalry Division moved almost a mile north of the old walled city of Youngbyon. The two divisions were in an arc along a front 15 miles northeast of Pakchon.

These advances swelled the Allied Chongchon river bridgehead northward and westward.

On the bridgehead's east side, the Korean republic's Second Corps struggled back to Tokchon, 25 miles east of Youngbyon, and thereby regained most of the four miles lost to counterattacking Reds earlier in the week.

Marines Gain Three Miles

In snow-covered mountains east of the bridgehead, U. S. Seventh Regiment Marines skirmished with outposts of a Red force of unestimated size after a three-mile Marine advance west of the Changjin reservoir.

A prisoner said Chinese troops were assembling in large numbers in mountains west of the reservoir. The entire Chinese 42nd Army, about equal in numbers to two American divisions, may be massing in the area.

To the northeast, the U. S. Seventh Infantry Division sent one spearhead up the east banks of the Pujon reservoir and another — the U. S. 17th Regiment — five miles north to the 41st parallel against Red tanks, artillery and infantry. The advance, Thursday's biggest, put the 17th only 20 miles south of the Manchurian border on the road to Kapsan.

American Casualties In Korea Now 28,881

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. (AP) — American forces have suffered a total of 28,881 announced casualties in the Korean fighting, a Defense Department summary showed today.

The figures covered casualties where the next of kin had been notified through Nov. 10. The new total was 646 larger than that announced a week before.

The latest list showed 4,798 dead, including 4,049 from the Army, 627 Marine Corps, 49 Navy and 73 Air Force.

Lee, Cleared Of Disloyalty Charge, Quits And Is Fired

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)— Michael E. Lee, Commerce Department official, was cleared of disloyalty charges by his boss today, and within minutes resigned and was fired from his $10,750-a-year job.

Informed of the discharge order issued by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Lee's attorney commented: "How dirty can you get?"

The sequence of resignation and ouster came almost simultaneously in mid-afternoon and climaxed a bitter controversy involving charges of disloyalty against Lee.

Lee, 42, Manchurian-born son of Russian parents, was chief of the Commerce Department's Far Eastern (Asiatic) trade branch.

Confusion over Lee's ouster-resignation was compounded by Sawyer's announcement that he had cleared Lee of disloyalty charges but had ordered his dismissal "on the ground of security and the best interests of the United States."

The resignation and ouster broke almost at the same time, apparently by coincidence, with neither Sawyer nor Lee aware of the other's action.

Lee's attorney, Leonard A. Nikoloric of the law firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter, expressed astonishment when told that Lee had been discharged. He insisted that Lee had not been notified.

"How dirty can you get—letting a man resign and then firing him?" Nikoloric asked newsmen.

U. S. Air Defense Command Will Be Shifted To Colorado

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) — Headquarters for the nation's defense against air attacks will be shifted from New York to Colorado Springs, Colo., early in 1951, the Air Force announced today.

The move will thus take the key headquarters to the western half of the United States—some 1,650 miles from the Atlantic coast—with control over both the east and west air defense forces.

The swing to the west once again lent emphasis to the strategic concept that if present tension with Russia should erupt into World War III, the gravest danger of aerial blows against the United States would focus on the northwest "gateway."

Pentagon officials were reluctant to discuss reasons for the shift, but one obvious motive would be to provide greater protection for the important air defense "nerve center" by locating it far inland. It was pointed out that guided missiles, conceivably with atomic warheads, could be fired from submarines lying a few miles off the present headquarters at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y.

The Air Force said 800 military and civilian personnel will be assigned to the new headquarters at Colorado Springs, 71 miles south of Denver on the eastern fringes of the Rocky Mountains.

Lt. Gen. Ennis C Whitehead will take over command of the new headquarters. He is now chief of the Continental Air Command based at Mitchel Field.

The Air Force said the Air Defense Command will establish its permanent headquarters early next year at Ent Air Force base, Colorado Springs, which served as headquarters of the Second Air Force during World War II. The base was named in honor of Maj. Gen. Uzal G. Ent, who was killed in a bomber crash in October, 1944.

Gen. Whitehead's command will direct the existing eastern air defense force, headquartered at Newburgh, N .Y., and the western force at San Rafael, Calif.

3 Cousins, All Dead, Named Heirs To Garrett Fortune

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)— Three cousins—all of them dead— were named heirs to the $17,000,000 Garrett estate today, 20 years to the day after the death of Mrs. Henrietta Garrett opened up a multimillion dollar international grab bag.

Two survivors of the cousins, a Greenville (Miss) banker and an elderly Chicago recluse, will get an estimated $2,000,000 each under a finding prepared for recommendation to Orphans Court. The U. S. government and the State of Pennsylvania will split up the remaining $13,000,000, most of it as taxes.

The two who get the money are:

Wilson Primm Kretschmar, 71, Greenville banker and a nephew and heir of Herman A. Kretschmar, St. Louis, who died in 1941.

Mrs. Constance Kretschmar Mock, Chicago, daughter and heir of Howard Sigismund Kretschmar, Chicago, who died in 1933.

The heirs of the third cousin, Johann Peter Schafer, Bad Nauheim, Germany, who died in 1945, probably will get nothing. The government has claimed that share under an act which bars enemy aliens from inheriting U. S. property. The U. S. still is technically at war with Germany.

Today's action was the first step toward settlement of the violence-tinged fortune hunt. More than 26,000 claimants from all over the world got into the scrap.

Raccoon Getting Too Big A Break

WASHINGTON—(AP) — New fur styles and the excise tax may be giving the raccoon too much of a break.

A Wildlife Service official who didn't want to be named said the raccoon population is 'way up, especially in the south.

'Coons are reported spilling out of their old forest-land haunts into swamps and open country where they become crop pests and destroy birds' eggs.

This official told a reporter the increase in the 'coon population is due largely to:

1. A current fashion demand for short fur—the kind that grows on seal, marten, muskrat and beaver, not on raccoons.

2. The excise tax, which discourages use of 'coon fur for trim. The tax applies to the whole garment, even if raccoon fur is used only as trimming.

The Wildlife Service is now studying other possible uses for the raccoon pelt, the official said, and the results "may change the whole picture in the future." He wouldn't say how.

His immediate solution?

"It would be a big help," he said "if college boys would return to the wearing of 'coonskin coats."

The returns make Bob Taft, Warren and Dewey strong Republican repeaters for the GOP presidential nomination. This time let's pick out the one we like and drown the other two. Otherwise in 1956 we will add another bottle cap to the charm bracelet.

Vito Genovese Is Regarded By Some Sources As Real Boss Of Crime And Rackets

NEW YORK—(INS)—Who is Vito Genovese?

His name crops up repeatedly in testimony before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee and is mentioned by underworld witnesses with awe and respect.

Although not so well known to the public as Frank Costello, Joe Adonis, Meyer Lansky and some others, Vito Genovese is regarded by some underworld sources as the real No. 1 boss of crime and rackets.

In the opinion of these sources, Genovese even outranks Costello, who often has been described as "the prime minister of the underworld."

Judge Samuel Leibowitz, who once tried Genovese for murder and who now is in charge of the Brooklyn grand jury investigating police graft and gambling, says:

"I have heard that Genovese is probably the most powerful single figure in the crime picture in America today."

District Attorney Miles McDonald of Brooklyn, who prosecuted Genovese on the murder charge, says that he has heard the same thing, but adds that of course he has no way of proving it.

The man with this fearsome reputation at present is living in quiet "retirement" in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., as a gentleman chicken farmer. His "estate" reportedly cost Genovese $40,000.

In other years, when he was presumably more active, Genovese maintained a luxurious apartment in sedate Washington Square, New York City.

If Genovese's professional reputation is all that they say it is, he has led a remarkably charmed life.

His record from 1920 to 1944, according to Department of Justice files, shows 11 arrests on such assorted charges as assault, murder, burglary, disorderly conduct and unlawful flight. But he escaped them all with "no disposition" or only light fines.

It is not known now how much evidence the Senate Crime Investigating Committee has on Genovese, but underworld witnesses from all sections of the country, testifying on interstate crime operations, have said that they either knew Genovese or knew his reputation.

In 1944 Genovese was indicted in Brooklyn for a murder committed in 1934. The victim was Ferdinand Boccia, known as The Shadow, a comparatively minor gambler and swindler.

When the indictment was returned Genovese had fled to his native Italy where, during the war, he turned up on the staff of the Allied military government, serving under Col. Charles Poletti, former lieutenant-governor and interim governor of New York, then regional commissioner of the Allied military government in Rome.

Brought back to New York to face trial for first degree murder, Genovese won a directed verdict of acquittal, the key witnesses against him having died or disappeared. One died under mysterious circumstances in prison.

The principal prosecution witness, whose testimony could not be corroborated, was Ernest Rupolo, alias The Hawk, an admitted professional killer.

The Hawk testified that he and others were engaged to kill Boccia and another designated victim, William Gallo.

The Hawk undertook the Gallo job, but bungled it, he said. At the first attempt his gun failed to go off. On the next he shot Gallo in the head, The Hawk said, and left him for dead.

But Gallo lived to testify against The Hawk, who was sentenced to a long term for attempted murder.

Describing the scene at an obscure Manhattan restaurant where the alleged murder plot was hatched, The Hawk testified that he met Genovese there.

Kenovese was introduced to him, the witness said, as "Don Vitone," meaning, he explained "The Great One."

Genovese, "The Great One," reportedly was one of the guests at the now famous charity dinner given by Costello in January, 1949, at the Copacabana night club in New York.

Genovese reportedly received a royal welcome that night—one befitting his reputed station in the underworld. The other guests at the dinner included New York judges and sundry other public officials and politicians.

Success On Imports

The problem of increasing imports to make them balance with exports has disappeared, for the time at least. It is reported that imports are beginning to exceed exports. There are both temporary and long-range reasons for this. There has been a steady campaign, since the inception of the Marshall Plan, to build up the permanent import trade. The war in Korea has increased the interest of American concerns in buying both materials and manufactured goods from foreign sources. War conditions also have caused some curtailment in the offerings of American goods for export, since there has been more demand for them on the domestic market.

The last-named factor has already become serious enough to cause some concern for businesses which rely on foreign markets for disposal of a regular proportion of their output. They foresee possible permanent loss of some of this export market, just at the time when foreign trade is regaining its health, if foreign orders must be turned down for lack of goods. They also fear damage to the export trade if advantage is taken of the sellers market to tighten credit, raise prices or get rid of inferior merchandise. These fears are reasonable.

The same fears also need to be applied to the domestic market. Americans will be no less unhappy than foreign buyers if sellers take advantage of them in the war market. Many businesses plan to allot available goods to the domestic and foreign markets on a quota system, in order to hold as much of both markets as possible. To save future uproars when it is discovered that goods scarce here are being shipped abroad, business should carefully and fully explain how and why this is being done, for the long-range health of American business.

The market basket may bring home meat, butter, eggs, beans, spinach and potatoes, but never, in the youngster's opinion, anything to eat.

Life On Mars

Is there life on Mars? This question has been asked at least since the last century when Giovanni Schiaparelli, an Italian astronomer, announced that he had found "canali" on Mars. The word really means "channels," which would indicate nothing as to their nature, but was generally rendered "canals," which would imply the existence of intelligent builders. Ever since then, astronomers have battled over the habitability of Mars, the leading proponents being American. Notable among them was the late Precival Lowell, whose observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, benefited from an atmosphere of marvelous visibility.

Now a new summary of the world's knowledge on the subject has been published, "The Planet Mars," by Gerard de Vaucouleurs, a French astronomer. He emphasizes the difficulties in the way of observation. He assumes that we shall never be able to see Mars through a good telescope as well as we can see the moon through good binoculars or even with the naked eye. There do appear, however, to be growing and receding ice caps at the poles, deserts, and some signs of vegetation. Vaucouleurs leaves the question opens as to whether there are canals, or whether these markings are merely hallucinations. He does list, however, the belief that the Martian atmosphere lacks oxygen. If intelligent beings do live there, as H. G. Wells and Orson Welles helped many to believe, they must be quite different from human beings.

In 1956 Mars will be nearer the earth than it has been for many years. Perhaps the astronomers can then get some information.

New Blitzkrieg Idea

The German campaigns of 1940 gave the English language a new word, "blitzkrieg." When the German armies conquered the Netherlands in four days and Denmark in one, and knocked over France as if it had been a rotten tree, they amazed the world with their achievements. The lack of effective resistance on the part of the Allies was attributed to overwhelming enemy numerical superiority in guns and armor.

This idea is now debated. Writing in a professional military magazine, the Armored Cavalry Journal, Garrett Underhill makes the startling statement that the Germans had less than 2,800 tanks. The French alone had 3,600, and the British and the Belgians added to this number. Moreover, he says the Allied tanks were more powerful in guns and armor. What gave the Germans their speedy victory was not the overwhelming mass of their tanks, but superiority in the three T's, training, tactics and technique, to which spirit might be added, according to Underhill.

Later, American Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., showed that the blitzkrieg was no exclusive German property. He rolled over the Germans as they had done earlier in the war over the French and Belgians. The Russian advances in the last year of the war showed that they too had profited by the German lesson.

The Nazi panzers were no secret weapon. They had been discussed for years in professional military journals. So too in the next war, if there is one, the chief weapon is likely to be something that all well informed strategists know about. Success will be due to superior training for the average soldier, and superior employment of the weapons at hand.

A lost-and-found report says ten times as many women as men lose umbrellas. But then which usually has an umbrella when it rains?

Pentagon Abundance

There may be scarcities of materials and of manpower, the military services may not be as big as some might wish and the weapons not as potent as could be desired, but there is one element of defense in which the nation now surpasses the peak period of World War II. There are more defense employes in the fabulous Pentagon Building in Washington—27,500 of them—than there ever were during the war. There are so many, in fact, that 1,600 new automobile parking spaces are needed to serve the building.

There is parking space for 6,700 cars, and this was enough during the war. Then, the number of cars driven to the Pentagon as well as elsewhere was reduced by scarcity of gasoline. Apparently one shortage Americans need never fear is shortage of government employes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Taking The Temperature

THE CLINICAL thermometer is an instrument important to the physician because it designates whether or not fever exists. The gadget is easy to use and comes in a convenient holder, smaller than the average pen or pencil. This is in sharp contrast to the large thermometers of years ago which Sir Lauder Brunton humorously compared to a gun carried under the arm by physicians.

The history of the thermometer dates back to Sanctorius, who invented the device late in the 16th century. It was used mainly by physicists until after 1867 when Clifford Allbutt designed a short and practical instrument. The thermometer had been recommended in illness long before that time but it was of little value because of the size, the length of time it took to register, and the fact that only armpit readings were possible.

The modern instrument is a small glass tube, enlarged at one end. It contains mercury which expands on contact with heat and rises in a graduated column to a height corresponding to the degrees of heat. On the outside of the tube, manufacturers have etched a graduated scale beginning with 92 degrees and ending at 108 degrees F. Variations are common, depending upon the brand. As a rule there is an arrow or special mark to designate 98.6 degrees F. This is an arbitrary dividing line because in most cases figures above this level indicate fever.

The temperature usually is taken by mouth; the instrument is inserted just below the tongue and the lips are closed gently over the glass tube. The rectal temperature which is one degree higher than the oral reading, gives more accurate readings and is preferred with infants, the unconscious and delirious, and anyone who is coughing or having difficulty in breathing. If malingering is suspected, rectal temperatures are taken. Every physician has had experience with this situation; the patient has a high temperature but the cause is not apparent. He looks well and feels cool, and all the tests are normal. But when the thermometer is used by a nurse standing by the bedside, the level generally is normal. The malingerer ultimately confesses and admits rubbing the end of the thermometer briskly against the sheets to create friction or placing the device against a hot water bottle or in warm water. Many malingerers are young girls who thrive on the attention they are receiving from their family and friends; other malingerers are adults who enjoy being hospitalized.

Thermometers are fragile and easily broken. They should be kept in a hard case and protected by cotton. They are readily cleansed with soap and cool water; hot water breaks them.

Elevations in temperature are not always caused by disease. Readings above 98.6 degrees are not unusual after exercise, eating, or emotional excitement. False "fevers" are obtained after drinking warm water or eating hot food. In the absence of a thermometer the hand is an excellent substitute; experts can tell a difference of one-half a degree and almost all of us have no difficulty in detecting fever by feeling the forehead.

LEG CRAMPS

G. W. writes: I suffer from leg cramps which wake me up at night. Is this serious?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The condition is common and often occurs in the absence of circulatory changes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cramping of the extremities.

BABY IS O. K.

Mrs. E. writes: If a pregnant woman suffers from toxemia will the child be sickly?

REPLY

No, as toxemia in the mother has no effect on the baby if it survives. The condition may lead to miscarriage, however.

REMAINS OF DISEASE

J. F. writes: What is a residual of a disease?

REPLY

What is left after the malady has run its course. Examples are a heart defect following rheumatic fever and paralyzed limbs after polio.

SPINAL COLUMN DEFECT

A. F. R. writes: Will you explain a spina bifida back?

REPLY

This is a spinal defect due to failure of the outward portion of the vertebrae to meet in the midline. As a result, a part of the spinal cord is not covered with bone. In many instances no harm is done but in others the canal bulges and is in serious danger of being injured.

MENDED HEART

B. Y. writes: Can a heart wound be repaired with stitches?

REPLY

Yes. This procedure is now relatively safe because certain improvements have been made in technic and the administration of an anesthetic for this purpose.

Hormonized Chickens Can Produce Sterile Humans; Americans Consume Dangerous Chemicals Daily; Industrialists Request Price Controls

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When you eat a chicken neck from a capon which has been fed on a certain kind of fattening hormone, you run the risk of becoming sterile. This is one of the findings of the House committee to investigate the use of chemicals in food products, which has been quitely probing the effect of all sorts of chemicals now artificially injected into our food.

In the case of chicken necks, it was revealed that some poultry farmers use a hormone called stilbesterol to fatten chickens in a hurry. When injected in the neck, this hormone makes an old rooster not only fat but tender.

The effect on the human being, if he eats the neck, however, can induce sterility. Congressman Arthur Miller of Nebraska, himself a doctor, told the committee that the mink growers of Illinois had fed chicken and turkey heads from poultry so treated to their mink, only to have them become sterile.

As a result, Canada prohibits the use of stilbesterol pellets in feeding poultry, Dr. Franklin Church Bing, chairman of the Chemical Committee of the American Public Health Association told the congressmen.

Gives Dogs Fits

The committee, headed by able James J. Delaney, New York Democrat, has heard testimony from some of the nation's top chemists, all of whom urge the plugging of present loopholes in the Pure Food and Drug Act to prevent the use of harmful chemicals.

Their testimony revealed that while some chemicals are harmless, others are so poisonous that they produce ulcers, and even disintegrate the human teeth.

One example of a dangerous food ingredient is agene, or nitrogen trichloride, a chemical used to age flour. Although used for more than 30 years, it was not until three years ago that an English scientist proved the agene-treated bread produced epileptic fits in dogs. In recent months, the use of this chemical has been discontinued but not until after millions of people had eaten it.

The committee has developed a long list of dangerous chemicals—many of them consumed daily. The list includes:

1. Mineral Oil — Used in salad dressings and on popcorn as a substitute for nutritious fats was found to interfere with the absorption of oil-soluble vitamins and generally upset the human digestive system.

2. Monochloracetic acid—Used as a preservative for wines and a number of food products. Its use in an orange soft drink recently caused numerous illnesses.

3. Dulcin—An artificial sweetener, used as a sugar substitute by diabetics and recently discovered to be toxic.

Under our present pure food and drug laws, the government is not permitted to take action against the use of chemicals until after the food has been on the market; then only after protracted investigation and hearings. As a result, according to the scientists testifying before Congress, the American public has become a nation of experimental guinea pigs.

Congressman Delaney now proposes to have these chemicals tested before their use, not afterward.

Industry Requests Controls—Charles Wilson of General Electric and Henry Ford II read the riot act to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer and Stuart Symington on high prices of raw materials at the recent mobilization meeting at Sea Island, Ga. They wanted to know when the government was going to do something about high prices. It was shortly after this that Secretary Sawyer came out emphatically against voluntary controls.

His Son Tortured—U. S. Ambassador David Bruce in Paris has complained vigorously to the French government about French Defense Minister Jules Moch. Bruce told French Premier Rene Pleven at a secret conference that the U.S.A. believes Moch's anti-German attitude is threatening to wreck all plans for defending Europe against communism; that Moch is being unnecessarily tough about Germany because his son was tortured to death by the Nazi Gestapo during the war. Premier Pleven promised to get Moch to soften his opposition. (Many Americans think Moch is right.)

Diplomatic Pouch

Mitsuo Fuchida, the Japanese naval pilot who led the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, has been converted to christianity. He was converted, he says, by a desire to prevent another Pearl Harbor . . . . Real reason for the sudden $35,000,000 loan to the Philippines was because the Philippine government didn't have enough money to pay its soldiers. Without the loan there would have been revolution. (Philippine teachers haven't been paid in four months—but teachers don't have guns) . . . . General MacArthur now estimates the Chinese Reds are holding a total of 300,000 men in reserve—not one million—as frequently reported . . . Prime Minister Nehru's attempt to make peace with the Chinese Reds is partly based on fear of the commies inside India. Practically every major union in India is loaded with them. . . . . U. S. Ambassador Dunn has chided the Italian government for trying to establish diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communists at a time when they are threatening world peace. Dunn told Foreign Minister Sforza that the Italian government's announcement shocked the United States.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

SECRETARY of Defense George Marshall and Under-Secretary Robert Lovett are now engaged in the Herculean task of trying to save a full $15 billion a year in defense expenditures. The Marshall-Lovett goal is to reduce the level of defense spending from the colossal $55 billion a year currently projected to $40 billion and perhaps less.

This is economy, and with a vengeance. But it is economy of a very different sort from the "economy" of the unlamented Louis Johnson. The difference is really very simple. The Johnson program was based on the delusion that any substantial increase in military expenditures would almost instantly cause the American economic structure to come apart like the one-hoss-shay. Thus the whole emphasis in the Defense Department was on holding spending to the arbitrary Johnson limit, rather than on providing the combat potential needed for survival.

Lovett and Marshall, by contrast, have now put the horse in front of the cart. They have asked first what combat power the United States must have. They have accepted the answer—a twenty-division Army, an Air Force expanded as rapidly as possible toward 90 groups, a Navy in a state of war readiness, with a much more powerful air arm and marine force. Only when this was established did the Marshall-Lovett team take a good, hard look at the price in men and money. And as a result of this good hard look, they have demanded that the same combat power be delivered with substantially fewer men and $15 billion less in money.

Induced A Neurosis

The fact is that the Johnson program, because it was based on a delusion, induced a sort of neurosis in the military. Every responsible military planner was perfectly aware, long before Korea, that the combat power of the United States was totally inadequate in view of the world situation. But the idea that the economic survival of the United States was at stake had been do drilled into them, that even after Korea, the first estimate of requirements was held to $18 billion.

It was not until about the beginning of August that the military chiefs suddenly woke up to the fact that money was no longer the first consideration. Then the neurosis began, as it were, to work in reverse. It was then that what has since become known as "Operation Paperclip" began. Every conceivable pet project, which had hitherto been no more than a gleam in some frustrated general officer's eye, was hastily unearthed, dusted off, and approved. Cost estimates mounted as if jet-propelled, to the $55 billion-a-year level, to support a military establishment of over 3,000,000 men.

Now Marshall and Lovett have demanded an end to "Operation Paperclip" and a completely new start. The nature of the problem which confronts them is illustrated by the row now smouldering between the Air Force and the Army. As the Army is now organized, a twenty-division ground force would mean an army of about a million and a half men, or half the contemplated total force. And because the Army, which has been living on its World War II fat, must be re-equipped almost from scratch, this in turn would mean that the Army would take upwards of half the Marshall-Lovett $40 billion budget.

Kremlin Has Big Potential

With the navy taking its share of the remainder, this would leave neither enough money nor enough men for a rapid build-up towards an Air Force of at least 90 groups, which all authorities agree is now essential to American security. Moreover, Air Force men angrily assert, during the period of mounting danger which confronts the Western alliance, the Kremlin, with a mobilization potential of 300 divisions, is not going to be deterred from adventures by a twenty-division American army. The Kremlin will be deterred, if at all, by crushing American strategic air superiority.

The answer is suggested by a single set of figures. The Red Army's "divisional slice"—the number of men in uniform required to maintain a single Russian division in the field—is 22,000 men at war strength. The comparable American figure is well over 70,000 men. The same contrast applies equally, if not more, in the case of the Air Force and the Navy.

Obviously the answer is that all three services must deliver much more actual fighting power per man committed and per dollar spent. This is precisely the answer which Marshall and Lovett are now sternly demanding. And because they have considered first, the job which must be done, and only second, the men and dollars required to do the job, the answer they are demanding represents true, rather than false, economy.

Yet one thing more needs to be said. With Communist China now apparently wholly committed in Korea, any fool can see that a third world war is at least possible. And any fool can also see that the American armed forces must have at all costs the wherewithal to fight, and eventually to win such a war. Everything else, even true economy, must be subordinated to this.

More Sweeping Controls Are Likely In U. S. Soon

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — The mood of Washington often shifts with the winds of international affairs. Just now there is apprehension and genuine fear that the Chinese Communists, with Soviet connivance, may be trying to start a large-scale war in the Far East.

A short time ago, when it looked as if the North Korean opposition was being mopped up by the U. N. military forces, there was some concern here lest the armament program become bogged down through complacency.

The government as yet has not succeeded in impressing upon the country that a long-range rearmament program is in process which must necessarily cut back goods for civilian use and take more and more raw materials for military purposes.

Decisions Postponed

The political campaign which ended last week caused the postponement of many decisions that are involved in the conversion of the peacetime economy to a new pattern.

There is one difference, however, between 1940 and the present period. In this instance, more time is being given for adjustment—more time for individual producers to arrange for the allocation of their supplies.

But this very effort to do the job in a more orderly way than before is bringing its complications. It is obvious that the idea of letting each seller of a product in short supply determine how much he will give to particular customers will inevitably raise a howl from those who are not getting the amounts they want. Those businesses which are engaging in war work for the first time will be complaining if they find themselves up against a discriminatory situation because they happen not to have established relations with suppliers.

Predictions are being made that the wartime method of allocation, such as the "controlled materials plan," will have to be applied by the middle of next year, if not sooner.

What is happening, of course, is that the basis for a peacetime system of control has not been laid by the international situation. The fluctations in the headlines make the problem more and more difficult daily. Plainly the President will have to call in the Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress soon and, after an agreement is reached as to the size of the military program, the essential facts will have to be given to the country.

Already there are industrial layoffs due to shortages of materials. While the statisticians and the economists can explain all this away by the statement that defense orders will be coming soon to take up the slack, the interim period will not be made any less painful.

The truth is the United States doesn't have an economy that can be managed either by the government or by private industry in such a way as to avoid these gaps. Some deflationary influences will set in even as more inflationary influences are at work.

Affect Employment Picture

It is significant that the cost-of-living index is receding slightly, and this may apply a restraint on the demands for wage increases which in themselves have been adding to the inflationary spiral.

But it is growing more and more apparent every day that the shortages of materials and the tightening of credit are directly and indirectly affecting the employment picture. While much of the idle manpower will be absorbed, there is always the geographical factor—new businesses with defense orders do not arise in the very localities where the layoffs occur. Home-owners do not move to other areas instantaneously.

Unquestionably in a few weeks the members of Congress will be hearing from their constituents about the manner in which controls are applied, and the problem will then be to find some more equitable system of allocation than the method now being used, where the producers make the decisions. So long as the complaint are few in number, the present system will drift on but those who are familiar with wartime experience say it is only a question of months when a more drastic and sweeping pattern of controls will have to be imposed.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The New York Pattern

A NUMBER of correspondents have asked me to explain the curiosities of the New York election where a Republican is elected governor, a Democrat to the United States Senate, and an independent mayor of the city. It apparently forms no pattern to those who live elsewhere.

First of all, New York City is as large in population as some European nations. Among its 8,000,000 inhabitants are 350,000 Puerto Ricans; 600,000 Negroes; more Jews than in Israel; nearly as many Italians as in Rome.

These folks are at various stages of assimilation. In my youth, the Germans were a group apart, but they seem to have disappeared as such. There is no such thing as a German vote. That is fast becoming true of the Irish, who are no longer separatist in their attitude. The Italians, on the other hand, are in a mood to fight for recognition.

While Fiorello LaGuardia was generally regarded as the first Italian to rise in New York politics and to overcome the lead of the Irish, he was actually a man of so mixed an origin and so varied a personality that he stands out an exception. His father was an Italian bandmaster with the American Army in Arizona; his mother was a Venetian Jewess; his wife was of German origin. The "Little Flower" seems to have spoken all languages and to have been a part of all cultures. He was first sent to Congress from an Italian district that was soon infiltrated by Negroes and is now Puerto Rican. He could speak Yiddish like a Warsaw Jew and Serbian like a Yugoslav. Not a Catholic, he was really outside Italian culture; a Protestant, he was outside Jewish culture. Yet, he belonged to all these peoples and many others. Maybe that is why he was so confused that he was a Republican socialist.

In the recent election, three Italians ran for mayor. All of them had been born in Italy. Each of them had achieved important public offices. Two were Tammany Democrats; one a liberal Republican.

In New York City, it is difficult to hold political parties together. The city is really a congeries of small neighborhoods which vary greatly. For instance, the district in which I live used to be Republican and in it lived quite well-to-do people like Charles M. Schwab, whose palace has just been turned into a tenement. Now this district is largely Jewish—in fact, one of the most Jewish districts on the island of Manhattan with a large body of recent refugees. Also Spanish-Americans of the middle class have moved into it. Our representative in Congress is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who does not live in the district and pays no attention to it.

Such a district is really without political complexion. It is neither Republican nor Democrat; neither for private enterprise nor for socialism. It votes for individuals. No matter what the issues, Herbert Lehman and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., can always carry it. Opposition is futile.

It is such district as this which form the curious complex of New York politics. No party boss can possibly tell in advance what can happen in them.

It is in this congeries of peoples, races, religions, European and South American associations and affiliations, a candidate has to find a common denominator which will make his election possible. From a very practical political standpoint the situation so difficult that most men dread to step into it.

Into all this move two tough groups: 1. The racketeers; 2. The professional labor leaders.

The racketeer in New York is not a tough. He is usually a rich, soft-spoken, conservatively dressed big business operator. His associations are with so-called respectable citizens whom the racketeer lets into his businesses. Sometimes these racketeers spend huge sums on charities and are given testimonial dinners, attended by top citizens. Candidates short of funds can always get a sizable contribution from these men with no strings attached. Why atach strings when there are ways of exercising power quietly, even in a genteel manner?

The professional labor leader in New York operates politically and openly. He announces his support and candidates vie for it. He also attaches no strings, but by constant activity, by widespread public relations, and the free expenditures of money, he brings a terrifying pressure upon ambitious public officials. It is a curious place.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—Sideglances at celebrities:

One of the more astonishing comebacks in theatrical history is being scored these days by 59-year-old Eddie Cantor, who, like Al Jolson before him, was pushed out of the spotlight by young men for a long time—and sprang back.

At an age when many men grope for the rocking chair and slippers, the saucer-eyed minstrel man is as full of beans as a two-year-old. His television show is a solid sock, and he made some kind of history during the 33-city one-man concert tour he is just completing.

In Toronto's Massey Hall, which seats 3,200, he sold out, then came back three days later and did even better—what with standees.

In Chicago he drew 4,000 to Medinah Temple at $10 a head, in Birmingham, with only a $4 top, he grossed $8,900. And he made two appearances at Carnegie Hall within a space of six months, which few of the very top long-haired stars would attempt, and played each time to turnaway crowds.

Eddie has turned out to be a one-man "South Pacific." Matter of fact, he has consistently outgrossed the all-time money-winner while on the road. His exhausing act, which somehow does not exhaust him, is a playback through his 40 years of show business—with songs, patter and anecdotes about the greats whose path he has crossed since his days on the lower east side of New York, when he was Izzy Iskowitz.

Cantor always leaves his audience with a little more than they brought into the theater. On the occasions when he gets around to talking about his trip to Israel, he is, to my mind, the best reporter on that land of any I've ever heard.

• — • — •

Speaking of Israel, if you want the drama, pathos and glory of the struggling rebirth of that land, you'd better pick up "Israel Revisited" by Ralph McGill, famed editor of the Atlanta Constitution.

"Israel Revisited" (Tupper and Love, Inc., Atlanta, $2) has an introduction by Billy Rose. McGill's keen eyes and ears have seen and heard why a land can presevere, surrounded by a hostile Arab world, though a third of its people have been there less than two years, and its population ranges from unlettered nomads from Yemen to brilliant American scholars.

• — • — •

A new international record for flared nostrils and elegant "howdjadoos" should be set next Tuesday in New York when all the existing "men of distinction" who have not joined the wax museum, or succumbed from alcoholism, hold their first annual party.

The story of how a New York Journal American reporter, Elizabeth Beecher, battled in behalf of a bedraggled young murderer in whom she believed, will be featured on NBC's interesting television program "The Big Story" Nov. 24.

The hungry, desperate kid killed the proprietor of a delicatessen store when the man battled him for a turkey. He was headed for a qiuck trial and the electric chair when Elizabeth Beecher thought she saw something in his eyes that did not betoken the hardened murderer.

She reconstructed his life in a series of articles—not warped with sentimentality but filled with the reasons and steps and setbacks beyond his control which brought him to his cell.

His crime, she pointed out, was more than a crime against society. Society was an accomplice, and the taking of his life—without the installation of reforms which would guard against other crimes by other underprivileged Americans—would serve no purpose.

The D. A. reduced the charge to manslaughter. He served his time, is now happily married and a hard-working and respected member of his community . . . all because a reporter saw something essentially good in a picture of a man about to burn.

The root of an epileptic's trouble is not his ailment so much as the community's misunderstanding.—Mrs. Dixie Yahraes, mother of an epileptic.

AAUW Marks Founder's Day With Program

A Founders' Day dinner and program was held by the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, under the sponsorship of the International Relations Group Wednesday evening at the Cumberland Country Club. Dr. Phoebe Morrison, from the National Headquarters of the International Relations Association, Washington, was the speaker.

In a brief business session Dr. Hazel G. Ramsey announced that a speaker from India, who was associated with Ghandi, will address the group December 13. The place of the meeting is to be announced later. It also was decided to have the International Relations groups of the AAUW and Business and Professional Women meet together.

The place and influence of the American Association of University Women not only in the United States but throughout the world was stressed by Dr. Morrison, who also told of her trip to the International Council in London in 1948 at which time she also visited the various branches in England and Holland. She said that now there are 33 branches in foreign countries. The latest are China. Philippines and Siam.

Discussing "Fellowships," the main project of the university women, Dr. Morrison declared that they are for college graduates, without regard to color or creed, who are brought to this country for study and upon return to their country are good will ambassadors. American students are also awarded Fellowships to foreign countries.

Mrs. Joseph H. Krusen presided and Dr. Ramsey introduced the speaker. Mrs. William H. Blake is co-chairman of the group. Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, is general program chairman and Mrs. John Hafer, chairman of the dinner committee.

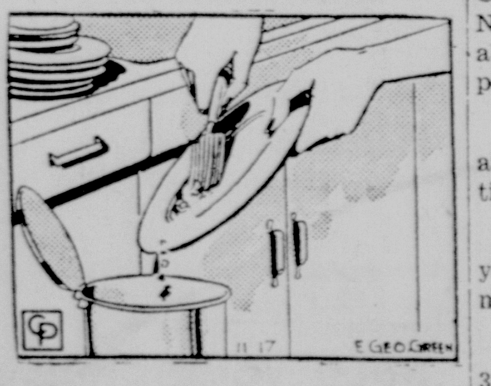
The autumn theme was carried out in the decorations with a harvest basket and bouquets of fall flowers adorning the tables. Covers were laid for more than 100, including 18 from the Keyser W. Va., club.

4-H Club Elects

Nancy McGill was elected president of the Winchester Road 4-H Girls Club at the meeting recently at the home of Edna Mae Strawser. Deanese Borror was named vice president; Patricia McGill, secretary; Dora Jean Shaffer, assistant; Nancy Lewis, treasurer; Virginia Jeffries, assistant; and Marjorie Lewis, publicity.

Installation of officers and a Christmas party will be held December 1 at 7:30 at the home of Deanese Borror. Jingle gifts are to be exchanged. Roll call was answered with naming favorite books. Miss Thelma Allin talked on projects and assisted the girls in selecting theirs. Edna Mae Strawser demonstrated folding napkins.

WIFE PRESERVERS



Always scrape and rinse dishes before washing them in the dishpan or mechanical dishwasher. Scrape burned or clinging particles of food from pots and pans first soaking in clear water, if necessary. The cleaner the dishwater, the better the job of washing.

flames, go to the cellar and lie close to the outside wall; if you don't have time, get away from windows and under any large piece of furniture. If the first warning is a blinding flash, fall flat and stay there for at least 10 seconds.

Important dos and don'ts, she said, are to keep at least one flashlight in the house in workable condition, preferably in the cellar, and not to use matches as gas mains may be broken and other fumes present in the atmosphere; keep the home free from unnecessary junk, especially in the attic; don't use the telephone to call for help, don't start rumors, or rush out to see what is going on; be careful of the food and water you consume (food in cans and ice box are not likely to be contaminated); turn on the radio for instructions; save first aid materials and bandages, as they are usable even though exposed to some radiation, and as soon as possible change our clothes and take a bath, paying particular attention to washing your hair.

Mrs. Bishop discussed the shelter angle of civil defense, urging a survey of the city to provide public shelters for those caught outside, with one per block. They should be chosen with regard to protection against flooding from ruptured water pipes, contain no inflammable material, have roofs or ceilings well supported by interior columns, have ample protection against broken, flying glass, have no objects which can be detached by shock, have doors designed to minimize danger of jamming, suitable lighting and auxiliary lighting, ventilation of equipment for two hours, sanitary provisions, drinking water available, and well marked for access and capacity. The shelter also should contain picks, shovels and crowbars for digging out.

Miss Delano reported the Red Cross, will begin classes in First Aid, Nurses Aide, Canteen, Shelter and all other groups as soon as enough persons for a class is enrolled.

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

TWO new names go up in lights! . . . The two brand-newest lady Representatives—Marguerite Church and Ruth Thompson. . . Of the 27 women who ran for Congress in the U. S., they're the only newcomers elected.

Marguerite Church the Capital already knows. . . In fact this column predicted last May she'd win. . . When her husband died, he had already been nominated on the Republican ticket and his name was on the ballot. . But the people of the 13th district of Illinois decided to add an "s" to Mr. and nominated his widow.

AUSTINE

The mother of three grown children, Mrs. Ralph Church, no church mouse, looks smart and is smart. . . Didn't hesitate to politely cross swords on one occasion with that brilliant verbal fencer, Clare Boothe Luce. . . Mrs. Luce scolded the Congressional wives at one of their own big luncheons, where she was speaker of the day. . . Clare told the ladies to get up off their girdles and get to work! . . . In so many words, their husbands were stupid and the women should use influence to make their men think harder and work harder

Listening to this the Congressional ladies bristled all the way up to their flowered hats. Mrs. Church rose to their defense. . Allowed as how the Congressional ladies were doing the best they could. . . But perhaps Mrs. Luce, judging from her record, had had more experience at getting the most out of men.

Yes, you'd have to get up early in the morning to outwit Representative Marguerite Church.

The Democrats had a lot of new feminine talent crowding the political stage. . . But every one of them lost out. The only other new face belongs to Ruth Thompson, an attractive Republican of Michigan.

Within the past few weeks the world lost the King of Song, the King of Sweden and the King of Wit—but who knows—we may have gained a couple of new political Queens!

In the weeks ahead there are important dates to mark—important, that is, to some people. . . What could be more important to Mrs. Barkley, for instance, than the 24th. . . It's the Veep's birthday!

The voters didn't give the birthday present she hoped for on the 25th to Helen Gahagan Douglas (50 years).

You can send a birthday telegram to Attorney General J. Howard McGrath on the 28th.

FROM PARIS (Hot off the Griddlevine): Friends of the Arthur Middleton Hills (he's the transportation executive who was chairman of the National Security Resources Board) whisper that she's in Paris on account of the whether—whether they'll mend or rend the marriage.

And news wildfires that George and Jane Abell will soon fly home to roost. . . Dapper George, whose family founded The Baltimore Sun, has finished his newspaper assignments in Europe. And Jane longs to head home. . . No wonder she wants to return to the scene of so many conquests. . . For years she charmed the Capital with those wide, green eyes and flaxen hair. . . Was nominated in her debutante days by a President "The Most Beautiful Girl Ever to Cross the Portals of the White House."

TO PARIS: Jean Pierre Benard, First Secretary of the French Embassy, another of the many diplomats who began their careers as newspaperman takes a quick trip next week.

WRIGHT'S TIE: Members of the Italian Embassy laughingly predict that Frank Lloyd Wright, father of modern architecture, may be the father of a new necktie style.

When he came to their Embassy to lunch the other day he wore a long, long blue ribbon under his collar, tied at the collar button in a trickly little knot.

Nevertheless, Italy considers Wright "The World's Greatest Modern Architect" and an Italian shipping firm will pay all expenses to take plaster reproductions of his buildings to Florence for a comprehensive exhibit of his life and work next May. . . Before that though Gimbel's store in Philly will show the exhibition.

A conversation monopolist, 81-year-old Wright often closes his eyes while talking. . . Has a mop of white hair and every November moves to Arizona in a staggeringly large automobile caravan, bag, baggage, dogs, cats and a staff of 70 people!

Slayer Of Wife, Lover Released

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP)—J. P. McRae, who shot to death his wife and her lover in a secluded summer cottage, was free tonight of any charge.

Coroner C. S. Green released the 34-year-old trucking firm head after his jury heard a brother—A. G. McRae—and two other witnesses tell of the shotgun slaying yesterday of City Safety Commissioner Richard D. Sutton, 39, and Mrs. McRae, 35 and socially prominent.

Judge Green said his jury would study the evidence and return a verdict in a week or 10 days.

The witnesses testified that McRae, aware of secret meetings of his wife with the city commissioner, entered the latter's lake-side cottage and caught them nude in bed together.

He had taken along an automatic shotgun. With it he blasted his wife's head from her shoulders and nearly severed Sutton's.

Almost immediately he suffered a heart attack. He was taken to jail, then to a hospital under guard. Later the guard was removed.

AA Founder Dies

AKRON, O., Nov. 16 (AP) — Dr. Robert Holbrook Smith, 71, one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous, died today at City Hospital after a long illness.

Rumored Brice May Become Fisheries Commission Head

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — The pulling and hauling within Maryland's hard-hit Democratic organization brought out these rumors today:

1. That Arthur H. Brice, now commissioner of motor vehicles, soon will become chairman of the State Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

2. That Robert B. Ennis will resign as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

3. That George P. Mahoney will be eased out of his new job as Democratic national committeeman

None of the principals would make any comment. Gov. Lane, perhaps the key man in all three situations, was away from the state.

Sources close to the Governor and to Brice indicated his transfer to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission is all set. Brice would replace David H. Wallace, the young conservation career man who has resigned to become director of the North American Oyster Institute.

The appointment of Brice would have the effect of assuring the Eastern Shoreman an important state job until the spring of 1955—until after the next gubernatorial campaign.

His term as motor vehicles commissioner expires next May, and it is a foregone conclusion that Theodore R. McKeldin, Republican governor-elect, will name a Republican for the job.

Hope Fades For Wife Of Insurance Co. Head

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—Searchers decided today that the 48-year-old wife of a nationally known insurance executive and her 39-year-old fishing companion drowned in the Atlantic.

Seamen and airmen found no sign of Mrs. Frederick H. Ecker, wife of the 83-year-old board chairman of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, or James Merrill Herd, Jr., head of a New York theatrical corporation.

Coast guardsmen found the small rowboat from which they and two friends were fishing yesterday when the craft capsized. The two companions reached shore. Searchers also found a life jacket Mrs. Ecker carried

Night Rider Fined

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP)—A ride on a large white horse through a residential area last night cost Jack Henderson, 21, a fine of $15 and costs today.

Henderson, a stable groom at a riding academy, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Police officers testified Henderson was intoxicated when he took the night ride.

Father Is Held In Child's Death

FRONT ROYAL, Va., Nov. 16 (AP) — A former federal employe was charged with murder today in the death of his four-year-old daughter, originally believed to have been killed in an auto accident along precipitous Skyline Drive.

FBI agents said tonight that Andrew Danton, 34, Washington, admitted in a statement that he beat his daughter to death, critically injured his wife and then drove his car down the steep mountainside.

Richard D Auerbach, in charge of the FBI office in Richmond, said Danton described the incident as "a comedy of errors" which went awry because of poor planning.

Rangers came upon the demolished car, lodged against a tree some 60 feet below the scenic drive atop the Blue Ridge mountains, yesterday. In it they found the body of the dead child, Lynn Frances Danton; her mother and father, both injured.

Mrs. Florence Danton, 33, remained unconscious in Front Royal Community hospital today. Danton, until recently a $9,000 a year employee of the Census Bureau, was removed from the hospital and taken by ambulance to the U. S. reformatory at Petersburg, Va.

Marshall College Instructor Killed

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Nov. 16 (AP) — Dr. George W. Howgate, head of the Marshall college English department, died at 8:45 p. m. tonight in a Bluefield hospital.

He died of severe head injuries received in an automobile accident in which Dr. J. Frank Bartlett, 48, arts and science dean of the college located at Huntington, suffered a fractured right leg and cuts.

Three Burn To Death In Groveton, Va., Fire

GROVETON, Va., Nov. 16 (AP)—At least three persons burned to death and a fourth was missing in a fire that destroyed a five-family frame apartment building today.

Bodies of two children and a woman were recovered from the ruins. They were too badly charred to be immediately identified.

Earlier Mrs. Raymond Harper and her three children, Elaine Rae, three; Patricia Lynn, one, and Brenda Irene, two months, were reported missing. Mrs. Harper's husband was at work three miles away in Alexandria when the fire started.

Cresaptown PTA Marks Anniversary

The Cresaptown PTA had Richard T. Rizer, assistant supervisor of public schools, as guest speaker at the 20th anniversary meeting Monday. Mr. Rizer, who was the first principal of the new school, spoke on "preparing the Elementary Child for High School." He also discussed the early history of the school.

Mrs. Marshall VanMeter conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Lester McGill and Mrs. Madeline Michael gave routine reports. Mrs. Samuel Parker announced she has 284 members and Mrs. Donald McGill reported she has sold 15 suscriptions to the PTA magazine. Mrs. Van Meter announced that the Christmas party is to be December 11.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Alton Walston and Mrs. Kenneth Lee had charge of the program. It consisted of a song, "My Hero and Love and Arithmetic" by Miss Lois Stine with Mrs. William Loar at the piano. Mrs. Edgar Hounshell gave the history of the school and PTA. Mrs. John Barncord reported on the PTA convention at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, last week. She said that among the 21 delegates from Allegany county Mrs. VanMeter Mrs. Lester McGill, Mrs. Donald McGill and Mrs. Robert Doty are from the Cresaptown association.

The theme was "Preparing Todays Child for Tomorrow's World." Her group attended all sessions for the three days. A banquet with 257 attending climaxed the convention. Mrs. Emil Smith, state president, presided; toastmaster was John Seidel, assistant state superintendent, for vocational education. The group was greeted by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., superintendent of schools and Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College, gave the address.

Attending the past president's meeting was Mrs. Hounshell, Herbert Heineman and Mrs. Brace Hutson. Displays were held by the chore class and library. Miss Betty Matese's room won the attendance award.

Don't look into your mirror to see how pretty you are. It's distinction that you should look for!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WHICH DO YOU strive to be, pretty or distinctive?

The Powers Girls all agree that to be called distinctive is a pretty compliment, but to be called pretty isn't very distinctive. That's why they choose being distinguished as their goal. It's the one quality above all others that turns a girl into an outstanding and admiringly remembered personality.

It takes work aplenty to attain such a goal. It means that your personality must be shined up, polished and presented to the world so each of its facets wins approbation.

To Gain Distinction

Do you have wonderful hair, a willowy figure, exciting coloring, an unusual voice, an infectious smile, appealing traits? Pick your best characteristics and learn to play them up for all they are worth. If your hair is worthy, have it dressed to show it off. If your figure is good, wear the clothes that accent it. Exploit your coloring. Make your words interesting, your humor ready and let your heart be outgiving.

But don't overdo it. If you do, you will defeat your purpose and find yourself stereotyped. Such examples are to be seen on every Main street — the girl who has turned herself into a sophisticated siren; a man-tailored executive; a baby doll; something nationally geographic, like a senorita.

You can't express your personality that way. You'll just be regarded as play acting, and badly, in trumped-up roles. Of course, every girl finds that she has a natural preference for certain things. Some girls are always drawn toward snap-brimmed hats, or blue, or ruffled collars, or black satin. Such preferences are not wrong in themselves, but only when they conflict or cancel your looks or real personality. In that event you should train yourself to like other styles or colors.

The secret of attaining distinction lies in reflecting the most natural, attractive you. When you succeed, you have a flattering identification tag that you alone can wear!

Local Resident Pays $76 For Parking Tickets

Police Require $2 In Each Case

At least one Cumberlander has paid heavily because of the Cumberland Police Department's campaign this week of issuing warrants to holders of unpaid parking tickets.

He is Frank Bennett, 211 Holland Street, who yesterday personally paid $72 for 36 parking tickets which had been issued to him between May and October and had previously gone unpaid. Usually, $1 is charged for each parking offense but the issuance of a warrant costs the offender another $1.

Besides the 36 tickets personally issued to him, Bennett paid an additional $4 for two other tickets given the Bennett Appliance Sales Company, 52 Bedford Street.

Before Bennett's action, Lieut. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the department's Traffic Bureau, announced that warrants had been issued to 100 holders of unpaid parking tickets who had failed to cooperate with police by paying the tags. Lilya reports that warrants also are being readied in some 125 other cases. In each offense $2 will be required instead of $1.

Two weeks ago Chief R. Emmett Flynn appealed to parking violators to post collateral for trial "within a reasonable time" after tickets were issued. Response was slow since only a handful of holders complied, so police switched to warrants.

Vile Language Hit

Records show that some violations date back as far as May. In the majority of cases, warning notices had been mailed to violators.

Work of distributing the warrants probably will go to officers on duty in cruiser cars and to patrolmen with regular beats, according to Lt. Lilya, who said some of the warrants were served Wednesday night.

Abusive language by motorists posting bond at headquarters will not be tolerated, police officials said, adding that "patrolmen are performing their duty by tagging illegal parkers in an effort to relieve traffic congestion."

Grantsville Man Given Jail Term

Robert Rugg, Grantsville, is serving a 60-day sentence in Somerset Pa., County Jail on a charge of assault and battery against Game Protector L. B. Welch.

Sentence was imposed Monday in Somerset after Welch said Rugg attacked and threatened him earlier this month near Confluence, Pa.

Rugg entered a plea of guilty and [illegible] sentence was handed down to [illegible] concurrently with a 104-day term imposed on a game law violation. Also serving 104 days in jail is Aaron Rugg, Grantsville, who was arrested at the same time.

Conference May Shed Light On Local Problems

Because a number of problems affecting Cumberland will be discussed at a Businessmen's Conference in Washington next Monday and Tuesday, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is planning to have at least three representatives at the sessions, Harold W. Smith, chamber manager, said last night.

A decision to send Cumberland representatives was made last night at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors at the office in the Liberty Trust building.

It also was announced last night that the first of the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon meetings, continuing until June, will be held Monday, December 11, at 12:15 p. m. at the YMCA. Traffic and parking will be the subject of the program, arranged by the civic improvement committee, Robert Little Ebert, chairman.

Traffic and parking, the effect of street parking and "traffic inflation" are among the topics that will be discussed at the two-day Washington conference, sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

George C. Smith, who was affiliated with the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce some 35 years ago when the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company came here, will lead one of the panel discussions, Smith said.

"Inflation in Traffic" is expected to be one of the most interesting discussions, Smith stated. This panel will note that the 1950 traffic volume is 7 per cent above 1949 and 27 per cent above 1941, the two previous high years.

All Cumberland citizens interested in attending next week's conference in Washington should contact Smith so that arrangement for attendance can be made.

BUILDS HIS OWN 'FLYING SAUCER'

Dick (right) tells pals model is aerodynamically plausible.

ENGINEERING GRADUATE Dick Stasinos of Inglewood, Cal., has built a scale model of his version of a "flying saucer." His craft which, he claims, is aerodynamically plausible, features a revolving outer disc which houses eight turbo-jet ports. The stationary center of the disc contains the pilot's cockpit. Two main jets would provide the push and jets on the outer disc would make it spin. (International)

Europe's "Toughest Army" Holds Hostile Soviets From Yugoslavia

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK, (AP) — A recent traveler to Yugoslavia says Marshal Tito has the "toughest force" of any on the continent now facing Russia and it would fight to the last man in event of a Soviet attack.

"For this reason, I doubt whether Russia will soon try to move in on Yugoslavia," says Julien Bryan, executive director of the International Film Foundation, who spent five weeks making a documentary movie there.

Bryan found the borders along Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria heavily guarded and the frontier along Albania and Greece manned relatively lightly.

"If the Russians do move in," he says, "they might be able to occupy the northeast quarter of Yugoslavia fairly early because that is a great flat plain and not easily defended.

"But the Yugoslavs would move back to the mountains and fight there, and they would fight long and hard. There are no better guerrilla fighters in the hills."

Bryan, a veteran world traveler, says he went to Yugoslavia somewhat skeptical of that country's break with the Cominform two years ago.

"But I found the hostility of the Yugoslavs to the Russians very genuine and very great," he says. "The Yugoslavs have been bitterly disillusioned. They feel Russia let them down even before the break in the Cominform by not delivering enough machines and other goods which had been promised.

"Now they hear the Russians calling them fascists while expressing admiration for Hungary, which everybody but the Germans was fighting only a few years ago. This makes the anti-Russian feeling in Yugoslavia even more intense."

While a secret police still operates under Tito, Bryan said he found personal freedom had greatly increased in Yugoslavia since the break with the Cominform.

"People there," he says, "feel free to talk now, to criticize their own government, to talk with foreigners, to listen to foreign broadcasts. Churshes are wide open. The window which draws the biggest crowds in Belgrade is the office of the U. S. Information Service."

Bryan says he was given "complete freedom" to travel through and photograph the country, except for military installations and concentration camps.

"Oh, yes," he says, "there are still concentration camps. All is not sweetness and light. I don't know how many people are still in the concentration camps but the point is I was able to talk with many people who once were in them but are now free."

Bryan believes the pro-American attitude developing in Yugoslavia in the last two years is not merely one of expediency, not motivated only "by a five-pound sack of coffee or a loaf of bread."

"Sure, the factor of expediency is important," he says, "but the Yugoslavs now feel a closer tie to

LOROX... AMERICA'S FAVORITE BLEACH AND HOUSEHOLD DISINFECTANT

FLORIDA is a nice place to go when it starts getting cool, but even if you can't go south you can enjoy some of Florida's fairest offerings in the form of the big juicy grapefruit now being shipped to almost every section of the country.

Grapefruit halves have a tang that makes them a wonderful breakfast fruit, and their bracing flavor makes them delicious, too, as salads or desserts. Here are four ways to serve your grapefruit halves—all of them a little different. Reading from the top is a first course half centered with a cranberry jelly star; then a salad bowl. In the foreground at the right is the famous broiled grapefruit, and at the left, another first course or dessert using grapes.

Everyone will love grapefruit if you make it easy to get the succulent fruit out of the shell. To properly prepare it, cut the fruit in half; remove core. Cut around each section, loosening fruit from membrane. Do not cut around entire outer edge of fruit. Here's how to do the four variations shown:

Broiled Grapefruit

Sprinkle grapefruit half with 1 tablespoon sugar and a dash of cinnamon, mace or nutmeg, if desired; dot with 1 teaspoon butter Place grapefruit on broiler rack 3 inches from heat. Broil slowly 15 to 20 minutes or until grapefruit is slightly brown and heated through. Grapefruit may also be baked in a moderately hot oven (400°F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Grapefruit with Grape Garnish

Slice seedless grapes in half. Arrange 7 or 8 halves in center of grapefruit to represent bunch of grapes, as illustrated in photograph.

Grapefruit with Cranberry Garnish

Cut slice of cranberry jelly with small star-shaped cookie cutter. Place cranberry star in center of grapefruit half.

Grapefruit Salad Bowl

Follow directions for preparing grapefruit halves. Remove sections from half; reserve. Cut out membrane remaining in shell to make "Salad Bowl". Combine grapefruit sections with diced celery and chicken, shrimp or tuna. Moisten with mayonnaise. Refill shells with salad and garnish with watercress.

Flavor Biscuits With Meat Or Cheese

Meat or cheese-flavored biscuits and muffins are a good flavor choice to accompany fall and winter vegetable plates or salad meals. These breads add important protein, B-vitamins and iron needed especially with fruit or vegetable entrees. Enriched bacon sticks are a tempting member of the biscuit family, thrifty and easy to make. For each cup of flour in a basic biscuit recipe, add 2 strips of cooked bacon broken into crisp bits. Add the bacon after shortening is cut into flour mixture and before adding milk. Instead of cutting round biscuits from the rolled out dough, use a floured knife to cut sticks 1x4 inches.

Corned Beef Hash In Tomatoes

1 16-oz. can corned beef hash; 4 large tomatoes; Salt to season; ¼ cup cheddar cheese.

Scoop out center of tomatoes. Combine tomato pulp with corned beef hash. Season if necessary. Stuff tomatoes with mixture. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. 4 servings.

- 2 medium onions, quartered
- ¼ cup butter or other fat
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- ¼ cup catsup
- 1½ cups hot water
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup water
- 1 package (1⅓ cups) pre-cooked rice
- 1½ cups water

AS PERT and stimulating as autumn sunshine is Waldorf salad molded in clear gelatine. The gelatine adds protein to this popular combination of apples, celery and nuts as well as maintaining the fresh look and flavor. The recipe will be found elsewhere on this page.

Buffet Supper Is Graced By Serving Gelatine Salad

Buffet suppers win friends and influence people by their charm in appearance. Providing such graciousness is this menu of jellied Waldorf salad, thin sandwiches and sliced smoked pork tenderloin. The gelatine salad and the meat may be readied hours ahead of meal time so that the hostess is free to be with her guests.

Jellied Waldorf Salad

1 envelope unflavored gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup hot water, ⅓ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup mild vinegar or lemon juice, ½ cup diced celery, 2 cups diced unpeeled tart apples, ¼ cup chopped pecans or walnuts.

Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve in hot water. Stir in sugar, salt and vinegar. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in celery, apples and nutmeats. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and serve with mayonnaise salad dressing. Garnish with small unpeeled apple slice.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Current Queries On Meat . . .

Q. To what temperature should lard be heated for deep fat frying doughnuts?

A. The lard should be heated to a temperature of 360° F.

Q. Should a roast be basted during cooking?

A. No., basting is not necessary. Meats roasted slowly are self basting and do not dry out.

Q. How is bouillon prepared?

A. By simmering beef or other meat in liquid to cover, seasoning, and then removing fat or other materials to clarify it.

Q. What is meant by "en brochette?"

A. This is French for "cooked on a skewer," and is an expression most often used when referring to meat and vegetable or fruit which are cooked in this manner.

Q. What is meant by pre-cooking?

A. To simmer for a short time preliminary to cooking by another method.

Choose Less Sought Cuts For Beef Loaf

A juicy meat loaf right out of the oven means good eating for the family. It can also be a budget choice for the homemaker if she selects the meat wisely.

Ground round is frequently requested by homemakers for a meat loaf, but according to home economist Reba Staggs, there are many less-demanded cuts of meat which are excellent ground for this purpose. For instance, the homemaker may choose chuck, shank, plate or flank for a beef loaf. The round steak is in demand for pot-roasts and other braised dishes, therefore, it is frequently higher in price than these cuts. The less-demanded cuts are equally as flavorsome.

All cuts of beef are made tender by grinding and may be cooked by the dry heat method — roasting. However, the temperature must be low for meat loaves as for other roasts. For a beef meat loaf keep the oven at a 300° F. temperature.

For a luscious dessert, thin a cup of marshmallow cream with two tablespoons of lemon juice, adding a little at a time. Fold in a cup of drained crushed pineapple and a cup of cream that's been stiffly beaten. Freeze in a refrigerator tray without stirring.

ADD a light touch to golden pumpkin by pairing it with unflavored gelatine and you'll end up with a fluffy jellied pumpkin custard to be topped with whipped cream and toasted coconut and served in dainty tarts. Look elsewhere on this page for the recipe.

Unflavored Gelatin Adds Light Touch To Pumpkin

Use unflavored gelatine to give lightness to pumpkin and you come up with a pumpkin chiffon dessert of spicy taste and velvety texture. The kind of gel-cookery which produces a fluffy custard is just the thing to capture the spicy flavor of the pumpkin mixture while adding a new airy touch. Topped with toasted coconut, this Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert is a real fall triumph.

Coconut Pumpkin Chiffon Dessert

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
2 eggs, separated
1 cup evaporated milk
1¼ cups mashed cooked pumpkin
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon each of salt, nutmeg and cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup shredded coconut, toasted
⅓ cup cream, whipped and sweetened

Soften gelatine in cold water. Put egg yolks in top of double boiler, add evaporated milk and beat until blended. Stir in pumpkin, ½ cup of the brown sugar, salt and spices. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; add remaining sugar gradually and continue beating. Fold pumpkin mixture into egg whites with ¾ cup of the toasted coconut. Pile into sherbet glasses, chill until firm. To serve, top with whipped cream and remaining coconut. Yield: 8 servings. To toast coconut, spread thinly in shallow pan. Place in moderate oven (350 degree F) and toast about 10 minutes, or until delicately browned. Stir occasionally to toast evenly. Cool before adding to pumpkin mixture.

Coffee Glazed Ham Slice

1 1-inch smoked ham slice, ¼ cup pineapple juice, 2 teaspoons Instant Coffee, ½ cup pure maple syrup.

Pour pineapple juice over coffee in small saucepan and stir until dissolved. Stir in maple syrup, blending well. Simmer over low heat 15 minutes. Remove rind and most of the fat from ham. Brown ham slice on both sides in heavy skillet. Pour glaze over ham. Cover and cook over low heat, basting frequently and turning occasionally, about 30 minutes. If desired, garnish with hot sliced pineapple rings. Drained sliced pineapple rings may be heated by cooking with ham during last 5 minutes.

Note: If recipe is doubled, glaze may be used for half ham, weighing 6 to 8 pounds.

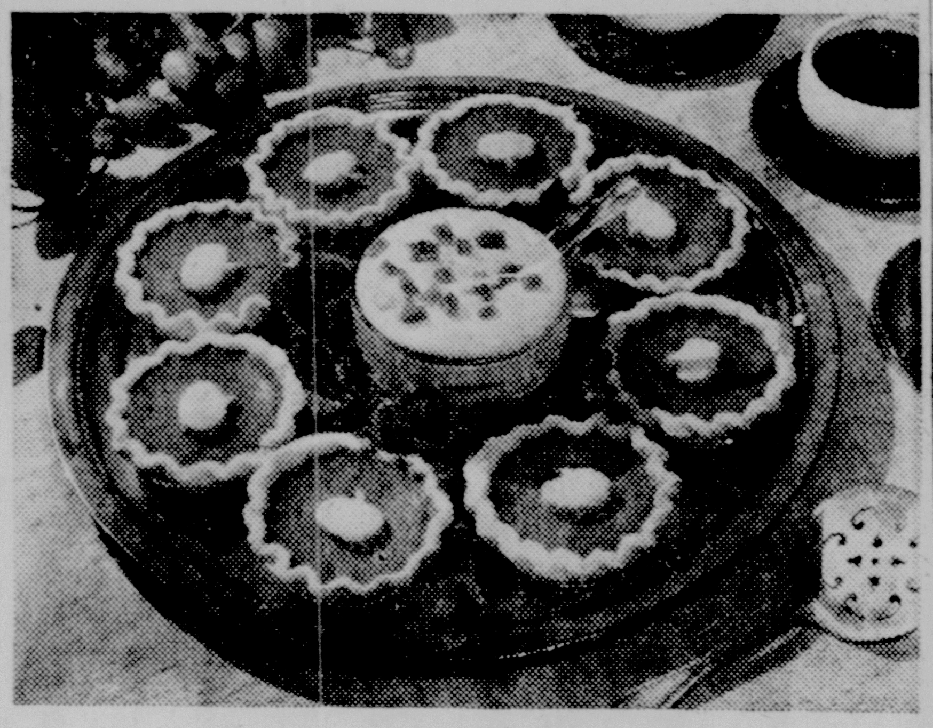
Pressure On In Kitchen

People talk about the increased pressure of modern living. Kitchenwise, too, the pressure is on. In this case it is to the homemaker's advantage. With pressure cooking she can turn out all the old favorite dishes in a fraction of the time grandma had to devote to them.

It is especially fun to go back to the old desserts now that the time-table is shortened. Steamed puddings are one kind of dessert that turn out fine when cooked under pressure. One version is made of mince meat and rice. Full-flavored mince meat, a year around treat, does a lot to enhance the pudding's flavor. Either whipped cream or a hard sauce can be the finishing touch.

Once confined to canning tasks, the pressure cooking now has a daily role in the kitchen. It shortens cooking time for vegetables and provides a faster way to moist-cook the less tender meat cuts.

A flank steak is a good example of a less tender cut of meat that responds to pressure cooking. Once again, mince meat turns an everyday dish into a specialty. For into the pocket of the flank steak goes a stuffing of mince meat and sweet potato. For further flavor appeal, the steak is cooked in pineapple juice. This can become your company-on-a-budget offering.



Five Minute Pastry

Pumpkin Tarts Are The Style This Season

Pie rates first as America's favorite dessert. With the rustle of fall leaves, football games and club meetings again in session, pumpkin pie is a flavor favorite for this season of the year.

Pumpkin tarts are ever so good for your fall entertaining and with the holiday season drawing nigh you'll want to give these tarts a "test run," then add the recipe to your tried and true file.

Put your best foot forward in making the tarts by starting with a tender, flaky pastry. The good crust is the secret to your tart's success and it's all so easy when you use lard and a simple recipe.

For 8 Tart Shells

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup lard
3½-4 tablespoons water

Sift flour with salt, add lard which has been kept at room temperature and cut into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Measure water direct from tap, sprinkle over the surface of the flour and mix gently. Lay on lightly floured pastry cloth and roll lightly from center to edges. Line tart pans with pastry and crimp edges.

Pumpkin Filling

⅔ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
[illegible] teaspoon salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups pumpkin, cooked and mashed
1½ cups milk.

Mix sugar, spices and salt. Add eggs and mix well. Blend in pumpkin and add milk. Pour into unbaked shells and bake at 425°F. until filling is set. Top tarts with miniature pumpkins made of the pastry and baked 10-12 minutes in a 425°F. oven. Makes 8 tarts. Serve with a bowl of whipped cream, studded with small pieces of candied fruit.

You Gotta Know Russian For Really Hep Living, Satellite Romanians Told

By G. K. HODENFIELD

VIENNA—(AP)—If you don't speak Russian you're not really living.

That's what Romanians are being told. The Communist newspapers of that iron curtain country are bombarding their readers with articles explaining the absolute necessity of learning Russian.

Only then, they are being told, can they "penetrate the entire depth and logic of Lenin's ideals, and the clarity and concision of Stalin's writings."

The newspaper Scanteia Tineretuli says, "One cannot conceive of an honest, peace-loving man, or a real lover of culture and science in the service of mankind, who does not strive to master the Russian language.

"Let us organize the greatest possible number of Russian courses, in factories and workshops, institutions and collective farms. Let us attend these courses regularly and work our hardest to learn Russian as quickly as possible. Let us bring our colleagues to these courses and make every youth eager and determined to overcome all difficulties in order to master Russian."

Viata Sindicala opened a similar plea with a quotation from V. M. Molotov, Premier Stalin's right hand man:

"There is no doubt that if Latin was the language of feudal society, French the language of capitalist society and English the language of imperialism, Russian is the language of our century, in which all roads lead to Communism."

The paper says Russian is now being studied by "progressives" all over the world.

Wel, it's been a lot of fun this time. That rustle in the northeast is Connecticut separating the ballots from the autumn leaves.

Merrill And Berg Make "The Goldbergs" For Radio And Television Followers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK — Fortunately for Gertrude Berg, Fanny Merrill is no clockwatcher. She has never let things like a private life interfere with "the Goldbergs."

Mrs. Merrill, short, gray-haired and friendly as a puppy, is the sturdy left arm of the tireless Mrs. Berg who has created a warm, funny, true-to-life Bronx family for more than two decades of radio and television. There's no adequate name for Fanny's salaried function, but she is referred to as "Shadow" by friends. It is very possible that, should Fanny decide to sample of joys of home and hearth, Gertrude would be forced into premature retirement and the nation would lose a heroine, Molly Goldberg.

But Fanny loves her life, even when it means a lengthy separation from her husband, a composer, and son Howard, a successful radio and television writer. Last summer she was off to California with Gertrude to make the Goldbergs, then on radio and TV, into a movie.

In a single day, Mrs. Merrill is by turns a sounding board (Mrs. Berg likes to "talk out" plots) amannuensis, personal shopper, casting director and chum. They've worked as a smooth team since 1929, but Fanny has never lost a jot of her vast admiration for the middle-aged, friendly and charming Mrs. Berg.

Mrs. Berg does all her script writing in long-hand, and has a secretary to convert it into the traditional form. Almost anything else is apt to land in Fanny's lap.

"One day Mrs. Berg told me to go out and by her bloomers." Mrs Merrill said, still with some shock in her voice. "I told her that it was all right for me to go along with her to Hattie Carnegie's and Bergdorf's for dresses and to help pick out other things, but a person should pick out her own underwear. But I had to get it for her."

The pair loves to sample restaurant fare.

"You'll find us wherever there's good food and lots of it," she said, gaily. "And every Sunday for the past 21 years we've sworn to go on a diet the next day. Puffed eggs is what does it each time," said Fanny, "we love them."

Gertrude, who has turned out close to 5,000 scripts on Goldberg adventures and produced a hit play, "Me and Molly," on them, has a quick temper.

"But once it's out, it's over," says Fanny, "I figure she's got to let off steam some way. I sometimes think it upsets me inside, because I'm not that way myself. I don't think I've ever lost my temper. When something really upsets me, I just walk out and don't come back."

She more or less stumbled into her present job. Both she and her son Howard were doing some acting in the old silent days, and then Howard naturally slid over into radio roles. Gertrude, about to launch The Goldbergs, did a mother part in a show with Howard. The two women met and took an instant liking to one another.

One day Fanny told Gertrude she thought it would be a good idea if she separated her fan mail into two piles, Christian and Jewish, sending the Jewish listeners Yom Kippur cards and the Christian, Christmas greetings. Soon Mrs. Merrill was handling all the fan mail of the successful program, and then slid into other jobs when they popped up.

She has been doing the casting for the Goldberg's for years—subject to a final okay from Gertrude.

"I've been with the show so long I get all mixed up on things," she said. "Sometimes I can't remember whether things happened to the Goldbergs, to Mrs. Berg's family or to my own family."

Gertrude, who has made a reputation and a fortune depicting family life in the Bronx, actually is a native of Delaware County, upstate, where her family ran a hotel. Fanny, nee Goldberg—"strictly a coincidence," comes from the borough of the Yankee Stadium.

After all the years, Fanny still thinks Gertrude Berg is just about the finest woman alive. The feeling is mutual. Fanny thinks they get along well because they are both tolerant.

"After all, we've been repeating the same stories to each other for 21 years," she confessed, "and we both like the same old stories over again. Anyway, we listen politely."

Election Meeting Planned

Plans for the annual election of Celanese Locali 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO, will be discussed at membership meeting Tuesday, November 21. Action on the election was slated Wednesday night but no quarum was present, according to Earl L. Snyder, president.

Gonder Will Ask Recount

Bernard I. Gonder, Oakland resident who was defeated by one vote in the November 7 election as the Democratic candidate for the State Senate from Garrett County, will challenge the results and ask for a recount.

Gonder was nosed out by the incumbent Republican, Senator Neil C. Fraley. The official count was 3,080 for Fraley to Gonder's 3,079.

The State Senate will receive Gonder's petition in the January session and will act on it, setting the place and conditions of the recount.

Gonder said: "After the unofficial tabulation showed that I had lost by 21 votes I made up my mind not to ask for a recount. However, when the official tally had reduced my opponent's lead to only one vote, I was urged by many of my friends and supporters, not only in Garrett county but throughout the state, to challenge the count. I did not feel that I could ignore their request, especially when reports of election irregularities began to reach me, I decided to go into the matter as fully as possible.

"Of course I do not suspect any deliberate attempt to change the vote, but I do have evidence that certain irregularities occurred in the marking and counting of the ballots which could alter the result."

Hearings will be arranged and persons having knowledge of discrepancies in counting or marking of ballots will have an opportunity to present their statements.

Items Donated

About 1,000 pounds of food and clothing were donated here this week to the Church World Service Center, New Windsor, for overseas relief use.

Next collection will be made the second Tuesday in February.

Industrial Plan Outlined To Local Committee

$300,000 Subscription Suggested By Advisor

A three-year plan for this area costing $300,000 was outlined by a spokesman for Richardson Wood and Company, New York industrial consultants, Wednesday night before three industrial development groups and city and county officials.

Attending the session in the office of the Department of Employment Security were representatives of the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Company, Inc.; the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee and the Steering Committee for Economic Development.

Francis A. Kenney, chairman of the county industrial promotion committee, said that James M Vacary, public opinion researcher for Richardson Wood, proposed a three-year plan entailing the public subscription of $300,000.

$200,000 For Capital

Of this sum, $100,000 would be for administrative and operating expenses. The $200,000 would be kept on hand for equity capital purposes, Kenney said.

Richardson Wood, under the plan outlined by Vacary, will furnish the same service it has given under its six-month contract with the county groups.

Woods contract is up in February, 1951, Kenney pointed out, and the three industrial promotion groups will be forced to take some action at that time towards obtaining an agent in New York to keep Cumberland and Allegany county in line for factory possibilities.

Kenney said Richardson Wood, in its present contract, has participated in the Berkowitz Pajama Company expansion financing at Frostburg.

The firm also has obtained about 25 leads for industries seeking to locate plants. Of these, Kenney stated, 11 are still in the active stage, or, in other words, are being investigated.

Current Cost $10,000

The present contract for $10,000 covers six months. The city and county each contributed $5,000 to finance it.

Kenney stated that the group primarily interested in the new proposal is the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Company, Inc., which has Benjamin M. Kamens as president.

Of the three county agencies, this one is underwritten and deals with the financial end of the industrial promotion setup here.

Kamens was present last night in behalf of his group. Others attending were Kenney, David Kauffman, chairman of the steering committee; Harold W. Smith, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce; County Commissioners James Holmes and William H. Lemmert, and Mayor Thomas S. Post, Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder; City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey, and representatives of organized labor.

Arthritis Fund Drive Planned

Plans are progressing for a county branch of the Maryland Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism National Foundation to conduct a fund drive, according to William C. Walsh, local attorney and member of the state group's board of directors.

The Maryland Chapter is headed by Howard Bruce, honorary chairman; Mrs. W. Wallace Lanahan, honorary vice chairman; Clarence W. Miles, president, and Walter N. Kirkman, secretary. All are of Baltimore.

A five-point program of service to the people of Maryland has been developed for application in this state according to Mr. Miles. It is:

1. Providing funds to aid in the organization and development of new arthritis clinics throughout Maryland.
2. Providing funds for the procurement of the newer forms of treatment of patients worthy of assistance.
3. Providing funds for research in arthritis and rheumatism.
4. Providing funds for home nursing service.
5. Providing funds to aid in the development of physical medicine, for the treatment and rehabilitation of patients suffering from arthritis and rheumatism.

To implement this program, clinical fellowships will be set up for training doctors, and a program of education for the general public will be conducted.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .
As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.
If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

New Fire Truck Due In City By Next Week

Truck To Be Used By West Side Station

Commissioner Long and Assistant Chief R. Paul Reid left last night for New York to inspect the newest pumper for the Cumberland Fire Department which is to arrive in the city next week, according to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

The truck, constructed by the Mack Company at its Long Island factory, will probably leave the plant Monday for delivery at Baltimore.

The commissioner said Assistant Chiefs William V. Linder and Reid and two fire company chauffeurs will meet the truck in Baltimore and drive it here.

The truck has a 750-gallon-per-minute centrifugal pump, capable of 150 pounds pressure, equipped with a fog nozzle attachment, one of the latest developments in fire fighting. The fog does not cause the damage that a direct stream of water does.

The vehicle has a 100-gallon booster tank and will carry 1,200 feet of 2½-inch hose; 350 feet of 1½-inch hose, and 150 feet of ¾-inch booster hose.

This truck will be placed in operation at the West Side Fire Station. The old pumper will be kept for Cumberland's second line of fire defense, Long pointed out. This will result in a higher underwriters rating, officials say.

The commissioner also said that several subjects were covered in his recent meeting with the supervisory officers of the fire department.

Long reported that the training program will be stepped up. All practice sessions will be held in front of Central Fire Station in City Hall plaza.

Assistant Chief Reid reported that the inspection department has already visited several public buildings, including the two hospitals; several schools and stores.

Inspectors are firemen drawn from the ranks, Long said. This serves two purposes, he explained, one to make the men familiar with the interiors of public buildings, gaining knowledge of their layouts for use in case of fire, and second, to acquaint them with the causes of fire in order to further fire prevention.

Long said the inspection department has been instructed to be particularly alert as to the fuses in the electric switch boxes noting to see whether they have a higher ampere fuse, thereby overloading the wiring.

The commissioner said that the department is gradually repairing the alarm system. He added that much badly damaged wire has been replaced.

Troopers Given Shooting Awards At Inspection

Acclaimed experts were Sgt. Harry Holsinger and Troopers John F. Browning, George E. Coddington, A. M. Spioch, Paul T. Long and Charles DeWitt.

In pistol tests held last May Trooper Browning made 286 out of 300, shooting a .38 caliber special revolver while firing the Army "L" course. In 1949 he led the field again with 291 points. He was all-state high scorer the previous year.

Sharpshooters included Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander at LaVale, who is away on special duty, and Troopers Glen D. Folk, Blair J. Buckel and Timothy M. Gilmore. Trooper Milton G. Hart was awarded the marksman's medal.

Marksmen must make 210 of a possible 300. Other ratings are sharpshooter, 240, and experts, 255.

Assisting Col. Jarman with the inspection were Major Buxton Ridgeley, executive officer; Captain W. H. Weber, field force commander; Captain G. E. Davidson, chief of the Identification and Investigation Bureau; Captain Charles W. Magaha, commander of Troop B in Western Maryland; Captain Andrew T. Connor, administrative officer, and Captain Louis Bloom communications officer.

The officials checked personnel records of the office, the communication setup, housing and food facilities and all equipment.

Romanian Doctor Castigated For Using U. S. Drugs

VIENNA—(AP)—A Bucharest physician recently prescribed American drugs for two of his patients and immediately was castigated by Romania's Communist government.

Among other things, the doctor was described as: "A submissive servant of the imperialists," "a tool of inveterate reactionaries," "a man without professional honor," a worshipper of American specialities."

The doctor also was accused of a glaring lack of "Stalinist self-criticism."

All this because he prescribed 4,000 tablets of glutamic acid and three bottles of aureomycin made by an American firm (Parke and Davis) for a father and his son. The father has syphilis and hemorrhoids, the son has advanced cerebral anemia and syphilis.

Monitorul Sanitar, the official publication of the Romanian Ministry of Health, identified the offender as Dr. Stefan M. Radulescu of the Dragasani Hospital, and devoted more than 600 words to an editorial pointing out Dr. Radulescu's "errors."

After asking rhetorically where Dr. Radulescu heard about these American "wonder drugs," the editorial said they aren't necessary in the Romanian peoples democracy.

"Thousands and thousands of people are treated in this country with very good results by using scientific methods and local drugs.

"Where is Dr. Radulescu's respect for his medical knowledge, for his long work in the university? Who can trust a doctor who consents to become a tool of the inveterate reactionaries?

"Dr. Radulescu excuses himself, says that he does not know, that he did not realize. Far from admitting his mistakes, seriously analyzing them and drawing conclusions, he pretends that all this happened 'unconsciously,' due to carelessness.

"He is not absent minded, but purely and simply cosmopolitan, a worshipper of American specialities, nicely packed in multicolored boxes. He has been dazed by the cosmopolitan poison, which had made him lose his honor x x x

"The bourgeoisie have taught Dr. Radulescu to be a submissive servant of the imperialists, and he does not understand that all this is not compatible with the activity of a doctor in the Romanian peoples democracy."

Hoey Will Address Playground Group

City Recreation Director Edmund F. Hoey will outline his winter and summer program at the next meeting of the City Playground Association December 7.

At a meeting Wednesday night at the North End Playground field house, it was proposed that the association sponsor more city-wide events such as dances, festivals and carnivals, instead of various playgrounds duplicating those activities. This will be discussed further at the December meeting.

Arabian Prince Likes Low Prices At Home, Curves Of U. S. Actresses

WASHINGTON (INS) — Prince Fahad Al-Sakh of Kuwaton, Arabia, likes the low cost of living in his home country but also the curves of United States movie actresses.

Interviewed at his suite in the rambling Wardman Park hotel after a tour of the U. S., the Prince reported that, in his oil rich land, cigarets are four and one-half cents a pack. Rent for a five-room house is about two dollars a month.

He stopped one reporter who thought he might like to move there by saying that there is no price on whisky because none is drunk there.

The Prince has been visiting the nations leading industrial and resort centers, wearing his national costume. He said he likes the cleanliness of Washington but the fun of New York.

At home, he said, he has all the modern conveniences excepting television and would have that if there were a broadcasting station nearby.

A reporter asked what he thought of American women. He replied: "they are like all women."

Another asked whether he liked the curves of the motion picture stars. He replied "why not!" However, he rejected an invitation to meet some of them at a reception later. Reason? Previous engagement.

Educated in the American University of Beyruth, Syria, the Prince praised highly the work of American missionaries in the Near East. He noted that their institutions treated the poor for nothing.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A man who had been a book salesman for twenty years decided there was more money in selling vacuum cleaners, and secured the local agency for a well-known brand. His very first prospect was a skeptical housewife who asked, "Are you sure that contraption will gather up every single bit of dirt?" "Lady," said the salesman earnestly, "I ran this cleaner lightly over a copy of Lady Chatterley's Lover yesterday, and when I was finished, it was Louise Alcott's Little Women!"

John O'Connell reports that Author Eric Hodgins finds writing a monumental chore. When he finished "Blanding's Way," for instance, his almost-new typewriter was in need of extensive repairs. The man who had sold him the machine said, "We get back twenty-year-old typewriters that aren't half as beat up as this." Hodgins reported later, "I had to ask him to repeat that statement. The way I feel, I was sure he said eighty-year-old authors."

California Boy Has Life Story With Never Ending Adventure

AP Newsfeatures

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—This is the story of four years of a boy's life. It has no ending, as you will see.

Written four years ago, the ending would have seemed inevitably to be death; two years ago, prison or at best a mental institution. Now the ending is for you to guess, and the boy, who is only 14, to live.

The story of Ted Johnson (and that isn't his real name; it's not important) is told in articles in the Santa Barbara News-Press. They began four years ago:

July 17, 1946—"Severely burned when a blow torch with which he was playing exploded, Ted Johnson, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Johnson, was reported in critical condition today . . . Fire Chief C. L. Tenney said the lad found the blowtorch in the rear of a waterfront building. The flames set fire to the structure and the boy ran screaming to the ocean where he plunged into the surf in an effort to halt the pain.

"Attending physicians said Ted will be lucky if he recovers. Three fourths of his body is covered with first degree burns."

Oct. 9, 1946—"A plea for A-type blood donors to aid a 10-year-old boy severely burned by a blowtorch July 17 was issued today by his parents . . ."

Nov. 26, 1946—"Wanted: a place to live. Remember the Johnson boy who was dangerously burned by a blowtorch?

"Ted is just beginning to take a few steps on his reconditioned legs. The hospital says he is ready to go home—but his family's apartment is not large enough to hold a person needing medical care."

Oct. 26, 1947—"Police investigating the conduct of an 11-year-old boy suspected of arson took testimony from eight persons in his neighborhood today.

"These persons said the boy threw lighted matches on porches, set a haystack ablaze and set lighted candles on their window sills. . ."

April 9, 1948—"An 11-year-old boy—almost, but not quite, like any other kid in Santa Barbara—is in Juvenile Hall today because yesterday he tried to wreck the Southern Pacific Daylight.

"If you saw him and talked to him you would like him. And you would think he was just like the boy across the street—until you noticed that one side of his face is scarred by burns."

At this point the probation department of juvenile court took over the problem of Ted Johnson, grossly scarred and crippled, a fire bug and would-be train wrecker.

April 20, 1948—"The 11-year-old boy who set fires in buildings at Hoff Heights and made two attempts to wreck railroad trains will be sent to Los Angeles for plastic surgery . . ."

The operation improved Ted's looks and helped his crippled right arm, but mentally he was far from cured. At Juvenile Hall he continued to play with fire. He had to be carefully watched. After six months doctors recommended that he be sent where he could have home-like care. Ted went to the Optimist's Boys Home in Los Angeles.

Eighteen months later, when he was released to his mother and stepfather, the home reported his adjustment was excellent. At first a "Frankenstein monster," Ted gradually made friends and developed a cooperative attitude. He especially liked games in which masks were used—they covered his facial scars. True, he was still very much interested in fires, but he hadn't started any.

Ted has been home three months now. He's starting life anew in Bakersfield, Calif., where his family has moved. He's had a couple of operations since he arrived which have made his crippled arm and leg more limber. He'll have more, including plastic surgery, doctors say.

He is still a ward of the local court. They'll keep a close watch over him for the next few years. They hope Ted's story will have a happy ending. It's up to him.

New Trial Has Been Granted To Walburn

A new trial has been granted to James C. Walburn, former Martinsburg, W. Va., man found guilty last March in Garrett County Circuit Court for assault with intent to kill his infant son.

Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., granted the motion for action in the March term of court at Oakland.

Walburn is serving an eight-year term in the Maryland Penitentiary. He is represented by two Oakland attorneys, Walter W. Dawson and S. R. Pagenhardt.

The former insurance firm investigator was arrested last winter after his child was brought to a Martinsburg hospital in an unconscious condition as a result of a beating.

The alleged assault occurred in a Deep Creek Lake cabin where Walburn, his wife and child were staying while he was working in the McHenry section.

Reports Given At Westernport Meeting

Keyser Clubmen Urged To Strive For Americanism

Morgantown Man Seeks Action Now

KEYSER, W. Va.—Homer Hoskins, Morgantown, former director of the Geological Survey in West Virginia, and governor elect of the West Virginia District of Kiwanis Clubs, told Keyser business and professional men Thursday, that "we, as moving parts of Americanism, have a job to do in protecting our freedoms against those who would destroy all for which America stands."

The speaker was an honored guest at the annual Rotarian luncheon to members of the three service clubs of Keyser, the Rotarian, Lions and Kiwanis groups. The luncheon, served in the Odd Fellows Temple, North Mineral Street, was attended by 150 service club members and guests, including two senior students at Keyser High School.

Hoskins made reference to the alleged encroachments into various departments of our federal government of individuals and groups whose aims are not for Americanism but for disturbance of the customary ways of American life in government. "They are threatening the very existence of our government," he said.

"A few years ago it was the fifth column of Hitler's form of government and now it is Communism. Communist infiltration in America is dangerous to all of us," he emphasized.

"The service clubs, Rotarians Kiwanis and Lions, do not play in politics as organizations but we must be awakened to the present dangers and work for elimination of the threat in every way," he continued. "Our members are alerted to the danger, but we must work with all the power we can muster against those who would destroy the freedoms we enjoy.

Communists and Communism cannot stand up against exposure if the light of intelligence is turned on brightly enough," Hoskin declared.

In concluding his address, Mr. Hoskins said:

"Fellows, I am convinced more than ever that we must personally put more of our religion into our daily lives; that we owe it to ourselves and to our town, state and nation to be more aggressive citizens; alert to the dangers confronting us, and to all we can to overcome them—now! Tomorrow may be too late.

"Let me end on a quotation from a news release just received from the editorial department of the Kiwanis Magazine; 'Beneath America's wonderful material civilization is a solid foundation of religious faith. Without this faith we could not have reached our heights, and unless our all-important spiritual foundation is nourished through appreciation, America cannot maintain its spiritual strength.'"

The luncheon meeting was opened by Chester J. Compton, president of the Rotary Club, who welcomed the guests. Rotarians introdued their non-member guests and visitors from out of town were introduced. Dr. Thomas Bess, past district president of Rotary, introduced Mr. Hoskins, who had come from Morgantown to appear at the luncheon meeting. In his short talk, Dr. Bess welcomed the Kiwanians, the youngest of the three service clubs into the service family locally, adding that they have a part to play in the general community service.

The presidents of the three local services sat at the speaker's table. In addition to Rotary's President Compton, there were Harry R. Taylor, president of the Lions, and James Handlan, president of the Kiwanis Club.

Grand Coulee Will Start Filling Up In Few Months

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

COULEE DAM, Wash.—(AP)—In a few months, for the first time in 50,000 years, the huge Grand Coulee canyon, a dried-up course of the Columbia river, will start filling with water.

The canyon will hold a lake 27 miles long, two to five miles wide, and up to 90 feet deep—the start for irrigating in the Big Bend country of Washington, 85 miles by 65, with a goal of 14,000 families where now there isn't much but crumpled lava rock and sage brush.

This project is an example of the curious and unpredictable events coming out of science. The idea started more than half a century ago. It was then visioned as diverting part of the Columbia River into the Grand Coulee, a thousand foot high walled canyon the Columbia cut when glaciers dammed it in the last ice age. The river now flows hundreds of feet lower past this canyon mouth floor.

Science figured a way to do the irrigation, not by diversion higher upriver, but building the present dam, where by-product electric power will pump Columbia water up to a level some 600 feet above the old river bed and into the canyon.

The dam's top is a two-lane high-has started, has changed the industrial economy of the entire northwestern United States. As the world's largest electric power plant, and part of a five-state electric network pool, the dam has brought in basic industries, including aluminum and caustic soda. It brought atomic energy in the form of plutonium made by the huge Hanford engineer works lying near the southern border of the irrigation district. It speeded airplane and shipbuilding.

The dam's top is a two-lane Highway, nearly a mile long, with a new lighting scheme. All light comes from electric lamps concealed inside hollow handrails guarding the walks at the highway sides.

You are 370 feet above the river, about twice as high as Niagara Falls. Elevators take you down inside the dam. The floor numbering is upside down. With first floor at the top. But you don't call by floors. You say 1230 floor please,—or 1190—your floor's elevation above sea level.

You enter eight-and-a-half miles of inspection corridors. And when you stand at the level of the water on the down-side of the dam, there is more concrete below your feet than forms all the great Hoover dam across the Colorado river, which is itself one of the world's big ones. That is, Hoover's total concrete wouldn't even rise above the Columbia water, if spread as in the base of this dam.

Result of the election is pretty much like a fellow looking at his grapefruit in the morning. This time he's sure they didn't keep the bigger half in the kitchen.

WEARY after one of the toughest campaigns in New York history, Governor and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey are all smiles as they pose for the photographers under swaying palm trees in Miami Beach, Fla. Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, who was defeated in the race for the U. S. Senate, is acting governor of the Empire State. (International)

Recreation Study Plan Faces Delay

Temporary delay faces a proposal of the State Planning Commission to make a full-scale study, costing about $10,000, of the recreational possibilities of Western Maryland.

The State Board of Public Works agreed at a meeting in Baltimore that it would not act on any more money questions without prior consultation with Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin.

McKeldin will serve on the board after his inauguration January 10.

The Senate is divided as evenly as hinges in a door factory. Every day the Democratic whip will call the roll to make sure his slender majority hasn't slipped through its collar.

School Boys Asked To Help In Parade

Senior high school boys are being sought to help in handling the giant inflated figures in the balloon parade here November 27 which will open the Christmas season.

About 200 boys are needed, according to City Recreation Director Edmund F. Hoey, chairman of the personnel committee for the parade.

Youth Charged With Assault In Shooting

BEDFORD, Pa. — After his capture by police following a running gun battle, John Eddy, 18, was charged with assault with intent to kill.

The Decatur (Ill.) resident was arraigned formally before Justice of the Peace H. Cyril Bingham Bedford. He waived preliminary hearing and was taken back to jail for court action in default of $3,500 bail.

Eddy had been lodged in Bedford county jail after his capture. He was charged with violation of the Uniform Firearms Act and hit-and-run.

The youth, AWOL from the Army, wrecked a stolen car he was driving at the intersection of East Pitt Street and Route 220 here. He fled from the scene and later exchanged shots with pursuing officers.

Pounded by Fort Hill, 39-6, and belted by Allegany, 54-19, the gridders of Keyser High School will make their third attempt to whip a Cumberland team when they lower the curtain on their 1950 season tonight at the local stadium against LaSalle High School's winless eleven.

LaSalle was crushed by Fort Hill, 46-6, but surprised in holding AHS to a 13-0 score.

Tonight's battle at 8 o'clock marks the first meeting of Coach Frederick "Tack" Clark's eleven and the Explorers since 1947 when the West Virginians won for the 8th time by the score of 6-0. In the series that started in 1930, LaSalle has emerged triumphant six times and one game ended in a scoreless tie.

Keyser goes into its 11th and final tilt with a record of two wins and eight defeats. Coach Phil Carolan's aggregation will close its season by playing Beall High on Thanksgiving Day in Frostburg.

DRAFTED BY BUCS—Branch Rickey represented the Pittsburgh Pirates at yesterday's major league session in Cincinnati and drafted George Metkovich, above, of Oakland, Calif., former major leaguer who hit 24 home runs and batted .316 in the Pacific Coast League. Metkovich formerly played with the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox.

Graham To Fight Gavilan Tonight

Welters To Tangle In New York Ring

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — With Sugar Ray Robinson an ocean width away, Billy Graham and Kid Gavilan fight tomorrow night for New York ranking as No. 1 welter contender.

Since there is a chance Robinson never will get around to fighting as a welter again, this could be a most important bout. Robinson wants his promised middleweight title shot at Jake LaMotta in February.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, will name the winner of this 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden as the leading welter contender. Abe Greene, NBA commissioner, dissents. Charlie Fusari is his candidate.

The result probably will be an involved series of eliminations if Robinson ever gives up his championship.

Majors Draft 25 From Minors For $239,500

Eleven Saw Previous Service In Big Show

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP) — Major league teams, hoping to plug gaping holes in their 1951 lineups, picked up 25 minor loop players today in the annual draft at a cost of $239,500.

Eleven of the 25 have seen previous major league service, and the average age of the draftees — around 26 years — is the highest ever in the annual talent grab from the bush loops.

A dozen pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and a pair of outfielders were elevated to the big time.

The 16 big league clubs have until midnight Friday to post more claims for players by telegraph, and if any come in with more selections to Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the total may soar far above the 1949 figure of 21 draftees, for whom $192,500 was paid.

The Triple-A clubs, who may be excused from the draft next year, were raided for 22 of the 25 players, the American Association giving up nine, the Pacific Coast seven, and the International League six. Each cost the major loopers $10,000.

11 Played In Majors

In picking up 11 former major leaguers, the bigwig moguls evidently were attempting to grab tested talent to fill holes which might be made by present participants going into the military service, rather than gamble on minor league kids who have never shown under the big top.

The Kansas City farm of the New York Yankees was the big loser in the draft, three players being picked off the eighth place club of the American Association.

Pittsburgh picked up first baseman Richard Dale Long, the bonus player shifted to Kansas City after batting .286 as a first baseman for Binghamton last season; Jack Cusick, shortstop, moved to Kansas City after batting .234 for Houston and Beaumont, going to the Chicago Cubs, and bonus pitcher Paul Hinrichs being claimed by the Boston Americans after winning six and losing five for the Blues last season.

Bucs Get Metkovich

Today's draft marked the first since 1946 that a pitcher was not the first choice. Branch Rickey, making the opening selection as representative of the last place Pittsburgh Pirates of the National loop, put his finger on George Metkovich of Oakland, Calif., former big league outfielder who hit 24 home runs and batted .316 for the Pacific Coast League club. Metkovich batted in 144 runs on his 233 hits in 184 games, and amassed 34 doubles and eight triples.

Three National League clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants, and the Brooklyn Dodgers, did not make any draft selections. The American loop made 16 selections, including nine pitchers, and the National League drafted nine players.

Harry Dorish, who won four and lost nine for the St. Louis Browns last year, had one of the shortest minor league careers on record.

Chisox Land Dorish

Less than 48 hours before the draft was made he was shifted to the Toronto club of the International loop, but the Chicago White Sox picked him up as their No. 4 draft choice.

The Chicago clubs led the list in picking up talent, the American League White Sox taking four players and the National League clubs getting three. Washington also took three, reaching down into the Sally and Tri-State loops for a pitcher and catcher — the pitcher, Joe E. Hazle, having won eight and lost 12 for Greenville last year.

Colts Want Bobby • • • Small May Get Post

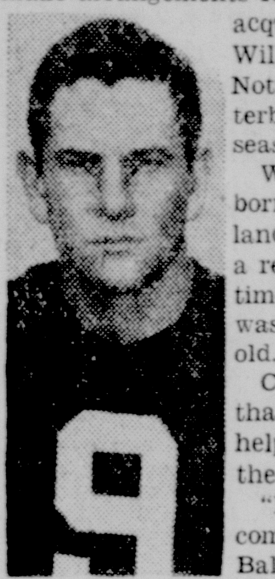
By C. V. BURNS

Clem Crowe, coach of the luckless Baltimore Colts, believes the National Football League should make arrangements for the Colts to acquire Bobby Williams, present Notre Dame quarterback, for next season.



Bob Williams

Williams was born in Cumberland and has been a resident of Baltimore since he was three years old.

Crowe feels that Bobby would help the club and the league.

"It only makes common sense for Baltimore to get Williams, whether we have the first draft choice or bonus pick or not," Crowe declared.

About one-third of the participants are negroes and most are from out-of-town. In the five shows held here this year there were 39 bouts and 78 participants. Twenty-five were negroes and 53 were white boxers.

Back in 1934 when the local K of C. and the Devon Club of Luke were staging amateur shows not a single negro boxer was listed among the 40 mittmen of the tri-state area. Bill Niland topped the boxers that year with a 15-3 record.

In 1935 the only negroes on the list of 60 boys were Frankie Freeman, Luke, and Francis Togan, Frostburg. Robert "Jiggs" McKnight led the hit parade with 12 wins and no defeats.

Frank Small, Jr., is reported to be headed for the post of chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission and the appointment will be made after Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin takes office.

Small is the lone Republican now on the commission and before the election he is reported to have told McKeldin he would be available if needed.

Two appointments will fall due during McKeldin's term. Wilbur R. Dulin will complete his tenure next year. The chairman's office, currently held by H. Courtnay Jenifer, will expire in 1953.

Chairman Jenifer is a Democrat and was a supporter of Lane's reelection.

Small favors a plan to have the state give up its half of the mutuel breakage—that amounts to $100,000 a year—to the tracks so the operators could keep purses on a suitable level.

Various horsemen's organizations want the receiving barn abolished as trainers claim many of the thoroughbreds "go to pieces" when locked up in the receiving barn for two hours prior to racing.

Small believes the tracks could save a lot of money and put it to better use for the horsemen should they be permitted to do away with the receiving barn and pre-race saliva tests. He is convinced prerace precautions taken in Maryland are not worth their cost.

Cincinnati Rules Ezzard Charles Must Shave Off Mustache For Bout

Must Be Clean Shaven For Barone Go Nov. 28

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ezzard Charles, world's heavyweight boxing champion, must shave off his mustache before fighting Nick Barone of Syracuse, N. Y., in a title bout here Nov. 28.

The city boxing commission so ruled today. Charles and the boys who boss the sport here have been fussing over the question for days. Charles is real proud of the thing.

"This rule applies not only to the champion, but to all boxers who fight in Cincinnati rings," Paul Cain, commission chairman, announced "The rules say the fighter must be clean shaven, and the examining physician for the commission has recommended that clean shaven means without any hirsute adornment whatsoever."

ILLINOIS Vs. OHIO STATE—These midwestern giants clash in the most important game of the year. It not only decides the Big Ten champ, but also determines if Illinois is to meet California in the Rose Bowl Classic. This all-time thriller should go to the Illini on Johnny Karras' All-American performance.

The Sooners finally snapped out of the doldrums by spicing their attack with a little air traveling. They are now beginning to look more like themselves. Jockey Escapes Serious Injury

Frank Bone Falls In Pimlico Race

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Jockey Frank Bone, third leading rider in the country, escaped serious injury when he fell while riding Full Reward shortly after leaving the gate in the $3,500 Dress Parade Purse at Pimlico today.

John A. Manfuso's Alluring led from start to finish in the mile and sixteenth event and beat out Grandview Stable's Artist Life by a length and a half. E. B. Stewart's Perfect finished third some 2½ lengths ahead of Golden Bull, the even money farovite.

Only six horses went to the post and Near East finished last.

The spill occurred in full view of the grandstand, a few strides after the start. Golden Bull and Alluring both swerved a bit coming out of the barrier and Full Reward was in close quarters when the saddle slipped. The four-year-old appeared to stumble and then fell heavily.

Bone tried to get to his feet after hitting the ground but was groggy. He was carried from the track and taken to the dispensary. An examination disclosed no broken bones Bone, however, cancelled his one remaining mount of the day.

Jockey Joe Culmone added three more winners to bring his total for the year to 327. He scored with Sophocles at $3.60 in the opener, Banjoist, $3.40 in the fifth and First Degree, $8.40, in the eighth.

A turnout of 10,151 watched the semi-final card of the Pimlico fall meet which closes tomorrow.

Cleveland Browns Refuse To Permit Mont To Play With Redskins Sunday

Washington Must Use Gilmer And Sebek

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—The Cleveland Browns refused today to permit the Washington Redskins to use assistant backfield coach Tommy Mont as an active player when the two teams meet Sunday in Cleveland.

The decision forces the injury-riddled Redskins to rely on semi-crippled Harry Gilmer and rookie Nick Sebek, the only remaining "T" formation quarterbacks.

Sammy Baugh is still suffering from the effects of a sacroilliac condition despite his presence in the lineup during most of last Sunday's game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mont, former University of Maryland back, was Baugh's understudy from 1946 through 1949. As a coach, he is ineligible to play without the unanimous consent of National Football League club owners.

Carl Engh is starting his 32nd season as basketball coach at Westmont High School in Johnstown, Pa.

Engh has been bringing his Westmont quints to Allegany High since 1929 and the schools have played two games annually with the exception of the 1945 and 1946 seasons when they did not meet.

Westmont, incidentally, was hit hard by graduation in June. Bob Sharkey, 6-foot-5 center, will be the only regular on hand from last season's squad. AHS plays host to the Keystone Staters December 15

Only one of the twenty-two football games scheduled here on Thanksgiving Day since 1928 had been postponed on account of the weather.

That was the 1938 tilt which was held over until the following Tuesday night. A snowstorm caused the postponement.

Rollin McCleary, backfield ace of Romney's Class "B" championship team last year, scored one of the four touchdowns collected by the undefeated West Virginia U. freshmen when they notched their 4th straight win over George Washington's frosh by the score of 26-12.

The Little Mountaineers recovered a G. W. fumble on the Colonials' 40. On the first play Dick Luciani advanced to the 25 and fumbled when hit, but McCleary picked up the bounding ball and continued to the goal line unmolested.

West Virginia concludes its season by playing the undefeated Pitt freshmen tonight at Bridgeville, Pa

Attention Sportsmen

"The Blackwater Rod and Gun Club wants to thank the sportsmen who did not take any part in the slaughter of anterless deer.

"We extend to you an invitation to come to Tucker County during the regular buck season and we will inform you as to the best place to hunt and how to get there.

"The Blackwater Rod and Gun Club is an organization of sportsmen pledged to observe the game laws, help enforce them and do all in its power to increase the supply of game and fish.

Baseball Pension Fund Gets $974,000 From Radio And TV

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (AP)—The entire $974,000 that major league baseball derived from sale of radio and television rights for the 1950 world series will be dumped into a fund that is used for payment of pensions and death benefits for ball players.

It took the major league club owners, meeting in joint session, less than three minutes to make that decision today.

Walter Mulbry, secretary of baseball and secretary of the pension fund, explained that player representatives Freddie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers and Marty Marion of the St. Louis Cardinals previously had agreed to that disposal of the money.

At the time the television rights were sold for a record breaking $800,000 some of the players had sought to have a part of the money diverted into a fund that is divided among players on the clubs which finish in the first four spots of the two loops.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

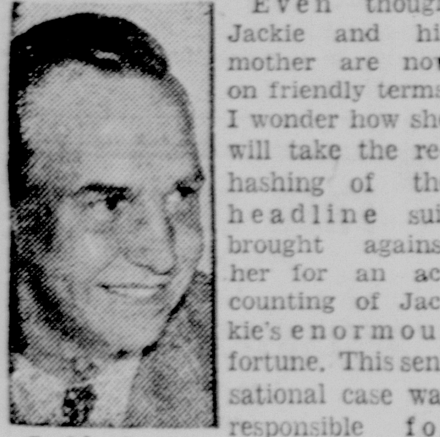
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16 (INS)—If the life story of Jackie Coogan can be put on the screen just exactly as it happened to the "Kid" who earned more than $4,000,000 before he was ten—it will be one of the most dramatic Hollywood stories ever told.

But, yipes — the problems!



Jackie Coogan

Even though Jackie and his mother are not on friendly terms, I wonder how she will take the rehashing of the headline suit brought against her for an accounting of Jackie's enormous fortune. This sensational case was responsible for the California law that a large percentage of minor actors earnings must be placed in trust.

Lou Irwin, the agent, who has acquired all screen rights for the Coogan story for Jackie, says the problems can be handled to the satisfaction of all. And I happen to know 20th has the story under consideration.

Lucille Ball has won out over Paulette Goddard and all the other girls who wanted to play Angel, the elephant girl in Cecil B. De Mille's "The Greatest Show On Earth."

The deal was just closed, and things are certainly coming Lucille's way with a vengeance. She and Desi Arnaz opened at the Paramount Theater in San Francisco on Wednesday, and early in the morning she sent word to me that the line was way down the block. That I can believe.

I also know that Lucille and Desi were offered $50,000 for a two weeks engagement at the Casablanca hotel in Miami with a penthouse thrown in. That's real money! Lucille was willing to give it all up to be in the De Mille picture—that's how much she wants it.

Robert Helpmann, who is staying with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, tells me that he has left the Sadler's Wells Ballet after 21 years.

"I will return as a guest star some time," he said, "but I want to give all my attention to making 'Sleeping Beauty' which starts in London next August. Michael Benthall, who directed Katharine Hepburn in 'As You Like It,' will direct it for Sir Alexander Korda.

"Margot Fonteyn will again do the ballet numbers as the princess."

Margot, who was in "The Little Ballerina," is as photogenically beautiful as she looks and dances on the stage.

John Wayne has an eye allergy caused by makeup, and he's visiting his doctor every day.

Marie Wilson leaves for Las Vegas tomorrow to establish residence. As I exclusively reported last Monday, she's divorcing Allan Nixon.

Mickey Rooney was barred from the Palladium for Frank De Vol's opening when he walked in wearing a leather jacket.

Dick Powell has been very ill with neuritis, and his bride, June Allyson, has been taking care of him.

After a shopping spree Judy Garland and a girl friend stopped to lunch at the Brown Derby in Beverly Hills.

Who was the blonde girl dining with Dr. Peter Lindstrom at the House of Murphy?

Big doings for Lassie. Rudd Weatherwax, Lassie's owner and trainer, and John Rothwell, MGM publicist, have put "The Story Of Lassie" on the stands. Same day the popular pooch signed a new contract. He's just completed his sixth starring picture.

Scotty Beckett, former child star, and Sonny Vickers, Columbia actress, are talking marriage. Scotty, who is 21 has already been married and divorced.

When Arlene Dahl marries Lex Barker she'll be married in the Lutheran church. One of the several members of her family, who are ministers, wants the honor of performing the ceremony.

Ann Blyth, who has just turned 21, is the youngest member of the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Norns were the Fates of Scandinavian history. They were three young women who represented the past, the present and the future.

A NEW POLIO CENTER at the Schenectady, N. Y., City Hospital has an iron lung ready for Christopher F. Trager, 29, of Glenmont, N. Y. Mrs. Trager watches anxiously as attendants place the infantile paralysis victim in the apparatus. Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Listeners Speak Up

EVERY YEAR the Wisconsin Association for Better Radio Listening conducts a listening project in which 2,583 ordinary citizens from all walks of life participate. The listeners examine some 9,300 programs, write down their opinions and then try to do something about it.

John Crosby

Some of the opinions are instructive, since they don't tally very closely with, let us say, professional radio opinion, and they do tally rather closely with critical opinion. The concensus on news programs I found particularly edifying because a news program is a hard thing for an amateur to evaluate, and yet these people's opinions on what constitutes a good news program pretty well follows those of the pros. The main concern was that news be played according to its relative importance.

• — • — •

The listeners instantly detected unsupported statements or bias, and they were not at all happy with news programs that gave only one side of the facts in an effort to influence their opinion. High marks were given to "The Christian Science Monitor" news program ("calm, objective, a moral seriousness"), Edward R. Murrow ("honest reporting") and Elmer Davis ("careful analysis"). Low marks went to Upton Close ("One side of picture"), Robert Montgomery ("poor selection of news"), Fulton Lewis, Jr. ("Good in delivery; poor in content") and Gabriel Heatter ("overdramatized.")

Incidentally, the listeners seemed irritated rather than uplifted by newscasters who used their voices to incite emotion. What is particularly striking about these opinions is the fact that a good many of these commentators are very popular, especially Fulton Lewis Jr. and Gabriel Heatter, who have been getting away with quite a lot of murder for years on the strength of their voices. The fact that the average listener is beginning to see through the foghorn, to insist on news in place of eloquence, to place a precise estimate on just what news is, to detect unfairness in news play, seems to indicate a maturity on the part of the listener which is very heartening.

I'm happy to note that my old favorite "Dragnet" pulled down top honors in the crime class. Crime programs are becoming one of the most serious sociological aspects of broadcasting, both TV and radio, and it's nice to have one which wins approval for its honesty. Here are some of the comments: "Emotion is not pumped up." "It is true. It is well done. There are no shrieks or spooky music." "Little of the criminal point of view of conversation."

The Wisconsin listening post also disagrees heavily with the prize programs and finds on quiz programs generally that questions are too simple, participants too dull and emcees too wise-cracking. "Whole idea of giveaway programs—getting something for nothing—promotes a false sense of values." All these things, the critics and the editorialists have been saying for some time. It is very pleasant to hear the people saying the same things.

I have at hand a press release on an Inner Sanctum program which I missed, happily. In fact, I can think of nothing that has given me more pleasure than missing this one. Without further ado I pass along the plot, as outlined in this press release:

"Psychoanalysts would take delight in the problem of James Webb, suspected as a homicidal maniac who had been terrorizing the city, but actually a bank clerk slated for a grave dug before he is dead.

"Pulled from his bed at the witching hour, Webb is dragged off to a haunted flight through mouldering graveyards, empty graves and violent death by the stranger Mercure—an emissary of darkling lands where the human mind can abruptly collapse under the impact of terror beyond endurance.

"A thousand queer questions, leading to a trial by terror, plague James Webb in his cemetery sojourn—questions which, when answered by an empty pistol and an emptier grave, bring Webb and his faithful wife Margaret to the brink of insanity."

Good night, kiddies. Sleep tight.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

I U G K T H E S V G G I N C T W T S B U M B E L-K M B — E M V W.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: SOMETIME LET GORGEOUS TRAGEDY IN SCEPTRED PALL COME SWEEPING BY—MILTON.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a small boy have his hair cut?

Answer: By all means, if other boys of the same age have. To be compelled to "look like a girl" (or a "sissy") is one of the cruelest emotional injuries a boy can be forced to endure. It means to him a denial of his right to masculinity, and once doubt of that right has been planted in his mind, he may never be able to play a man's role in the world with confidence. I cannot see how any mother who is not a victim of extreme sex jealousy would wish to deprive her son of the privilege of looking as much like a man as he can.

Does "social equality" really exist?

Answer: No, say W. Lloyd Warner and associates in a social study called "Democracy in Jonesville." "Complete equality does not exist in any society which is highly complex and differentiated into many occupations and positions." But these authors also say that the ideal of equality is important in preventing our social-class system from becoming "rigid and inflexible." Years ago a Britisher said to me: "The trouble with you Americans is that you think Jack is as good as his master." I countered: "That's better than saying that he never can be."

Can you "know too much psychology"?

Answer: Yes, if you know it only intellectually. There's no easier way to dodge the impact of emotional problems than to theorize about them, and you will meet people who can offer half-a-dozen "scientific explanations" of their failure to adjust themselves to life yet are no nearer doing so than if they "knew" nothing whatever. Psychiatrists often forbid patients to read books about psychology while under treatment, and if you find such reading only leaves you more and more confused, you'd better stop it and seek personal help.

Stock Market Stages Late Rally After Prices Droop

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — The stock market took the woes of a semi-war economy to heart today and prices dropped.

Spirited buying in railroad, aircraft and public utility stocks in the last trading hour, however, sparked a recovery drive that came close to setting the market on its feet.

Trading was a bit more perky both on the downgrade and when prices started to recover. Volume of 1,760,000 shares was the best in six sessions and compared with 1,620,000 Wednesday.

Columbia Broadcast System class "B" stock dropped $1.75 a share at $32.25 and the class "A" was off $1.50 at $32.75. This followed a federal court ruling Wednesday suspending FCC authorization to CBS to start commercial color telecasts next Monday.

This helped to soften up the entire field of radio-TV stocks and losses for issues of the radio-TV manufacturers ran from 25 cents to $1.25 a share.

Chrysler and General Motors each declined $1.12 a share, closing at $70.12 and $48 respectively.

At the top of the winning column was B. F. Goodrich, whose directors have approved a three-for-one stock split on which holders will vote in January. The issue gained $2.50 a share of $116.75.

Lower prices were paid for U. S. Steel, Studebaker, Caterpillar Tractor, Philco, Zenith Radio, Dow Chemical, American Woolen, Johns-Manville and U. S. Gypsum.

Gains were registered by Sears Roebuck, Boeing Airplane, Douglas, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Seabord Air Line (ahead $1.88 a share at $44.37 and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Law Offices of E. M. Horchler, Cumberland, Maryland. Bernice D. Little, vs. Charles S. Little, No. 21938, Equity, in the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to secure the passage of a decree divorcing Bernice D. Little, A VINCULO MATRIMONII from Charles S. Little, the Defendant. The Defendant is a non-resident of the state of Maryland.

The Bill of Complaint herein filed states that this couple were married January 29th, 1940, at Cumberland, Maryland, and lived in and around Cumberland, with Mrs. Little's folks, and with some of Mr. Little's relatives for a period of about a year. They had no children. Sometime in the early part of 1941, Mr. Little left Cumberland, to seek employment and in February 1943, he wrote a letter to the Plaintiff post marked Warren, Ohio, and the Plaintiff has not heard of or from the Defendant since that letter.

The Plaintiff never gave the Defendant any just cause or reason for the Defendant to abandon and desert her, and there is now no chance of a reconciliation.

The Complainant is a resident of the state of Maryland, but the Defendant is a non-resident of this state, and when last heard from was a resident of the state of Ohio.

It is thereupon ORDERED this 15th day of November, by the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, that a copy of this order to be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week for four successive weeks, before the 18th day of December, 1950, giving notification to the absentee Defendant, Charles S. Little, of the object and substance of this suit, and warning him to be in this Court in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 3rd day of January, 1951, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

us because of their increasing sense of freedom. I got the feeling they were actually relieved to be out from under the Russian yoke. Maybe it's a Tito yoke now but it's Yugoslavian and that makes a difference to the fiercely nationalistic people there."

Bryan says Tito is still highly revered by his people as a great patriot but occasionally his regime is openly criticized because of food shortages, official corruption and the secret police.

"There is less criticism of the secret police," he says, "because there is less secret police. I asked many people who talked freely with me and had me in their homes if they would have done so two years ago. They said, of course not. Their general attitude now is that while they may not be getting all of the essentials they need they are getting more freedom."

Spasm-Reducing Drug Relieves Digestive Ills

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—A new drug to ease digestive distress often associated with ailments like peptic ulcer and bowel disorders was described to the Southern Medical Association.

Dr. Charles W. Hock of the Medication College of Georgia reported at the association's annual convention that the drug combats the "spasm" of an overactive digestive tract.

Such spasms, he said, can occur with certain organic diseases—and also as a functional or nervous symptom in the absence of any definite organic disease.

Its manifestations are such things as nausea, diarrhea, abdominal pain cramps, "gas" and constipation.

The new drug, made by a complex chemical process, will be called "bentyl hydrochloride" when it is commercially produced.

Dr. Hock said it appears to be a more effective anti-spasmodic than certain natural plant-derived drugs like belladonna.

He added that it offers the further advantage of producing virtually none of the "side reactions"—such as blurring of vision and dryness of the mouth—which occur in a "good percentage" of patients receiving drugs of the balladonna class.

Dr. Hock explained there are a number of other synthetic drugs for use of patients who are sensitive to the cheaper but potentially-distressing belladonna.

He described the new drug as "at least as effective and preferable to most" drugs of this class.

Like the other synthetics, it will cost more than belladonna, he explained. A commercial firm will make it generally available to the medical profession in January, he said.

In another report to the association, Dr. Edmund A. Smolik of St. Louis University school of medicine described the effectiveness of blood transfusions in treating "closed head injuries."

Those are brain injuries in which there is no break in the skull to give access to the enclosed nervous structure. Sometimes a fall from a chair can cause such an injury and a generalized disturbance within the nervous system can result.

Dr. Smolik said a "profound anemia" can occur and that in such cases, blood transfusions have a "marked beneficial" effect.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DON'T RISK HIS PASS

ORDINARILY it is fine strategy to put your partner in position to make a "business pass" of the opponents' doubled suit bid. There are times, however, when that is the last thing you desire. If you are blank in the bid suit, with five cards of one other and four each in the remaining two, and if your side is vulnerable, you don't especially want to play against a doubled not vulnerable contract in your blank suit. You may have enough strength to feel that there is a vulnerable game in the cards for your side, and your best move is therefore the one most likely to produce such a contract.

What you see in those bidding sequences proved one of the deciding factors in a team of four match. The principles governing South's action in the two cases should apply in exactly the same way to a rubber game.

South at Table 1 decided that, after having passed on his first turn, he was strong enough to make a takeout double with his fine suit lengths in the three unbid suits. It didn't occur to this unimaginative player that his partner might pass. But that is of course what North did. Wouldn't you, with that diamond holding? The result at that table was that West lost two tricks in each side suit and three in trumps to be down three, giving his opponents 500 points.

A keener player was in the South at Table 2. He realized that the outcome of a double would almost certainly be a business pass, whereas he desired a game contract if one was in the cards. Since he had previously passed, his own bid of the opponent's suit could not mislead North into thinking he was terrifically powerful. North's response of 3-Spades was just about strong enough. South of course carried that to four, and the reward was an easily made game contract worth 620 points for his side.

200-Acre Woods Fire In W. Va. Under Control

Wind Fans Flames On Allegheny Front

A forest fire, fanned for 24 hours by a 20-mile an hour wind, swept over more than 200 acres of land on Allegheny Mountain, between U. S. Route 50 and the Elk Garden, W. Va. area, before it was brought under control, according to District Forester Robert Coughenour of Romney, W. Va.

The blaze, believed caused by hunters, started sometime Wednesday afternoon and fire fighting crews were sent into the rugged mountainous area immediately. The crews worked all of Wednesday night and all day Thursday. Relief units were in the area last night, and there will be some clean-up work to be done in scattered sections today, Coughenour said.

The fire burned over land formerly owned by a coal company, and property believed owned by Loren Cornell. The woods consisted of scrub, pine, and other second growth timber, the forester said.

This particular area is among the most rugged in Mineral county. The section of Allegheny Front where the fire raged includes three seperate mountain peaks, and the fire started about the middle, sweeping in a wide circular formation over all three.

Firemen were handicapped in their initial efforts by wind and withdrew to the tops of the mountains, where the fire, in most cases, was finally checked.

Rain fell about sundown yesterday which slowed the blaze, but Coughenour said the fire fighters, numbering about 50 regulars and volunteers, had the blaze under control in the area before the rains came.

This was the worst fire in nearby West Virginia areas since two bad conflagrations on Allegheny Mountain in 1947, a particularly dry year.

Coughenour said there was a second fire in his district yesterday, which burned over about 20 acres in the vicinity of Franklin, W. Va. This fire also was believed started by hunters. Both fires were reported from the lookout fire tower on the Pinnacle.

O'Connell Named To Railroad Post

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP) — Thomas J. O'Connell, eastern region supervisor of yard and terminal operations for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, today was promoted to chief of yards and terminal operations for the entire system.

He succeeds the late Carl C. Pitcher, who died of a sudden heart seizure a few weeks ago upon arriving in Pittsburgh on an inspection trip.

O'Connell started with the B&O in 1916 as a stenographer at the Baltimore general offices. His rise in the operating department included yardmaster assignments at Fairmont and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Rochester, N. Y., and trainmaster assignments in Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Robb Is Named To Head March Of Dimes Drive

County Campaign Opens January 15

John M. Robb, a local attorney, has been named chairman for the Allegany County March of Dimes campaign.

The two-week county fund-raising campaign will be held from January 15 to 31.

National goal for the 1951 drive has been set at 50 million dollars, according to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paraylsis.

Costs of the last three tragic polio years have left the National Foundation's epidemic aid funds exhausted, officials said.

Bills for polio patient care alone have consumed more than 94 million dollars in March of Dimes funds since the National Foundation was established in 1938.

Almost two-thirds of that entire amount has been spent during the past three years, from 1948 to 1950.

During that period there were 100,000 cases of polio throughout the nation, almost as many as the entire case load for the preceding 10 years.

Worst polio epidemic was in 1949, when 42,173 cases were reported. This year was second, with over 30,000 cases.

Officials pointed out that March of Dimes funds must do double duty, paying for long-term care and rehabilitation of thousands crippled in previous years while at the same time fighting the new epidemics.

Emergency funds of the National Foundation are completely exhausted by calls for help from hard-hit communities in 45 states, but service is being continued although the Foundation is operating at a deficit, O'Connor said.

Someone who didn't have a calendar handy might have thought yesterday was a spring day. Light showers in the early evening added to the similarity, as well as the high temperature of 59. Overnight low was 39. Today, though, is due to be more like November. Partly cloudy and colder is the forecast.

Union Election Vote Is Heavy

Between 60 and 70 per cent of the over 1,800 members of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, were believed to have voted yesterday at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company in a special union election on a 50-cent per month dues increase, according to Ralph C. Beard, union vice president.

Voting took place from 6 until 8 a. m., from 2 until 4 p. m. and again from 10 p. m. until midnight so that men on all three shifts would have equal voting opportunities. Only about 50 per cent of the union personnel had voted in the first two periods but Beard said last night that he anticipated a heavy vote in the last two hours.

The ballots will be counted this afternoon at the union office on Mechanic Street. Beard explained that union dues now are $1.50 per man per month. They had been at that level since 1947. At the time the union was organized in 1933 the dues were $1. Despite the fact that the average pay of union members has advanced from 1933's 60 cents per hour to today's $1.60, the dues have increased only 50 per cent. For the past year some 100 other rubber workers unions in the United States have charged $1 or more monthly dues, Beard added. If approved, the increase would be effective in December.

"Billy" Cassell Is Honored At Dinner

William E. "Billy" Cassell, blind veteran of World War II, last night was named Cumberland's most optimistic person.

Cassell was an honor guest at a dinner meeting held by the Optimist Club at Central YMCA.

Cassell, who is 26, entered military service in October, 1942, four months after his graduation from Fort Hill High School. He lost his sight while serving in the Aleutian Islands.

Since receiving his honorable discharge, Cassell has become a qualified Braille reader. He studied under the Veterans Administration for the sound ascriber device and has become efficient in its operation.

Cassell is licensed by the State Insurance Department and is employed as an agent in a local insurance office.

Fond of music, he plays the drums and appears regularly with musical groups at social events held by area clubs and organizations.

He resides with his wife and son on Browning Street.

Last night's program marked the annual dinner meeting of the local club and the 32nd anniversary of Optimist clubs of the world.

Richard Dailey, Fort Hill High School student who won the county "I Speak for Democracy" contest, gave his prize-winning speech.

Local Division Of B & O Railroad To Get Diesels

Steam Engines Not To Be Eliminated

Although more Diesel locomotives will be added to the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the next four months, steam locomotives will not be eliminated from the division, Chester T. Williams, new division superintendent, said last night.

"The B & O Railroad has ordered quite a few new Diesel units to be delivered in November, December, January and February," Williams stated. The superintendent explained that he was uncertain as to just how many units had been ordered.

Williams' response came in comment upon a rumor that the railroad had ordered 450 new locomotives. He was certain that the number of new engines would not approach 450. He observed that two, three and sometimes four Diesel units are necessary to provide the pulling power for a train.

The superintendent, who assumed his new duties here only four weeks ago, also refuted a rumor that the Cumberland division would be Dieselized completely by next September.

"Although there is a definite trend on the part of the B & O to replace steam engines with Diesels, steam engines will continue to be used on the entire system and in this division," Williams said.

"Certainly the railroad does not intend junking the 30 new Mallet steam engines which were purchased for the Cumberland Division five years ago," he added.

Williams, who came here from Pittsburgh October 20 to assume new duties, is living at 217 Washington Street.

Board Plans Cableway At Kitzmiller To Aid In Measuring Flow Of Water

The Water Resources Board, U. S. Geological Survey, is making plans to erect a cableway across the Potomac River at Kitzmiller to aid in measuring the flow of water through the area, according to Louis Koffman, engineer in charge.

The cableway consists of two towers, one on each side of the river, with a strong cable connectiing the two. A small cable car is to be attached to the cable and move between the towers over the river, Koffman said.

There will be a span of 297 feet between the two towers, enabling a man to move in the car from one bank of the river to the other. Koffman said that he will be able to measure the flow of the river at any point and periodic readings will be made, especially at times of high water.

Sounding meters, devices used to determine the speed of flowing water, will be dropped from the cable-car in order to make the recordings, Koffman related.

He explained that the recordings are to be made to aid in determining the necessity of flood control, as well as to supply information to organizations interested in water sanitation.

The Upper Potomac River Board, a cooperative organization to improve water supply, Koffman pointed out, depends upon the data it receives from the Water Resources Board to determine whether the flow of water is sufficient to properly take care of the sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the banks of the river.

The Savage River project is to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second to take care of the disposal from plants and mines, Koffman related.

"It is hoped that better regulation of the flow," he said, "will provide better sanitation in the river and that will be a large factor in attracting more industrial plants to Cumberland."

Equipment for the cable and towers is being made in York, Pa., Koffman said. One tower is to be 15 feet in height and the other, 20 feet in height. "This should allow a 30-foot clearance for the car in normal stages," he said.

Erection of the equipment will begin when it arrives here, and that should be in the next two or three weeks, he added.

Two Men Hurt In Fall From Railroad Bridge

Scaffold Slips On Painting Job

Two men were injured yesterday when they were plunged 55 feet into the Potomac River at North Branch, near Oldtown, when the scaffold upon which they were standing slipped, according to Nick Cosares, foreman of the crew.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were Gusta Gsaugaris, 33, Brooklyn, N. Y., and John Darmis, 49, New York, N. Y.

Hospital attaches said that Gsaugaris has a possible fractured right hip, and Darmis has a right shoulder injury. Both men were X-rayed.

Cosares said the men were injured while painting the B. and O. railway bridge at North Branch. They fell when one of the boards on the scaffold slipped off a pipe, causing them to fall into the water from a height of about 55 feet.

Darmis fell straight into the water and managed to swim to shore. Gsaugaris, however, struck the side of the bridge with his right hip during the fall. Cosares related that it was necessary to use ropes and a block and tackle to remove him from the water.

The accident occurred at about 3 p.m. yesterday, and the men were employed by G. N. Sponas and Son, a painting contracting firm, Baltimore.

At the time of the accident the second coat of paint was being applied to the bridge and Cosares said they expected to finish the job in about five more days. They have been working in Cumberland for several weeks, he related, all work being done for the B. and O. Railroad.

Civic Club Asks Jury Duty For County Women

Board Of Education Appointment Cited

The Woman's Civic Club passed resolutions to ask the appointment of a woman to the board of education when there is a vacancy in May, 1951; to permit women of Allegany county to serve on juries; and endorsed the resolution of the Annapolis club that all future state government buildings be erected in Annapolis, where there is adequate room and parking facilities.

Mrs. Albert Paye, Civic chairman, presented the motions that letters be written to the state legislature, state senators and governor in regard to the board of education appointment, and to the legislature and state senator concerning jury duty.

The resolutions were presented at the monthly meeting of the club yesterday at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. Mrs. George G. Young, Resolutions chairman, presented the Annapolis Club resolution.

Giving the Welfare report, Mrs. Morton Peskin, chairman, announced that a canary bird and foam rubber cushions have been given to the Allegany County Infirmary. The foam rubber was donated by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and the cushions were made by the Community Service Sewing Group of the First Presbyterian Church. Clothing and fruit were donated to the Keating Memorial Day Nursery.

Mrs. Courtney Kidwell, International Relations chairman, announced that Mrs. Leland Spencer will speak at the first meeting of her group, which is to be held at 2 o'clock November 30 at the Public Library. Her talk will be on "Home Life in Post War Germany."

Three new members were welcomed. They are Mrs. Noel Speir Cook, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Mrs. Lloyd Clark.

A panel discussion on "Civil Defense" was presented by the Community Service Group with Miss Martha Delano as moderator. Participating were Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, Mrs. G. Morgan Smith and Mrs. James W. Bishop. Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, chairman of the Community Service Group introduced the panel.

Although Civil Defense is based on a national plan the importance of the local people was stressed by Miss Delano who pointed out that civil defense depends largely on cooperation between critical target areas and the communities around them. She pointed out, Cumberland is not a designated "critical area" and so is called on mainly to support Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

It is vitally important, she said, that the entire populace be informed of the Civil Defense plans and of the individual's duty in case of attack. Pamphlets and booklets on the topic are being distributed by the government.

A great deal of responsibility for Civil Defense rests with the women, Mrs. Cupler declared. For, she said, the men will be at work, in the service or with other organizations and not be available. She stressed the importance of knowing what to do and not becoming panicky or hysterical. She explained that Maryland has been divided into four Mutual Health Areas, the Eastern Shore area, Baltimore area, Washington area, and Western area.

Necessary for operation of the plan, Mrs. Cupler said, is to have a air raid warning service; shelter protection, evacuation, warden service, mutual aid and mobile support system, fire services, law enforcement, health service, emergency welfare, engineering, rescue, communications, transportation, plant protection, supply, civilian auxiliaries to military activities and personnel.

Mrs. Smith outlined the instructions in case of atomic explosion which, she pointed out, differ from other explosions in magnitude of destruction and presence of radiation. She explained the three types of atomic explosions: the air blast such as was used on Japan, she warned, get below ground; the marine burst which need not be considered here; and the land burst, not the most effective, and little liklihood of it being used.

For general instructions she urged to get under ground; make use of any screening or shelter; if no protection is available fall flat on your face and cover exposed parts of the body; learn to do these things instinctively and immediately; don't look at the blast; and if inside your home, close windows and blinds, turn off oil burner, cover open
